What Do You Think of Counterfeit MPC?

Collecting counterfeit notes is the central idea of this weeks poll on papermoneyworld.net. Specifically, the poll asks if voters think that counterfeits are worth more or less than the corresponding regular issue.

The poll at papermoneyworld asks a question of collectors every week. The questions cover a broad range of collecting interests.

In addition to voting by going to papermoneyworld.net, collectors are asked to submit question ideas.

Editorial/opinion

A friend of mine is a master of chess. He once told me that he ascribes his success to the ability to only make a mistake once. When he told me that I resolved to cut my repetitions (in chess mistakes) to ten. I wish that I could do that well in newsletter editing.

You might have received a virtual mail box of Grams yesterday. That was because of my oft repeated mistake of misnumbering the Gram in the Subject line of the mail going out. That is the oft repeated error for the day. I compounded that with a new one (error). At least as far as I know, yesterday is the first time that I ran an advertisement without information on the seller AND with other advertisements so it looked as though the material was for sale by someone else. I apologize to David Seelye, Ed Hoffman, and any readers who may have been confused. The corrected advertisements are below.

Remember marginalia? Last weekend I heard the word used on public television. I could hardly believe it so I consulted my dictionary and found that it is a real word. I thought that it was something that had been made up by the numisbibliomaniacs (a made up word).

These errors were made without any consideration being given to the poor performance of late with Gram creation.

Finally, I even have a small matter of substance. In the long discussion on Petrov yesterday, I forgot to mention one thing. In the explanation of the decision to remove some of the notes from research data bases, I should have pointed out that the entire group looked like something that came from a government source. The fact that several of the items were specimens and one of them in a form not previously seen (rubber stamp on MPC Series 471 $10) makes it appear, to me at least, that these notes or possibly simply photographs thereof were provided by a government source that may or may not still exist.

Dear Editor & Pu Ba,

I want to try to kill several birds with one letter and make some comments on a number of things that have recently been in the Gram (put my two cents in so to speak).

On what to call the sides of a note, my opinion would be face (or front) and back. That seems easier to understand and comes close to "top & bottom" which we all understand.

Many of us have sold something we like, to buy something we like more. In my case I sold a penny (cent) collection to get a wife and furnish our first home. That was many years ago. Seeing what that collection is worth today sometimes makes me wonder if I did the right thing. The only part of that "investment" I have left is the wife part. Given the above example, was I an investor or a collector? I am hard pressed to find someone who "buys" something hoping it will go down in value. I believe that the definition of "collector" must contain part of the definition of "investor" as well. As collectors we all would like to see our buys go up in value for a number of reasons, not all of which are $$$$$$. A rise in dollar value 1) makes us feel good about our judgments, 2) gives us bragging rights, 3) increases our net worth 4) you can show this increase to your wife when she asks why you spent the rent money on "those worthless bits of old paper?" Therefore, with that in mind, we are all collector/INVESTORS. NONE of us buy what we buy, be it match book covers, different kinds of TP (my wife has a collection of TP she got on her European trip years ago), coins or paper money, with the idea that it will go down in value when it comes to selling it. (I'm not sure what a collection of European TP from the mid-60's would be valued at today but it did not cost her anything to start with so at least there is no loss.) Sure it is a gamble, but so is the stock market. We paper money buyers have the added value of being able to enjoy the beauty of our buy and the THRILL of the hunt, find and nailing down that elusive piece we need to complete, or that is rare. So with those thought in mind we need to come up with a new name for what we do. Hobbieist, investor, collector just does not cover it. Any ideas out there?

Now for the 691-701 issue--maybe we can satisfy both needs. Do the research and then burn it. Maybe I don't understand the 'research' part fully but it seems to me that should satisfy both camps and make the rumps of the rail sitters more comfortable.

Well, those are the thoughts of one Gramster. Any comments?

Best wishes,see you in Memphis, and may your God go with you,

Paymaster

CALENDAR OF EVENTS

May 30 ? June 1 POW Conference II, Coe College, Cedar Rapids, IA Registration fees:

$150 for general registration; $200 after 1 May 2003. (A day fee of $50 per full day, $25 per half day will be accepted at the time of registration as space allows for walk-in registrants to join pre-reg.) $100 for presenters, uni/college students, senior citizens, veterans of any age, overseas participants. (Registrations must be received by 1 May to qualify.) (Presenters coming for one day may attend half of that day free; if they'd like to attend the entire day they will be asked for a $25 contribution to help defray conference costs. [Basically, all presenters and panelists are being given $50 credit.]) $50 for TRACES donors/non-working TRACES board members.

$50 for Journalists may attend the exhibit opening, 1-5 Saturday afternoon at the Johnson County History Center in Iowa City/Iowa, for free; those wishing to attend the rest of the conference in order to write articles/tape reports may do so at $25 per day. The exhibit itself is free and open to the public. We are very pleased to have, per plan, some half dozen German POWs or their families with us for the exhibit and conference; as much as we would like to waive the conference registration fee, we must ask that they make a one-time $50 contribution to help defray the unavoidable costs of making this conference a reality. Berlin Study Tour participants may attend for free.

Please (!) pass this invitation to anyone you think might be interested in either presenting or attending.

For more information about TRACES visit www.TRACES.org.

2003 scholarship fund

Donations of cash and numismatic material will be gladly accepted. Generally the numismatic material is auctioned at MPCFest, but might be sold via ebay or other places. Your scholarship donations help the hobby by sending qualified individuals to the ANA summer seminar military money class. Except for unavoidable charges like ebay fees, 100% of your donation goes to scholarships.

More on Counterfeits

By Joe Boling

As Christopher Robin would say, "Now how to amuse them today?" Every time I need to write a column, I rummage through the stacks of unaccessioned junk around my desk looking for something new that might be of interest to gram readers. Generally not much is there, my interests having turned to fake notes. So what should tickle my eye today but a gram announcement that this week's poll on papermoneyworld.net concerns fake notes? So, I went there, became the seventh person to vote this week, and noted that, as with most polls, the responses elicited are not adequate to reply to the question. This week's question asks if voters think that a counterfeit is worth more than the corresponding regular issue--yes or no. I'm going to skew the poll here by discussing this question.

It depends, of course. For a common note easily obtainable for 50 cents, a counterfeit is considerably more rare, more desirable, and worth more than fifty cents. [All discussions assume that we are dealing with contemporary counterfeits intended for circulation, not modern replicas.] For a note that exists in only a few collections, the fake is worth less; in fact, the fakes might be more common than the genuine pieces. At the moment I'm not aware of such an inversion of availability for any MPC issue, but the Turkish 10 livres note (putative British WWI counterfeit) that I discussed last December is an example of a fake being more common than originals. In general, fakes of scarce, high-priced notes do not have the cachet of fakes of common pieces.

So I would have modified the poll to give one or more additional responses, such as: At what price level do you think that a fake and a genuine piece are approximately equivalent? Have you ever paid more for a counterfeit than an equivalent genuine piece was worth?

Another issue is the quality of the fake. A piece that looks like a second-grade art project, that never could have passed, ought to bring less than a technical tour de force that is the subject of messages to the field. Aha--and what if you have one of those messages, and want a fake note to go with it? You'll pay more than you might have otherwise, because you have a specific collecting goal in mind for that combination of letter and banknote.

And then there are the dealers who know what I like and see me coming (ugh). Fred and I have had words about some of the money I have spent for fakes.

Wow, mark it down. Joe and I agree on everything he said about counterfeits! That does not happen too often. Just to be clear, in my opinion, the discussion proves that the weekly poll is working! It started a nice discussion. We hope to hear from you on it too.

We have been on the terminology band wagon for the past few weeks, so we might as well continue it for awhile on this counterfeit discussion.

Joe (quite correctly in my view) talks about contemporary counterfeits meaning those created at the time that the genuine notes circulated and intended for use in commerce.

I am less comfortable with his use of the term modern replica. I consulted World War II Remembered. We distinguished contemporary from modern fakes meant to bilk numismatists by calling them collectors counterfeits. The slight distinction that I am trying to make is between a collectors counterfeit which in many ways would have to be BETTER than a contemporary counterfeit to pass. I have seen what I believe to be contemporary counterfeits that not only could, but did, pass as genuine to collectors so that is another terminology problem.

I consider a replica to be something that might technically be a counterfeit, but is intended for souvenir use. It would not pass in commerce (if it had been created at that time) and would not pass a collectors scrutiny. However, it might pass as genuine to a non numismatist tourist.

There is a wonderful category of counterfeit that is well known to Confederate collectors. The term (actually the fine point of the definition) was taught to me by Grover Criswell. A bogus note is a fake intended to circulate for which there is no corresponding regular/genuine issue. An example would be a MPC Series 641 $20! I cannot think of any such notes in our speciality. Wait a sec. There are some bogus issues among the Japanese puppet issues for China (I think. Joe? There you go Joe, next weeks column subject.)

I have put on my target sweat shirt so please fire away.

Dear Gram,

You may THINK you fixed the POW coin ad, but it still says Hoffman in today's gram, and nothing about Seelye.

Joe

Dear Joe,

OK, we will try again.

Editor

Dear Editor,

I remember at fest trading a $10 note with the serial number F000000110* note for other notes that I needed at the time I was also lucky enough to own the other only reported note in that series being serial number F00000098F that am told is a first printing note that was supposedly destroyed?? There are some differences most noticeably in the length of the bar code and it appears to have a security planchette on the FACE of the note that is ultraviolet sensitive This note will be available for inspection and possibly for trade at David Seelye's table at the Memphis Show.

Now all I have to remember is to whom I traded the other example to?? WAS IT YOU?? [it was not to the editor, I do not collect MFC since I consider it a conflict of interest-ed]

I have been collecting counterfeit coins for a long time and have several examples but while buying out a large collection recently I noticed a 591 $10 counterfeit note that had been over stamped and its a good thing that it was stamped because this note was a remarkable example to detect! It was that good of a note that it surly passed as money in its day this note also will be on display and for sale at David Seeley's table at Memphis so stop by to visit him and to look at some very neat items that you wont just find anywhere! And when you get there you will know what I mean and I will leave it at that (one of a kind Items) to let some of the other surprises that will be on display to your imagination dont miss it! See you there

Kevin

Dear Kevin,

Surly all of the high value MPC were counterfeited to one extent or another, but I have not previously seen a contemporary 591 $10 counterfeit. I look forward to seeing it.

CALENDAR OF EVENTS

May 30 ? June 1 POW Conference II, Coe College, Cedar Rapids, IA Registration fees:

$150 for general registration; $200 after 1 May 2003. (A day fee of $50 per full day, $25 per half day will be accepted at the time of registration as space allows for walk-in registrants to join pre-reg.) $100 for presenters, uni/college students, senior citizens, veterans of any age, overseas participants. (Registrations must be received by 1 May to qualify.) (Presenters coming for one day may attend half of that day free; if they'd like to attend the entire day they will be asked for a $25 contribution to help defray conference costs. [Basically, all presenters and panelists are being given $50 credit.]) $50 for TRACES donors/non-working TRACES board members.

$50 for Journalists may attend the exhibit opening, 1-5 Saturday afternoon at the Johnson County History Center in Iowa City/Iowa, for free; those wishing to attend the rest of the conference in order to write articles/tape reports may do so at $25 per day. The exhibit itself is free and open to the public. We are very pleased to have, per plan, some half dozen German POWs or their families with us for the exhibit and conference; as much as we would like to waive the conference registration fee, we must ask that they make a one-time $50 contribution to help defray the unavoidable costs of making this conference a reality. Berlin Study Tour participants may attend for free.

Please (!) pass this invitation to anyone you think might be interested in either presenting or attending.

Atomic Numismatics

By Warner Talso

Here is an interesting connection between numismatics and the atomic bomb. The Manhattan Project (code name for the atomic weapon development project) was famous for it's insatiable appetite for materials and the lengths to which the project went to get the job done. There was a need for a conductor for the coils of magnets. In the summer of 1942 the preliminary plans for the electromagnetic plant had called for five thousand tons of copper. However, copper was in short supply due to other war related needs and strikes in the industry.

Silver was suggested as a substitute, because it has the highest electric conductivity of any other natural substance. "On August 3, 1942, Colonel Nichols visited Undersecretary of the Treasury Daniel W. Bell with a request for a large amount of silver. When Bell asked how much he needed, Nichols replied 'six thousand tons', to which the secretary replied rather indignantly, 'Young man, you may think of silver in tons, but the Treasury will always think of silver in troy ounces.'" Eventually, 14,700 tons of silver (much in the form of silver dollars), worth 400 million dollars at the time, was loaned to the Project.

A total of 940 magnets were fabricated using this silver. The magnets were estimated to be one hundred times larger than any magnets previously constructed. They were so powerful that they pulled on the nails of workers shoes, making walking difficult. They caused tools to fly out the hands of workers. Special nonferrous tools and equipment had to be fabricated.

"When it came time to return the silver to the Treasury after the war, every ounce was scavenged. In the final accounting, of the 14,700 tons borrowed, only a minuscule fraction of 1 percent was missing."

The majority of this information and the quotes are taken from the book "Racing for the Bomb" by Robert S. Norris, Steerforth Press, South Royalton, Vermont, 2002

In addition to playing with the Fest V dates, I have been experimenting with some other calendar matters. Specifically, I have been entering MPC items in a Yahoo calendar at <http://calendar.yahoo.com/mpcgram>. This calendar has many advantages to the calendar as published currently in the Gram. Please to this calendar, look around, and give us some feedback on how you like it.

Dear Esteemed (somewhat confused) Editor,

In light of the recent mention in the Gram about changing the dates for Fest V, perhaps all those in attendance in Memphis could get together at Fred's table (or David's or Leo's) and have a little discussion. As a planned attendee, I need to know if should pack the spring or winter uniform!!

Roger

Dear Editor,

Well, stop inclining and make a decision [about Fest V dates]; my calendar is already filling up for next winter/spring.

Joe

Dear Editor,

I just received a phone call from John Wilson . He says do not move it to the weekend after Maastricht . That will conflict with C SNSin Miluwakee .

Just passing this info along.

Marcus Turner

Hi Fred,

A little frigid Ohio weather is good for one's lungs, nice crispy cool air. It isn't as if you are holding the Fest in Adak, Alaska or Buffalo, New York. So what if Amtrak is late, it usually is deapite the weather.

Cheers,
Colin

Dear Editor,

On the subject of series numbers being the same as the predominant note color, you state that there are two exceptions. I count four exceptions, ie. 461, 471, 472 and 481. As to why, I would guess that they were printed along with the serial numbers or as a seperate overprint and as you said, all the others were printed as part of the tint.

It's just a guess mind you, don't ask me to prove it or anything. Maybe they were uncertain as to what or how to date these notes. And why are Allied military yen called series 100? I look forward to your reply.

Jack H.
Hickman, NE

Dear Jack,

You are correct, but you caught me off guard. For Series 461 and 471, the series number was printed by letter press along with the serial and position numbers. For Series 472 and later, the series designation was printed with the respective tint. The surprise was when you suggested that series 472 and 481 were printed in the same way as 461/471. I had to dig out some notes to be certain, but 472 and 481 series numbers were printed with the tints.

Darned if I know where the Series 100 designation came from. I suspect that it was a convenient place to start and authorities anticipated creating more series: 101, 102 etc. I will be pleased to read any other theories.

Editor

Dear Editor,

For military fakes more common than originals Joe might like to check the Operation Bernhard notes and the 5 sen Japanese Military Yen note (S&B 2013q), although I am not sure whether the latter was contemporary.
Gramme A.

Dear Editor,

When I said "modern replica" I was thinking Chambliss notes, not fakes meant to bilk collectors. Those are of interest only to those who are assembling reference sets for authentication purposes (such as me).

Bogus notes in the puppet bank series? I can't think of any offhand, but I'll chew on it. I can think of one in the JIM series.

Joe

BOUGUS!!

By Joe Boling

In the past week the subject of bogus notes was broached (notes that seem legitimate, but that in fact are complete fantasies, not even being counterfeits of notes that actually existed). The most interesting Asian one from the WWII period is the 1/4 shilling note of Oceania (SB page 621, no catalog number assigned). Nobody seems to know where these originated, who prepared them, or why. They look like regular JIM notes in design, but the colors and print technology are completely foreign to the JIM series, so it seems unlikely that they were ever intended to fool anyone.

Another bogus Oceania group are the replicas. These get the label bogus because they did not exactly duplicate the originals, but used components of the originals. The unmarked one shilling replicas lack the face underprint; the one pound replicas (all productions) have the wrong left front face guilloche.

Other bogus JIM notes are the many "banana-banana" notes created long after the war from models of Malayan $1 and $10 notes. These are serially numbered and were wholesaled all over SE Asia by the source in Kuala Lumpur. One report had a series of them being used as lottery tickets in Singapore. Most likely they were used as funeral money or as tourist souvenirs. They are written up on page 613 of SB (I'm sure I now have some additional varieties buried in my unaccessioned materials).

Outside the JIM series, I can think of no "whole cloth" bogus creations. But there are several overprints that do not seem to match anything that was legitimately prepared. At the top of this list are the South China Expeditionary Army overprints on Nationalist notes (SB page 596). In addition, there are all the geographic overprints on Central Reserve Bank of China notes that were prepared from the same typographic elements, and are therefore, in my opinion, collectors' fantasies (see page 717 of SB).

Following up on my column of last week, Gramme A proposes Bernhard notes and the 5 sen 11- character bird and dragon military yen note (SB2013q) as examples of issues for which the fakes are more common than the originals. Yes, in today's market, the 5 sen fakes are seen more frequently. They first appeared in the early 1980s and are reputed to have been printed in Hong Kong for the collector market. As for Bernhard notes, while there are plenty around, I would not say that they are more common than originals. In the UK, most dealers have an ample stock of 1930s-40s white notes of all denominations and signatures. Of course, they do not show their Bernhard notes openly, but I don't believe there are nearly as any of them around as of the genuine pieces. In the US, it may well be that there are more fakes, both because it is less hazardous to handle them, and because the originals are not highly sought and therefore are not stocked in depth by US dealers.

I knew that it was too good to be true—agreeing the way that I did with Joe last week. First, the 1/4 schilling Oceania bogus note is the perfect example of this concept. I sure wish that I had thought of it last week. The other Oceania replicas are not bogus notes in my opinion. I do not think that a note that might be considered a very crude counterfeit or one that could never circulate can be considered a bogus note based upon these characteristics alone. They might be replicas or fantasies as opposed to counterfeits (often a fine line), but I do categorize them as bogus. A different denomination or a different vignette would qualify as bogus in my book.

Finally, I mentioned in the first discussion on this matter that Grover Criswell, the Confederate money maven, had taught me this distinction on bogus notes when we were working on one of his books. In the Confederate area (and era), the matter of fantasy designs intended to circulate were a significant issue, so collectors of this area deal with the issue (of terminology for such notes). As you know, I put great stock in small sources like dictionaries. As it turns out, I could not find any dictionary support for the distinctions concerning bogus that Grover taught me.

Dear Editor,

What I want to know is if Nate's is open year around.....

Mikie

Dear Mike,

Nate has agreed to stay open this winter—just for you—and your stool is reserved too!

Editor

Dear Editor,

Well FRED, there are those who think the 691/701 destruction should not have been stopped. Others think it is okay. I will not comment on the yea's or nay's, but would like to have the rest of the world to know, they also have a chance to own these remaining notes. The notes are to be released under Title 10 which is an exchange of goods or services. The full control of the notes are in the process of changing from Anniston, Alabama to Bill Carnes at Fort Jackson. If anyone would like to make a proposal for the remaining notes, they need to get through the Committee for the "Center for Military History". Send it to: United States Army, Center of Military History, Attn: DAMH-HD - Terry VanMeter, 103 3rd Ave., Fort McNair, Washington, D.C. 20139-5058.

Marv Mericle

Dear Editor,

You have a remarkable sense of humor - I have been wanting to meet you for some time now. My grandfather - EL Brownson left a wonderful collection and in the collection is a letter from you to him & the book World War II Military Currency - that's a great book. Anyway I just wanted to say hi and that I admire you much as he did. He was a great man & I miss him dearly & I feel honored that he left this legacy to me and that I now have the opportunity to exchange email with someone he looked up to and that person is you - also if you wouldn't mind corresponding with me maybe you could ! give me some pointers on how to get into this business / who to deal with selling/buying & when to buy/sell. I would like to do business & correspond with you in the future - there is so much I could learn from you. Anyway thanks for reading this email and I hope to hear from you.

Sincerely,

DL Parish

Dear DL,

Gosh. Is remarkable good? As I wrote to you, I remember your grandfather quite well although I only met him a few times. He gave me some research information that was useful for me. Some of it is still in process. As to resources, the Gram should be your first place to look. Your subscription has been started. If you did not receive this issue, please write (remember, you liked my humor (attempts)). If I might say so, I also recommend Comprehensive Catalog of Military Payment Certificates (4th edition) and World War II Remembered.

Aside to other Gramsters. Here is the item the spurred DL to write and which he thought was good humor. Watch for more news on this item tomorrow.

2003 scholarship fund

Donations of cash and numismatic material will be gladly accepted. Generally the numismatic material is auctioned at MPCFest, but might be sold via ebay or other places. Your scholarship donations help the hobby by sending qualified individuals to the ANA summer seminar military money class. Except for unavoidable charges like ebay fees, 100% of your donation goes to scholarships.

Series 004 - Number 930 Thursday June 5, 2003

Fathers Day and Cool Stuff

New MPC souvenir and household products are now available from papermoneyworld.net according to web master Doug (Wiz) Bell.

The products, coffee mugs, mouse pads and other items, feature images of MPC or MPC personalities.

<http://www.cafeshops.com/papermoneyworld>

The MPC products were quietly introduced in a test marketing done on ebay last week.

In that test a mug was offered with the following description:

If you collect MPC, you probably know Harold Kroll (aka HARBONS). This coffee cup features a sketch made of the ol coffee drinker himself. This cup is ideal for planting marijuana, throwing at unruly kids, gifting to an inlaw, smashing in a fight with an angry spouse, or even drinking coffee. If you take this cup with you to MPCFest V, you will be treated to free coffee every morning at breakfast. 25% of the profits (if any) of sales of this cup will go to the military money scholarship fund. Any other profits go to support the community web site papermoneyworld.net.

In keeping with the Kroll cup above a special Kroll Barbeque apron is on sale now at the site for fathers day. You could grill those burgers and sip your coffee (or other beverage) all while wearing Kroll attire (watch out Michael Jordan. If Kroll items are sold out, you can try some other great designs of the same products. Orders entered promptly might be delivered in time for fathers day (product delivery is tied to Gram delivery schedules?it is a joke, ok?!).

As stated in the listing, a portion of the profits for the sale of every item will go to the scholarship fund and the balance will go to maintaining and expanding the papermoneyworld.net web site for the good of all collectors.

Long Beach...My Story

By Ed Beaman

Thursday, the first day the show opened to the public, we arrived at the 10:00 opening. My fellow work associate, Paul, was in for a treat, as this was his first time to the show.

Paul collects "the round stuff," die varieties of Carson City, Morgans "78." I have been working on him, but I have a ways to go. He is a bit stubborn on changing his interests. I think it's the amount of money he has tied up in these hard, round, metallic objects....I just don't get it ; -)

My first stop was at the highly touted, "Siam Dollar," display complete with an armed guard. I spotted David Seelye, re-introduced myself, we talked for awhile....I don't think he had his MPC coin with him, at least I didn't see it. Of course it could have been buried in with his stuff. I then began my serious search for military money. Equipped with Doug's want list, MPC #4 (working copy), S/B, mag glass, loupe, a bundle of note holders (there never seems to be enough of these..?), and a few choice notes that I would use to sweeten a deal. It may be my imagination, but the amount of MPC seems to be dwindling. I think more people are collecting our notes.

I want to tell you about the box, you know, "The Box". You have all seen it. It sits on top of the display case, sometimes it is kept back behind the sellers table. Usually it has the items not fit for the display, or not of a focus for this seller, maybe simply overflow. The box has been searched a few hundred times, and carried from show to show. Items leave the box and the seller, through dealings, replenishes the box.

In some boxes, items are marked individually. Some others are marked a clean-up price, as in $3.00 or $4.00 each. In such a box I found a "Radar" note, not only a radar but also a "Flipper" (thanks Doug). No it's not a pack fresh gem, but more valuable, knowing the hundreds of eyes that have gone right past it, being discounted as just another, 641 fine. I guess the satisfaction is in being rewarded, after dozens of boxes, searching through hundreds of notes. I paid two dollars.

I was also rewarded in meeting, Guy Araby. Very high level of collecting enthusiasm. Guy was quick to show his "Babies". There is no wonder he calls them babies, they are absolutely "Brand New". I think my jaw is still lying there on the bourse floor. It made me nervous to even handle 'em..."Wow". Well for me and my pocket book, I will be forced and lucky, to catch the discards of these high level collectors.

Any day spent with your passion, fuels the fire of the never ending search. The next find for my collection.

BTW...Fred, No 5 Franc "Label Notes" Found...
Neil, No 1 Mark "Label Notes" Found...

This terminology discussion may have gone to far! Ed Beaman sent a scan of his radar (above) to Doug Bell who sent it to me. That generated a discussion between him and me. One of us said that Ed had cherrypicked this note. The other thought that it was not cherrypicking because the dealer had put the item in his junk box.

I thought (think) that cherrypicking is one of the oldest and most popular numismatic sports, but several years ago I had a conversation with legendary numismatist Eric Newman about this topic. He stated that he did not like the term because it implied a winner and a loser. Indeed, it implied that the winner had sort of cheated the loser.

I guess that the moral of the story for me is that no matter how safe a subject may seem, there are multiple opinions.

David

Dear David,

Thanks for the report. I know that you did not intend this to be a letter to the editor, but I can never resist a plug. We always want MPC replacement reports. Every single report is important as we march toward 3000 replacements! Your report is a perfect model including all of the important data.

Editor

Dear Editor,

The least that you could have done was to spell bogus correctly [in the title of the Boling column Tue].

Joe

Dear Editor,
Hi! WHERE"s the gram?? Too much is happening!
Need our Gram!!!
Guy!

Dear Editor (via telephone),
Have I been bad? I have not received a Gram! [since Tue].

Name withheld [but mail box filled with 12 copies of all previous Grams]

Greetings Marcus,
Today, June 3 is the 38th anniversary of Ed White's First American spacewalk. It occurred during the third orbit of the four-day Gemini IV mission. He was outside the capsule (built by McDonnell, here in St. Louis) for 22 minutes. His spacewalk is commemorated on the back of series 681 fractionals!

Mark Hartford

Dear Mark,
Drat, we are a day late in commemorating the event. Guess that opens the door for you to write a big story on the event for Gram 1232 on June 3, 2004.

Editor

Dear Esteemed Editor,
I think the Yahoo calendar is GREAT but I will want the clickable blue line to access it in every Gram. When will you be ready to receive updates to the calendar? Speaking of calendars. I just received confirmation of the club table I man for NI, NBS and IBNS at the ANA Convention in Baltimore. And the IBNS meeting on Saturday, August 2 at 11AM in Room 317, and the NI meeting follows it in the same room at Noon. All Gramsters are welcome at the table and the meetings. Well, at least those on my A-list are welcome. This year's theme is about the Philippines, and there is a Philippine Collectors Forum on Friday, August 1, where collectors, researchers, dealers, catalogers, etc. are meeting and discussing the issues of this country. I want every Gramster attending this convention to bring everything, to include a list of references and articles in their library, related to the Philippines so the catalogs and bibliographies can be updated with their "new" stuff.

Howard A. Daniel III

Dear Howard,
I am very pleased that you like the Yahoo/MPCGram calendar. The times that you gave in your letter are now included in the calendar. The ability to list detailed times is one of the strengths of the system. If you can get the rest of the times we can put them in too. Indeed, there is a way that we can make you (or you and John Wilson or whomever) an editor of the calendar so that you can go in and edit it without going through headquarters.
A very interesting capability is the ability to merge calendars. If you create a personal calendar at Yahoo,

Dear Steamed Freditor,
Regarding bogus notes, I have a Italian AMC for 25 lire! Square, same size and face design as the 1-2-5-10. Ever see one? Rather attractive, really-printed in a lavender color. The set as I obtained it includes 1-5-10-25 lire in small size (no 2 lire), all dated Series 1943- also a 50 and 100 dated Series of 1943 A. I am not sure why this set was made; possibly it was for movie use. The back design for all is completely different from originals.

Dear Editor,
I wonder if you could sneak in a little blurb about the Philippine Collectors Forum that Ray Czahor is putting together on Friday Aug.1 at 1 P.M. in Room 317 of the convention center in Baltimore at the ANA convention? I know many MPC collectors cross over into this" the best of worlds!"

Thanks, Jack Glass

Dear Jack,

Yes, of course, we need and WANT listings. Best of all this listing is now on the Yahoo/Gram calendar.

2003 scholarship fund

Donations of cash and numismatic material will be gladly accepted. Generally the numismatic material is auctioned at MPCFest, but might be sold via ebay or other places. Your scholarship donations help the hobby by sending qualified individuals to the ANA summer seminar military money class. Except for unavoidable charges like ebay fees, 100% of your donation goes to scholarships.

D-Day wrappers

By Neil Shafer

I mentioned a few days ago that I had some wrappers from Allied military currency. The group came from the Jim Wade Collection along with some great MPC in 1968. (Those notes included the uncirculated $5.00 471 that eventually went to Amon Carter.)

There are 5 French wrappers, 4 of which have text in English and French about replacement notes with letter X. Of course these were issued 59 years ago today.

The colors are red-brown, green, red-orange and blue. The single wrapper without any text is printed in brown. The 4 with text have word FRANCS at top, bottom and on back, and number 100 at center. The brown one (without the text) has FRANC (no S) and 100 placed as the others. That's all I can tell you about these.

There are also four wrappers for Italian lire- colors of the printed word LIRE at top, bottom and at top on the back are green, blue, purple and black. The number 100 is also printed on each of these in the same color, at center. Only the one printed in blue has a different format, also with the following text:

"NOTICE Numbers on notes in this package do not run in sequence. The.....substituted notes have numbers preceded or followed by a star." The number 100 is crossed out at center and has a penciled 94/60/30 (the first 2 are crossed out), and also a red 2 on top of the printed text quoted above. Does this mean there were 2 star notes in this package? Date on this wrapper is 7-25-43. Others are dated 8-7-43, 10-12-43 and 12-10-43, all in pencil.

Today is one of those historic days that will always be of interest to Gramsters. On this day tens of thousands of Allied troops stormed ashore at Normandy, France (1944). Also on this day Judy Schwan retired (2003). Both of these events are extremely important to Gramsters. Some (Gramsters) more than others!

You will recall that a few weeks ago I bragged about obtaining an end label for 5 Allied military franc notes. Within a few hours of sending out that Gram, I realized that I should have held that story for D-Day. Fortunately, Neil bailed me out with a good story!

Dear Mr. Editor,

When I opened my e-mail at the office this morning I found a message from one of the candidates running for office in the upcoming ANA elections. This message was primarily a reminder that ballots should be out us sometime this week, and that we should consider casting a vote for this individual. His message made me think a little. Who are these people? What are their agendas/goals/strategic plans? Hmm...

I referenced the May edition of the Numismatist. Took keep this concise and to the point I will only pick on the Presidential candidates. Besides, they had the biggest ads and will need the most practice shutting up opinionated jerks such as myself. Both ads spent most of their space discussing achievements, experience and establishing some level of integrity and leadership abilities. Well DUH! My underlying assumption is that these qualities would be essential to even be considered as a legitimate candidate. So where are these guys agendas? Gary Lewis' ad dedicated a 2"x2.5" column (out of an entire page) outlining his objectives. Patti Finner's ad gives us a two sentence statement about wanting to increase membership through better benefits. That's it!

Ballots are to be out this week. So far I have read nothing that motivates me spend the 37 cents to mail the ballot back in. I challenge any candidate for any ANA office (I will exclude John Wilson from this as he has kept us well informed of his bid for governor) to convince me to vote. I want to see something of a strategic plan. I want to know what the agendas are. I want to know how us papermoney collectors fit into the picture and what we can do to assist. Will any of the candidates be in Memphis? I hope so, as it is only the largest papermoney show in the US!

We Gramsters might be a vague and eccentric subset of mainstream numismatics, but the last I checked the MPCGram had 400+ subscribers; not too shabby!

Marcus Turner

Early response to Marcus from Gary Lewis, ANA vice president

Dear Marcus,

I would like to take this opportunity to give you some personal information about me since I am a candidate for ANA President. I have been collecting MPC since 1969 when I was the Accounting and Finance Officer at Takhli RTAFB Thailand. I collected fairly heavy in this area at my follow up assignment at the USAF Academy . In addition, I have exhibited MPC at several ANA and FUN conventions. My collection is not complete but it consists of about 100 plus pieces.

As a side note I have written one or two short items in the Gram and have been subscribing to it since it first came out. I have known Fred Schwan "Mr. MPC" for about 30 years and am a prior Secretary of SPMC. I went to the first few Memphis shows back in the late 70's and was planning to go this year but I started a new accounting project today that it going to take me some time so I do not think I will make it.

Marcus, please look me up in Baltimore. If I can answer any additional questions please let me know.

Gary

Dear Editor,

Just a reminder. The Memphis Paper Money Show!! There will be a meeting of the M2C2 at 4:00 on Saturday afternoon in Ballrooms 3,4. It is requested that all FEST IV personnel that are at the show be present at this meeting. Those who do not show, may be disappointed!!

Marv

Dear Marv,

Thanks for the tip. Everyone with a paybook should take them to Memphis.

2004 Scholarship Fund Dive Kicks Off

by Marcus Turner

The 2003 ANA Summer Seminar is not even in the history books yet, however, we have received our first donation for the 2004 Military Numismatists Scholarship Fund. Our first donor for the 2004 fund was Al Glaser of Ramona, CA. Past years have seen early donations by the likes of Steve Feller, RA Medina, Marv Mericle and Ed Hoffman. This year Al got the jump on all of them, sending in his donation before the Memphis IPMS next week. Thank you Al!

The Rest of the Story

By Warner Talso

About six weeks ago I wrote a story about finding three beautiful uncirculated Frankfurt barter units (10, 50, and 100 units - SB #613, 615, and 616). Ron, a local dealer, had asked me to identify them for him. Coincidentally, barter units had been at the top of my want list ever since Larry showed me his collection at FEST IV. I have the idea of putting together an exhibit that shows the history of Germany throughout WWII in terms of currency. Anyway, I immediately made Ron an offer, but he had promised first refusal to another gentleman. He would call me when he had a decision. I waited impatiently for several weeks and finally called him. He had just talked to the other gentleman and the other gentleman did not want to meet my offer. So these beauties were mine (or just about)!!

Well, it was Friday afternoon. As luck would have it, my car was in the shop for some body work. Wouldn't be ready until 5:00 PM. Ron closed at 5:00 PM. What to do? I could quickly run to Ron's with a government car. No, that wasn't right. I could ask a co-worker to drive me or lend me his car. For some pieces of old paper? No, this was not exactly an emergency-as others would understand it. Call my wife and have her come pick me up? Get real. I hope you can sense my emotional turmoil. I REALLY wanted these notes.

In the end, I had to wait until Monday morning. I got to Ron's shop first thing. But not before some young man wanting to show Ron some shiny round metal things. So I had to wait. What a waste. No appreciation of priorities here. Finally, it was my turn. I held my breath while we agreed that my original offer was good. (I had feared that he might decide that further bargaining would be profitable to him.) These beautiful notes had a new home!

I was on a high. I am new to the hobby and this was the first time I had this experience of finding some gem that I really wanted unexpectedly and successfully negotiating acquisition. I called Fred with the good news. I had been discussing the situation with him. I also told him of my idea for an exhibit. I now had all the pieces in place and could move ahead. Fred, always the good friend, brought me down to earth by pointing out I needed taxi tickets, Joint Export-Import Agency travelers coupons, travelers checks, etc. to be complete. He certainly didn't want me to enjoy this moment any longer than necessary. I guess that might be unprofessional.

Nevertheless, I continue to be pleased with my success and will gladly show these notes at the summer seminar.

Last week we had the Fest. Next week is Memphis. Man the time flies. You know that. Memphis—the very word makes me think paper money, adventures, fun. It (Memphis) will dominate paper money news and the Gram for the next two weeks (or more). That is because it is important and it will no doubt generate plenty of news. What adventures and discoveries await Memphis visitors? How many busted budgets will be left strewn about the bourse floor? This little introduction to Memphis week is meant to make you make last minute plans to go. We want to see you there. We do not particularly want to share the booty, but it will be worth it to share the fun. See you in Memphis (I hope).

MAIL CALL

Dear Gram,

I enjoy each issue of the gram, irrespective of whether the topic of the article is in my collecting area or not. Thanks for your continued hard work.

I just have one comment, Fred, about June 6th. You might also mention that the Battle of Midway was found during these early days of June in 1942 (June 3-6 or 4-7, I suppose depending on which side of the dateline you live).

Best regards,

Ken

Dear Ken,

Great point! I will remember the Pacific connection for next year. Better yet, next year you can have the lead article on something numismatic relating to the Battle of Midway. Even better, prepare such an article now AND next year! We must strike while the iron..., well you know.

Editor

Dear Steamed Fredictor,

Pursuant to my report on the AMC note bands and the single end label, I have to add details now on a group of MPC note bands that also came in the Wade Collection with the others. There are six of them, 4 small and two larger. Each has wording MILITARY PAYMENT CERTIFICATES 3 times, number 100 in the middle, and text telling about substituted certificates having a prefix but no suffix letter. Colors, small bands: green, brown, black (2); larger bands: blue and light gold. To my surprise, there is also an end label for MPC that I had not remembered at all! Details- Text lines as follows: MILITARY PAYMENT CERTIFICATES / Series 681 / 4,000 5c $200 / C08512001C to C08516000C / Then 3 lines at bottom: Packed in Case No. (blank) Carton No. 2129 / Examined by (name) on 4-7-1969 / Verified by (initials) on 4-7-1969. That's it.

Neil S.

Hi from a first-time correspondent.

Are there many MPC wrappers around on the circuit? I have one, rubber-stamped June 29, 1959. Printed on it is the following:

MILITARY PAYMENT CERTIFICATES

Then (smaller writing):

IF THE NUMBERS ON THE CERTIFICATES IN THIS PACK-AGE DO NOT RUN IN SE-QUENCE THE SUBSTITUTED
CERTIFICATES ARE PRE-CEDED BY A LETTER BUT DO NOT HAVE A SUFFIX LETTER.

Below that, with lines above and below is the large number 100, which is crossed out, followed by a smaller number in ink indicating obviously that some notes had been removed. By the time I got it from the principal of the closed Narimasu High School (military) in Tokyo, 14 years ago, most had been removed from either end of the pack, but the remaining ones were pristine and well centered. One whose name I often see in the MPCGram is my witness to that last word (pristine and well centered). Just sign me "annfarra"

Dear Annfarra,
What is this wrapper day? Week?

Editor

Dear Editor,
This is the first [Gram] I have had for a while.
How do I complain to AOL?
Also, Heritage will be auctioning a large lot of MPC Only a couple of replacements in the batch but lots of others. The guy (coin dealer friend) sent to Heritage rather than Lyn as he sends over $1,000,000 a year to them So be on the lookout.

Nick

Dear Gram,
I need some help from the real paper money collectors out there. I just got a Russian 5 ruble note that had been used by an organization seeking to return POWs from SE Asia to the US. It is right up my alley as a use of currency as a propaganda medium.
However, Pick doesn't show a 5 ruble note of 1961, although the banknote is clearly marked with that year. Is my old copy of Pick wrong? Anybody care to send along a Pick number for such a note?

Herb F.

Marcus Turner
Marcus, thank you for copying me on your e-mail. It is the right of all members to vote in an election for the candidates they think will do the best job for you representing the Association that is so important to our hobby.
Bring your ballot to IPMS and by that time you can analyze the candidates, the platforms they propose and who you think will do the best job for the ANA's approximate 29,400 members, which include 500 coin clubs.

See you at Memphis, John and Nancy Wilson

Dear Editor,
Just to let you know I received my mini Fest MFC yesterday. Very nice. Harold certainly went to some effort to do something unique.
Thanks again for letting me participate - long range.

Warner

Dear Esteemed Editor,
I really appreciate the offer of being the "official" co-calendar man with the distinguished president of the ANA, John Wilson, but the pay is too high and it will shove me into another tax bracket! Only kidding! I really cannot take on any more duties at this time but will continue to mail in information as I find it, or it finds me. I am also preparing to attend the Memphis show again. This time I convinced Daryl Spelbring to attend it and drive Len Harsel with him. Daryl is a squid (Navy) so he already dislikes my Army background, but he is really going to hate me after bunking with Len and me! I could not drive Len this year because I am driving North, West, South and then East to Kansas City, Iola, Fargo, Salt Lake City, Denver, Colorado Springs, Goodyear, El Paso, San Antonio, Dallas, Janesville, Houston and then back to Virginia. If there is anyone out there located between any of those cities and wants me to spoil their day, please contact me at Howard@SEAsianTreasury.com and I will see if you can be squeezed in. The day after I leave for Memphis, my executive wife leaves for another of her overseas consulting trips. She is headed for Mumbai (Bombay), India, to consult for about two weeks with their computer staff about upgrading their software to catch the bad guys. I actually correspond with a dealer there and will try to have her to visit his store and bring back some things for me. We shall see how successful I am at convincing her.

That is all for now.

Howard A. Daniel III

Dear Howard,

It sure is good that you have all of the high powered computer power because you must have used it to calculate the shortest route among all of those cities. Possibly you used the same program to compute the greatest distance that can be traveled. We would be pleased to have you add Fest HQ to your itinerary, but I cannot even estimate what decade you might pass this way. In any event, we will want reports from you on your adventures.

2004 scholarship fund

Donations of cash and numismatic material will be gladly accepted. Generally the numismatic material is auctioned at MPCFest, but might be sold via ebay or other places. Your scholarship donations help the hobby by sending qualified individuals to the ANA summer seminar military money class. Except for unavoidable charges like ebay fees, 100% of your donation goes to scholarships.

More Atomic Numismatics

By Bruce Smith

Regarding the article "Atomic Numismatics" in the latest Gram, I think not everyone knows (I didn't till a couple years ago), that the reason nickels were made out of silver during World War II, was because the metallic nickel was needed for the Manhattan Project. In the process for making uranium into weapon material, it goes through a gaseous stage during which it is highly corrosive. One of the most resistant materials to uranium corrosion is nickel. All the equipment used in this phase of production had to be nickel plated, and eventually the plating wore off and everything had to be replated. Large amounts of nickel were needed for this purpose.

Eventually some bright scientist came up with a better and less expensive material -- teflon. Yes, teflon was originally a top secret material developed for nuclear arms production. Eggs won't stick to your Teflon coated frying pan, and neither will weapons grade uranium.

OVERPRINTING SN/ SERIES distinction:

By Guy Araby

I decided to run a heavy blacklight over all the series and "most of the multiple printings! IT is very obvious as to which was printed together! My findings! Testing all new notes , several hundred. ARE as follows! Series #461 "Position number" and "serial number" and "series number" are all printed together! ALL this "overprinting" is "BRIGHT RED " under black light- full size lamps! AND the same with series #471!!!! Series #472 "ONLY "position number" and "serial number" are "RED." Next SERIES #481, only serial number and position # are in red, NOT series! THIS series has a the "unique" 2nd printing that does "NOT" turn red under black light! Then 3rd and 4th printing go back to "RED" SN and POS #'s! ALL the rest of the seires including 1st and second printing of 691/701 et al! are printed serial number and position # at the same time! THIS is correct information!! I will be happy to prove it using varying tests! Hope this helps! AS I have been studying the entire series under BLACKLIGHT for 5 years now. You can confirm this using blacklights and also a few other methods.

Recently (today), I received a letter complaining that I had not run someone's letter to the editor.

Basically, we run all material that is submitted to the Gram, but there are a few things that we do not consider appropriate. First, items must have a numismatic tie. They should relate to military numismatics, but they must be numismatic. A few Gramsters send items that might be viewed by others as being political. If there is no numismatic hook we do not run them. We do, however, get into numismatic politics. We do not like to labor these points, but feel an obligation to cover it from our special point of view.

We love criticism. We like complaints about the Gram and about the editor. We are pleased to run these. Complaints directed at other people we are less likely to run. In one case we asked a writer to change the letter from specifically complaining about a person to generally explaining that type situation. The writer got mad. Complaints that are mean spirited instead of constructive might not get run, but I remember only one instance of omitting such letter.

Ironically, one of only two letters that I can remember deliberately omitting was meant to be pleasant, but actually was ugly implying some ideas that I do not think that the writer intended.

Other things get in the way. As you know, I am prone to losing things. Yes, as most of you know, that happens with email as well as snail mail. I try to meter mail as well as articles. We like for every Gram to have interesting material on different subjects. Of course we cannot always met this goal, but it does cause us to advance or hold an item.

We read every letter that is published. Mostly they are just run, but often minor corrections are made. A writer who calls the face of a note the obverse will find it changed (the obvious exception is if the terminology is the topic of discussion). Sometimes we want to check something before we run the letter. If something is false, or possibly false, we probably will run a letter, but feel that we must be prepared to offer the other point of view in an editor's response or in some other manner.

In the last few days, we combined two letters from a Gramster because both were short. We do not like to run two letters from the same Gramster in the same issue or even a letter and article from the same Gramster in the same issue.

We sometimes make a letter into an article. Possbily, we have even done the opposite.

We do all of these things because we feel that it is our responsibility. It has been suggested that the Gram could be turned into a listserve operation where all letters submitted are forwarded to all subscribers. It is possible that such a list could be created to supplement the Gram or even to replace the Gram if no editor can be found when I retire, but listserve is NOT a newsletter.

MAIL CALL

Dear Editor,

I started receiving the MPCgram yesterday, and I'm looking forward to it!

I would prefer the term "annotated" to "marginalized." Isn't note-taking what interleaved copies are all about? How come no one ever publishes interleaved editions anymore? Maybe it's just too expensive, but leaving enough blank space in the regular edition seems like a good compromise.

-Wayne

Hi Freditor,

With regard to Herb F's request for a Pick number for Russia 5-ruble note of 1961, it's #224, on p. 662 of the new Vol. 3.

Neil S.

Which Gramsters are going to be in Colorado Springs around July 4th? Maybe still a Mini Fest?

Larry Gibbs

Dear Larry,

I am sure that there is the possibility of a miniFest!

Editor

Hi! 10+ hours of pure hell! Virus scans, none detected, tech help, you name it 2 days of pure hell! froze up!
JUST THINK I couldn't "SCREAM" any more... the horror, then all the sudden back online????? for how long , I don't know??! Guy! Your my family! ((no need run this)), please.. BUT you could run my other 2 letters!! :)!

Guy!

Howdy, Fred!

I have just found out that the 'Franklin D. Mitchell,' who signed the short snorter I made for the WW II symposium at Stephen F. Austin State University in 1985, was a co-author with Stephen J. Schecter of "The Homefront: America During WWII" published by Putnam in 1984.

I probably knew that in 1985; however, I HAVE slept since then...

Later,

2004 scholarship fund

Donations of cash and numismatic material will be gladly accepted. Generally the numismatic material is auctioned at MPCFest, but might be sold via ebay or other places. Your scholarship donations help the hobby by sending qualified individuals to the ANA summer seminar military money class. Except for unavoidable charges like ebay fees, 100% of your donation goes to scholarships.

Reading the Paper

By Howard A. Daniel III

Awhile back I wrote about reading the Obituaries in The Washington Post and finding those who passed on who might have left some information and/or numismatic/exonumia pieces in their records. One of them was a Colonel Jackson, who I think was heavily involved in the 1, 2 and 5 Dong leaflets dropped over North Viet Nam. I waited a couple of months and wrote a letter to his widow, but I have not yet received a response. Maybe I cannot write the "right" letter, so I am telling you about another man who has passed on.

Today's [ca May 28] paper has a Colonel Joseph Lee Mastran passing on at the age of 87. During his service, his obituary has him being the commander of a WWII POW Camp for Germans. It is very possible he has left some papers and other material related to chits or scrip used in his camp. If you want to write to his widow and ask about them, you can write to her, Mrs. Mary Pauline Mastran, 4019 Pine Brook Road, Alexandria, VA 22310.

I have written in my letters that historically important material could be in his papers. Instead of possible losing or trashing them, I suggest that they be donated to the Army War College or another similar repository, if they do not want to sell them. Maybe there should be a form letter that has been carefully edited by Gramsters that can be addressed to the survivors. Who wants to jump in and write this letter as we discover families who might have materials important to our research?

Daisy Chain Merchandise

Papermoneyworld and cafeshops have expanded their MPC merchandise AND introduced an interesting policy. For the next two weeks, everyone who purchases something at <http://www.cafeshops.com/papermoneyworld> will have the opportunity to send discount coupons to interested collectors (Gramsters). This offer gives Gramsters the opportunity to daisychain their orders. Gramster 1 orders something, giving Gramster 2 and 3 coupons. They ordering something and send coupons to 4, 5, 6, and 7. Soon Gramsters will bring the worldwide email system to a halt with overflowing boxes, the website, and scholarship fund will be wealthy beyond belief.

There is a new poll question at papermoneyworld so it must be Monday. This week the question concerns what you collect and features an expanded format. Instead of two possible answers, there are six. This taxed the mental capacity of your editor (see below), but other Gramsters should be able to handle it. This is a fun question. I hope that we can crush the poll participation record and make it into triple digits this week.

=====

Dear Editor,

I read your comment re. the GRAM's policy on running letters & articles. You stated "Basically we run all material that is submitted to the Gram . . ."

I must disagree. Two years ago I sent you two articles on Philippine Guerrilla currency & you never published them! I asked you numerous times about them & you told me they would be published. I eventually got "fed up") or should I say "fred up") and sent them to Ray Czahor & he published them on his site. (Have you ever wondered why more people don't write for the Gram? Maybe now you know.) Also, twice I sent a letter to the GRAM asking for help from Gramsters on the following question, "Why are MPC the size they are? What was the logic behind choosing the size?" Neither letter was published. Be careful what you write, dear Editor, or your words may come back and bite you.

Ken Berger

Dear Sir,

Wow. Not much that I can say except that I am sorry. I do remember the Philippine articles and certainly did want to publish them (and still do for that matter). Basically just goofed that up. I do not specifically recall the MPC size questions.

Thank you for calling me on this. The criticism is valid, but the Gram policy is as stated. The problem is our flaky editor.

I am pleased that you have continued to read the Gram in spite of my dreadful service.

Editor

Dear Editor--

Perhaps this is old news, but I recently purchased a German 1000 RM Steuergutschein note which is unlisted in the present edition of "WW2R" The note is identical design-wise to the lower denominations but is done in a brown-blue-brown undertint. I also have a lead on the elusive later issue...but that's a tale for later!

WW

Dear W,

Good find! Please take it to Memphis with you! We have lots to learn about these Steuergutschein. I hope the latter issue that you mention is Steuergutschein II. Would like to see some of those!

Editor

Dear Editor,

My thanks to Niel. I guess it is true, you have to buy a new Pick every 10 years or so.

Herb

Hi editor!

Sorry if I "over reacted" again! But my passion runs high and quick, just (me) always been kind of obsessed with whatever i'm into! Whatever I say , remember your are the reason (your books! and the Gram and you as a friend!!) That I EVEN collect this "stuff" :). All in all, I and you know also, more information generates knowledge, generates changes, also "gets people INTERESTED in whats the hoopla all about"?? coverage... hence ...new collectors spawn from the passions of our interest. Creates interest that otherwise might not have been!!!! Oh well, have a nice day ,

Guy!

P.S. If you want to want this letter in the Gram, you may!

Guy!

Dear Guy,

It is much more fun publishing letters that people do not want published!!

Editor

Dear Gram:

Due to the problems with AOL, I have decided to open an Yahoo account to receive the Gram, as you suggested. I hope this works!!!!!!

GWS

Dear G,

I hope that it works too, but you confuse me. Your new Yahoo address is a Hotmail address! I just hope that it works.

2004 scholarship fund

Donations of cash and numismatic material will be gladly accepted. Generally the numismatic material is auctioned at MPCFest, but might be sold via ebay or other places. Your scholarship donations help the hobby by sending qualified individuals to the ANA summer seminar military money class. Except for unavoidable charges like ebay fees, 100% of your donation goes to scholarships.

New Security Measures

By Joe Boling

OK, a short column today - I'm trying to get ready for Memphis, and my computer decided tonight was the time to quit running WordPerfect 6.0a, my preferred word processor for the past nine years. I tried reinstalling it from scratch, and even that did not work; some glitch that I had on my old computer finally showed up on this one, too, and the program will not initialize. Furthermore, I can't turn off the curly quotes in WP9, so will have to hand-massage the text after I transfer it to AOL; some may get through.

The subject for today - infra-red sensitive inks. The descriptions of the new US notes (with color tints) that was published in Coin World mentioned the use of IR inks on the backs, an aid to the blind (don't ask me how they can see IR but not visible light, but that's what the claim is). The article said that these IR inks are already in use on current notes. Does anyone have an appropriate lamp for examining notes for IR inks? Apparently this is supposed to be easy to do, because the feature is supposed to be accessible to the handicapped people for whom it is intended.

Then, after obtaining a lamp for looking at US notes, take that same instrument and turn it to MPC/AMC and see what can be discovered.

I notice that no mention was made of UV properties for the tints of the new US notes, but I'll bet there will be some. Just as MPC were on the leading edge of UV security features, it would not surprise me to learn that there was some IR element on MPC decades ahead of the US notes. Does anyone know?

And speaking of lamps, although ANA has purchased some UV lamps for classroom use, I also obtained a quantity of them from a recent clearance sale. Anyone coming to the summer seminar (or Memphis, if you let me know by Wednesday night) who still needs a portable UV lamp, see me (until four are sold at $14). One at a time at this price, please (no wholesale) - let's spread them out.

After taking a hit for inefficiency yesterday, I recalled some numismatic horror stories that I have never shared. Never thought that I would have a hook to use them. All publications and some authors will remain anonymous.

About eight years ago, an article appeared in a respected publication about Allied military marks. It was a good to great article. I wrote a letter to the author with some questions and comments. He replied that he was amazed to see it published because he had sent it 10 years earlier.

Does the section in World War II Remembered on Japanese war bonds amaze you? It should. Here is why Japanese and other war bonds are in the book. Joe Boling had been studying the Japanese bonds for many years. He had prepared a major manuscript on the subject and submitted it to a major numismatic publication. Then he waited, waited, and waited some more. Ultimately, he complained and was paid for the article. Then he waited some more.

We had considered including the bonds in the book anyway, but by the time that we were ready to go to work on the book, the article had not been published so we figured that we really must include all of the bond material. The article was never published.

In the 1980s I wrote three humor pieces about coin collecting (as opposed to paper money collecting). The first was on the BS grading system. That was the Bag State grading system. I cannot even recall the second article, but the third one was on SCAMS. The Scientific Coin Analysis and Marketing System was going to revolutionize the industry. SCAMS seems to have been a little too hot for the publication. They sat on it. I waited. Eventually I complained. They stalled. I waited. Joe was luckier than I was, I did not get paid. It was never published.

One of the first articles that I wrote was in the 1970s when I became infatuated with MPC replacements. I sent the article to a journal where the editor broke the article into two parts (I can be a bit windy). The second part was never published.

These stories are not meant as an excuse for our (my) poor performance as editor in this regard. In fact, it proves Mr. Bergers point (Gram 934). Submissions are important and to the people who send them in, they are very important.

Dear Editor,

WOW, I had no clue the power that the gram has, since you ran that article my phone hasn't stopped ringing?? if you want to get attention for your numismatic items put them in the gram! What a response! Are you sure this is free? (hint make some dough)

To all of those whom have called me from the gram about the American Bank Note Items, MFC , MPC Counterfeits and one of a kind Items they will be on display at the David Seeley's table. So please no more calls come and see them for yourself at the show in Memphis. To those interested in buying some of this collection get there early I am not selling much of the collection but what is for sale will be there!

Thanks

Thanks to all gramsters for such a response.

Kevin

Dear Gram;

I was at Fest IV and M2C2, what does that mean? Ballroom 3 and 4, what hotel? And where can you park or stay Friday and Saturday night?

Thank you
Bob Olson

Dear Bob,

Well, have a look at page 368 of the MPC book (4th edition). The advertisement for the Memphis Coin Club should answer most of your questions.

2004 scholarship fund

Donations of cash and numismatic material will be gladly accepted. Generally the numismatic material is auctioned at MPCFest, but might be sold via ebay or other places. Your scholarship donations help the hobby by sending qualified individuals to the ANA summer seminar military money class. Except for unavoidable charges like ebay fees, 100% of your donation goes to scholarships.

Winterhilfswerk Varieties

By Wendell Wolka

When News breaks out, we break in! While pondering the abject beauty of a pile of 1943/1944 Winterhilfswerk 1 RM notes, I have discovered a variety heretofore unreported! Block Z2 notes (previously unreported, or at least unpublished, block) sport what appears to be a damaged "1." The lower left serif of the numeral has a white "blob" which breaks the inner line of the figure and obliterates one of the heart-shaped border design elements on the "1."

Other blocks (R, J, J3 -- all heretofore unpublished blocks) exhibit a normal "1" with all design elements intact.

If one takes the leap of faith that Z2 block notes were probably nearly the last notes produced, late in the war, then perhaps we have a lithograph stone problem which was deemed not worth fixing. I have enclosed a scan for your amazement...including "handcrafted" pointers indicating the area of the variety on both normal and variety notes.

<http://www.papermoneyworld.net/grams/winter.htm>

=====

I have been waiting to tell you something about the Winterhilfswerk. Recently I found a book Neither Friend nor Foe, the European Neutrals in World War II by Jerrold M. Packard. I have been very interested in these five countries (count them out) since we developed that section for World War II Remembered.

I am still reading the book. A few days ago I was reading about Sweden (four to go) when I found the following amazing passage:

After it came to light in 1936 that money publicly collected for the ubiquitous Winterhilfe, the Nazi relief fund, had actually been used to finance German propaganda in Sweden, the Swedish government threw [Heinz] Bartels and two of his associates out of the country. Bartels was the leader of the informal network of German nationals living in Sweden.

As you can imagine, I was stunned to read this. Likely Winterhilfs items exist for Sweden! I can hardly wait to report a discovery here in the Gram.

MAIL CALL

Dear Editor,

Please forward on to Bob Olson. I stayed at the Wyndham Memphis Garden in the past and will again this year. Right across the street from the show.

Not a bad rate for a king room $89.00. They might still have rooms. 1-877-999-3223

Regards
Al Glaser

Dear Al and Bob,

Well, I had a little problem with my own room so I tried the Wyndham. First I went to the website www.wyndham.com and found a web rate of $62 (!) per night. Then I called the number that you gave. There I was able to get the webrate. The catch is that they charge the full amount of the reservation at the time of booking and there are NO changes. Still, the rate is great and at this point I am going!

The final step is to add these phone numbers and web site to page 365 of the MPC book for next year!

Editor

Dear Editor,

Regarding Bob Olsons inquiry, is your answer always to look in the book?

David

Dear David,

I must admit that I like giving that advice. In addition to feeding my ego a little, I hope that it also sends a message to all readers about the information that is available in these books.

Editor

Memphis Opens

Gramsters, Festers, and all other MPC collectors were excited at the opening of the Memphis Paper Money Show. Collectors scoured the floor looking for rare, interesting, or just plain elusive items.

Everyone with a paybook who reported to Ye ol Paymaster Leo May and other designated pay officers were paid for temporary duty in Memphis. For the first time, the Memphis pay was indicated by a special Memphis overprint vertically on MFC Series 031. Restrictions and or limits on the overprinted MFC were not available at press time.

Speculation was heavy about the M2C2 meeting scheduled for Saturday. Rumor has it that M2C2 leader Marv Mericle has a special program planned that includes a souvenir item. The meeting will be at 4pm Saturday. Everyone is welcome.

Yellow Seal Information

By Jim Downey

A few months ago in the Gram, Peter Huntoon asked for information regarding the use of yellow seal dollars. Please put the following in the Gram, since I have lost his email address and I thought this might be of interest to Gram subscribers. War Department Circular No. 364 (8 SEP 44) titled "Exchange of United States and Foreign Currencies, Cashing of Certain Negotiable Instruments, and Disposition Thereof by Army Disbursing Officers" has the following info:

11.g. In the case of military personnel departing from one oversea area for another, local currency or regular United States currency in their possession should be exchanged for the United States yellow seal currency when available. Upon arrival at destination, yellow seal currency remaining in the hands of personnel should be promptly exchanged through disbursing officers for local currency of the area concerned.

11.h. The Government of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics prohibits the carrying of rubles from that country. Military personnel prior to departing from the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics after completion of duty therein will exchange, at Army disbursing offices, all rubles in their possession for United States yellow seal currency, Treasury checks, or postal money orders. Army disbursing officers outside the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics are not authorized to accept rubles for exchange.

Have you checked the for sale section recently? Ed Hoffman has a nice list of replacement for sale there. It has run for the past few days. Today will be the last day. I deliberately did not mention it before today in order to reward readers who check the for sale section every day in spite of long dry spells. I know that some of the items have sold to alert Gramsters!

Activity at Memphis is hectic, you can be sure. More detailed comments from me will have to wait until Sunday or later.

Dear Freditor,

Regarding bogus notes, I have a Italian AMC for 25 lire! Square, same size and face design as the 1-2-5-10. Ever see one? Rather attractive, really-printed in a lavender color. The set as I obtained it includes 1-5-10-25 lire in small size (no 2 lire), all dated Series 1943- also a 50 and 100 dated Series of 1943 A. I am not sure why this set was made; possibly it was for movie use. The back design for all is completely different from originals.

Neil Shafer

Dear Neil,

Yes the [bogus] 25 AM lire is movie money (does that mean that it is not bogus having been trumped?). These were distributed by Doug Bell at Fest I! See you should have been there. We have a few spots open for Fest V!

Editor

Dear Editor,

I worked with the blind for 28 years. They have scanners that they swipe the bill thru to find out the denomination. I suspect the ink indicators will make for a better way of recognizing the bill by the scanner. The old ones recognized the ink patterns and didnt work too well or were very expensive. The scanners were the size of a wallet or a little larger than a bill. The bill would be put inside and then a voice chip would ID the bill. The expensive ones were used by the Blind Vendors program here in the State of Ohio.. Hope that helps.

Gary (Who has Fours) Hicks

Howdy, y'all!

Here's hoping y'all have fun at MemFEST this weekend.

I can't make it this year...too much courtin' on Friday and Saturday is the Blueberry FESTival in ole' Nacogdoches (complete with a Blueberry Blues concert on Sattiddy nite).

Have fun!!!!

Jay in Garrison, Deep East [By God!!] Texas

Dear Jay,

Is that courtin and sparkin or just lawyerin?

2004 scholarship fund
Donations of cash and numismatic material will be gladly accepted. Generally the numismatic material is auctioned at MPCFest, but might be sold via ebay or other places. Your scholarship donations help the hobby by sending qualified individuals to the ANA summer seminar military money class. Except for unavoidable charges like ebay fees, 100% of your donation goes to scholarships.

Who Issued Supplemental Francs?

By Jim Downey

Page 280 of WWII Remembered indicates that the supplemental francs were issued on the order of General Eisenhower because of difficulties coordinating with General DeGaulle and the French Committee for National Liberation. This is only partially true.

In Military Money, Walter Rundell cites a report by the Twelfth Army Group that $4.00 in supplemental francs was distributed to each soldier prior to the June 6 invasion. The exchange was 49.556 francs per dollar. The distribution of supplemental francs to the invasion force was ordered by General Eisenhower as Supreme Commander. The determination of supplemental francs as legal tender in France was made by the French Committee for National Liberation. Report on House Resolution 150, dated 28 April 1945 and signed by Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson, has the following to say about the issue of supplemental francs:

b. In order to avoid repercussions, inimical to the success of the military undertaking, from the introduction of a currency selected by the Allied governments, representatives of the French Committee for National Liberation were consulted with regard to this problem, and they expressed the strongest objections to the use of dollars, especially yellow seal dollars, in the military operations in France. After evaluating all factors and circumstances, a currency note, stating as its source only that it was "Issued in France", called a supplemental franc, was finally agreed upon between the United States and British Governments and concurred in by officials of the French Committee for National Liberation.

d. A proclamation was prepared for issuance by General Eisenhower at the time of the invasion which announced that supplemental francs were legal tender in continental France. This proclamation was not used, however, because it was agreed that the French should make the announcement themselves. On August 28, after the agreements referred to, the French made the announcement from Algiers by radio and published a decree in their Official Journal making supplemental francs legal tender in France.

Included as appendices to the Report are English translations of the proclamations making supplemental francs legal tender in Continental and Metropolitan France which were issued by Pierre Mendes-France and Henri Queuille respectively on August 28, 1944 from Algiers. The proclamation by Pierre Mendes-France describes the supplemental francs as it makes reference to the "Issued in France" language on the face and the French tricolor on the back. There is also a document dated September 14, 1943 which reads in part as follows:

Expenditures of the Allied Forces in French territory will be paid out in franc notes issued by the French Committee for National Liberation, and these notes will be accepted as legal currency and will have the effect of full legal tender, excluding completely the use of foreign currencies as a means of payment. The conditions under which franc notes will be furnished to the Allied Forces by the French Committee of National Liberation will be established by common agreement between the French and Allied authorities. The Report makes it clear that the legal tender status of supplemental francs was not ordered by General Eisenhower but by the French themselves. The documents in the appendix show that it was decided that the supplemental franc would be issued by the French Committee for National Liberation as early as September 1943.

Additional documents in the Appendix reveal that unlike the occupation currency issued in Germany, Austria and Japan the Allies purchased supplemental francs as foreign exchange by paying the French Committee for National Liberation the dollar equivalent of supplemental francs used to pay Allied troops or purchase supplies. The same method of purchasing was used for AMC in Italy after Italy changed sides during the war. Oddly enough, the Italian government also declared the AMC lira as legal tender in areas of Italy unoccupied by the Allies because they did not have the ability to print their own currency. This is the only instance of occupation currency being declared legal tender by the government of the occupied country as opposed to the military commander of the occupying army.

Editorial/opinion

Memphis is Memphis. Exhausting, but exhilarating. I had a great day chatting. I spent very little, but sold nothing. Like I said it was a great day. Wendell Wolka, Harold Kroll, Marcus Turner and others had wonderful discoveries to show me for WWII Remembered 2. Hopefully we will get to discuss some or all of those in the days and weeks ahead. Actually, I hope that we can get those guys to discuss them.

[Aside to Jim, thanks for the great lead article, but I cannot see the support for the statement that Ike did not issue the notes on his own authority. I agree that the committee ultimately endorsed the supplemental francs, but if they did not do that until August, they entered circulation only on Eisenhower's authority it seems to me.]

MAIL CALL

Dear Sir:

I would like to subscribe to the MPC gram network. I am a fairly recent (2 years) entry to the world of military currency collecting. I found a copy of WW2 Remembered at my local coin shop, on sale for about $20 Canadian, and find this area of collecting extremely interesting. I spent 28 years in the Canadian Army and never really took much interest in military currency until recently. I collect mostly ancient Roman coins but my interest has suddenly changed to MPC, JIM, AMC and other WW2 currency. I am a member of the CNA #11555 and other organizations. Thank You:

Samuel E. Lipin

Dear Sam,

We are delighted to have you as a Gramster. Not too long ago we had quite a bit of discussion about MPC use by Canadian forces. We have confirmed MPC use by CF in Germany and in Korea, but we have not had any first hand accounts. Can you help with that?

We share your enthusiasm for collecting WWII money, but we are also extremely jealous of the price that you got on Remembered. Tell that dealer that you will take any more than he has! We have no fear in telling collectors that it is a bargain at $65 (US)!

If you do not receive this Gram, be sure to inform us. See, even new Gramsters are subjected to our warped sense of humor.

Editor

Dear Editor,

I learned long ago that the only way to not spend a lot (too much) money at a show like Memphis is to not go.

Jim Downey

2004 scholarship fund

Donations of cash and numismatic material will be gladly accepted. Generally the numismatic material is auctioned at MPCFest, but might be sold via ebay or other places. Your scholarship donations help the hobby by sending qualified individuals to the ANA summer seminar military money class. Except for unavoidable charges like ebay fees, 100% of your donation goes to scholarships.

I understand the question of the status of the supplemental franc between June and August 1944. The significance of the information in the Report is the acknowledgment by Secretary of War Stimson that the order from General Eisenhower making the supplemental franc legal tender was never issued. Under international law, General Eisenhower would only have had the authority to declare the supplemental franc legal tender if he were the military commander of an occupying force. This was the crux of the dispute with General DeGaulle. The French Committee for National Liberation refused to acknowledge that the Allies had the status of an occupying army in France. It would have been a political and diplomatic nightmare to have General Eisenhower declare the supplemental franc legal tender by virtue of his authority as Supreme Commander only to have the allied French civil authority repudiate it based on the fact that they did not recognize the Allies as a military occupant.

The reason for the delay in the proclamation by the French Committee was that the French insisted that the Allies agree to restrictions on currency exchange (including the requirement that the Allies reimburse the French as foreign exchange for supplemental francs disbursed by the Allies) and the export of capital from France before they would accept the supplemental franc as legal tender. These agreements were not reached until August 15, 1944.

Although the official proclamation regarding the legal tender status of supplemental francs did not come until August 28, 1944, it is probable that the supplemental franc circulated as de facto legal tender even though it was not de jure legal tender.

Jim Downey

Dear Jim,

I am sorry to sound something like a lawyer, but this discussion started when you pointed out that in WWII Remembered that we had stated that Ike had issued the AM francs. We did not say that he had declared it legal tender! Frankly, I can even claim that Joe and I labored on that statement to get it precisely correct. However, no matter what, I am pleased that we were able to have the discussion here in the Gram!

Memphis Report and the Trip Back

By Frank Clark

I had a very good time at my 20th Memphis, mostly visiting with friends and being involved with SPMC activities. I also received my pay from Fred Schwan and in that grouping, I got 2 blank back MFC's in the $4 and $5 denominations! What a surprise for me!

I am now the Past President of the Society of Paper Money Collectors, with Ron Horstman the new President.

If you would like to join, an application can be printed from our website - www.spmc.org.

Also, every year on the Memphis trip I have seen a sign in Princeton, Texas that says "WWII POW Camp". Princeton is NE of Dallas, maybe 40 miles or so. This year I decided to finally take a look. I followed the signs and ended up at a park that contained a half dozen or so baseball fields and supporting structures. There was a brick structure with a plaque that I will summarize. In 1941, the Honorable Sam Rayburn helped dedicate a new migrant worker camp at this site. With the onset of WWII the migrant worker camp was transformed into a POW camp for German prisoners who worked on the surrounding Princeton farms aiding in the war effort. The POW camp closed in 1946 and was used again as a migrant worker camp for several decades before closing. The only structure I saw that might have dated back to the POW camp was an old, rusted water tower. It is not listed in Osborne's WWII Sites in the US. I was glad that I had finally checked this site out.

[Frank, I am very sorry about the defective MFC, please send it back and finance will replace it with good notes—ed]

Infrared Part II

By Guy Araby

Hello! I read Coin World articles , June 2, and June 9. Also the Banknote Reporter June issue. I printed out the "press release" at the BEP site on the New $20 note! After reading all these 4 Articles I could find "no mention" of the "IR security features!! Mr. Boling, could you please respond as to where, which article and date, page # etc. that it mentions "IR infrared use??. Please advise?? ..... WHAT I DID find.....a neat paragraph in the Coin World June 9th article by Michele Orzano, CW staff, !! quote, paragraph 5, page 87. says: "Next, the back of the sheet is printed in intaglio green ink and invisible, machine readable ink and allowed to dry. (The invisible, machine-readable ink is intended to aid the visually impaired, who can use special machines to read the invisible ink to identify the denomination of the note.) END paragraph. (no mention of infrared there either?)..... On the BEP site press release article, a paragraph states about the 'peach blue/green and yellow will "aid" the visually impaired in identifying the denomination. Referring, I believe to being able to recognize the color rather than the numerals as easier to see, identifying the denomination more easily. Question: WHERE can we get the machine to study from??? How does it work?? AND will Mr. Boling refer to the IR statements he read , so I can figure out more!!!

Any new info out there??

When I arrived at my hotel in Memphis, the clerk demanded a photo ID. I knew that I did not have one on my person, but I expected that they would accept the one of Judy. Alas they would not. You will not believe what they DID accept. My credit card used to reserve (and pay in advance for) the room was good but not sufficient. My Fest paybook put it over the top. Yes, my paybook was accepted as identification.

Throughout the show I observed many challenges with Fest coins. The biggest was at dinner on Saturday night. Our group of four (Mays and Schwans) challenged the group of about 16 and every single person had his/her coin! I did not see a single challenge win at Memphis. This is a first. We seem to be getting the message.

Dear Editor,

There have been many comments about my fanaticism collecting the MFC issued and used at the MPC FEST and related meetings. I will not deny that when it comes to building my collection, I will pull out all stops to acquire the notes I need.

I have just heard that I am a distant second in dedication. It should have come as no surprise when I reflected on the dedication to the impossible dream. Doug Bell just said that he is driving to Colorado Springs, arriving on Saturday get paid in whatever the finance department will be using at the Military Seminar held at the ANA. Now driving from Oklahoma to Colorado Springs just to get paid in the usually hard-to-get MFC from the ANA seminar has GOT to be over the Top. Even for me.

David

PS I still need any serial #1's and errors from any MFC series.

Dear Gram,

In trying to be the most accurate on pricing most of the values for The Planchette Report were first pulled from the 4th edition mpc bible (with permission) from there changes occurred that have been made due to auctions and new information none of the prices are pulled from prices users put in to the database at the same time prices are updated as prices are realized at auctions and sale's and then the over all pricing of notes in the database are updated to reflect the pricing.

2004 scholarship fund

Donations of cash and numismatic material will be gladly accepted. Generally the numismatic material is auctioned at MPCFest, but might be sold via ebay or other places. Your scholarship donations help the hobby by sending qualified individuals to the ANA summer seminar military money class. Except for unavoidable charges like ebay fees, 100% of your donation goes to scholarships.

Financing War

By Warner Talso

After much discussion and navel-gazing I have succumbed to pressure from Fred, The Delegator, and agreed to attempt to write a weekly column. No promises. No guarantees. We can but try. Call it an educational process under pressure.

An area that fascinates me is how wars are financed; what and why strategic decisions are made. Historians usually ascribe military outcomes to the superiority of troops, weapons, tactics, leadership, and/or maybe simple good luck. The financial innovations supporting wars have typically been ignored, except perhaps among economists. It is these fiscal, monetary, and financial arrangements that are most interesting to me and will be the central theme to this column. We shall certainly digress and follow attractive tributaries when the occasion arises, but, hopefully we shall always return to this theme.

In envisioning the scope of this discussion, I can think of bonds, lotteries, loans, taxation (voluntary and involuntary), theft and appropriation, and perhaps more. Every time the subject comes up, a new financial scheme seems to come to mind.

Many of you keen observers are undoubtedly thinking that SB addresses "Financing the War" when introducing the various belligerents of WWII. What will be different here? We will undoubtedly be using SB as a reference, but we are interested the why of various actions and we will also make direct comparisons. For example, the Japanese, U.S. and others used bonds to raise money; the Germans did not (SB, p.484). Why? What are the advantages and disadvantages of bonds? Japanese versus German versus U.S. versus USSR strategies, other players, WWI versus WWII, even Alexander versus the Spartans. Perhaps discuss (speculate) on reasons for some decisions.

If you have any ideas, want to contribute (with or without credit, your call), or just want to provide constructive criticism without going through the GRAM, you can reach me at wtalso@aol.com.

See you next week.

It is always a thrill to welcome a new columnist to the Gram. Our columnists are essential to the success of the Gram and the Gram has been key in the growth of our hobby in the past few years (at least so it seems to me, take me to task on this if you like) so this is an important day.

However, I am pleased beyond these reasons in this case and I am not sure which of these reasons I think is most important. Warner can trace his beginning as a serious military numismatist to Seminar I. This summer he is attending his third military money seminar as a student! This demonstrates the strength of this program (in spite of the instructors). The subject that he has chosen for his column is the most restrictive-and innovative-of any that have been conceived. The financing the war theme is the least studied are of WWII numismatics. Joe has exhaustively studied Japan (does he do anything in any other way?), but in all other theaters and countries, there is much to learn. He is going to lead us on an exciting journey. I can hardly wait!

Dear Editor,

I understand (read in the Gram) that Doug is driving to Colorado Springs with his paybook to take advantage of payday Saturday at the seminar. I WILL fly there for payday if that is the case. It will probably cost me about the same to pay for airfare or to pay scalper prices.
Please advise.
Regards
Al

Dear Al,

It would be a pleasure to see you in Colorado, but your proposal (as well as Doug's) brings up several topics that I have not yet resolved. Certainly, students at the seminar with pay books are entitled to be paid as appropriate and to convert and/or exchange money if necessary/appropriate. Basically, I think that a paybook holder who shows up late should be entitled to be paid. Take last years seminar as an example. This year may be different (and almost certainly will be), but we can use last year as a model.

Initial pay was in Series 100 C yen. Later it was converted to MFC 022 ANA provisional issue at which time the C yen became worthless.

If a late arrival (after conversion) wanted to be paid in 022 ANA, there would not have been a problem. If, however, he/she wanted C yen—or both—there would have been a problem. Finance would not have been able to routinely provide both because at no one instant were both valid.

There is also the possibility that a mini Fest issue might be released at the coin show. Therefore, it seems to me that the best option for you might be to make a deal with a seminar student to take care of you with each issue as it comes along (assuming....). Please do not forget that last year there were canteen chits too. There does not seem to be an end to this!

Good luck.

Editor

Guy,

I reported the source of my IR information many days ago (11 June); the overworked and under****ed editor failed to print it.

I say again....

<<< The notice about IR-sensitive inks is in the CW article of 2 Jun 2003, page 64, titled "Anatomy of a new note." I quote:

"The new Series 2004 notes will also continue to incorporate a machine-readable capability for the blind that was introduced on the redesigned $20 FRN in 1998. ... The machine-readable feature is a finger-width strip on the back of the note that is printed with ink that seems to disappear when exposed to infrared light. The strip will be in a different position on each denomination and under natural light, it is impossible to tell where the two different green inks were used, Treasury officials say."

Maybe they mean it literally when they say machine-readable. Maybe the difference CANNOT be seen with the naked eye, even under IR light. Doesn't seem like a correct conclusion, though. >>>

Joe

MEMFest MFC

Al Glaser

You know, I think the best part of having a hobby is not what you collect but who collects it!

When it comes to collecting MPC, MFC, and WWII related I don't think you could hand pick a better group of individuals. Sure I enjoy seeing all the paper money on display at Memphis, but that is not why I go. And believe me, I don't go to Port Clinton, Ohio in FEBRUARY to try to add a note to my collection. I attend mainly because of the people. This is a great group of very knowledgeable guys who will drop whatever they are doing to help answer a question. It's that exchange of information I look so forward to...of course hearing "bring your paybook" probably has a little to do with it as well.

We had two new issues of MFC distributed at Memphis. First was series 031 with MEMPHIS overprint. The series designation for the Memphis notes will be 032. Errors were in abundance, as individuals were being paid with uniface notes, inverted serial numbers, double denominations, wrong overprint, etc. Obviously, it was a last minute decision to create a Memphis series since no one at HQ told the quality control department to be on the lookout for it. No replacements for series 031 were reported....kinda ironic, don't you think?

Prior to the start of Memphis, no one knew if a MFC was planned so Dave Seelye knowing a large group of Festers were attending, decided he would produce an emergency issue of notes. Overstamped on 10 centavo Japanese invasion notes, he produced 6 denominations of provisional notes and a regular issue with the same 6 denominations overstamped with regular and UV sensitive inks. This series designation will be 033 and called "Emergency Seelyes" I assume by putting his return address on the back of the provisional notes, he expects you to sell them back to him down the road?

We need serial number data from those of you who were paid at Memphis in MFC. If David or myself did not record your serial/position numbers and errors, please send me an email at thetrader.2@cox.net . Also, if you have not yet sent serial/position number data on other Fest certificates from prior events, now would be an excellent time while you're thinking about it.

Guest editorial

It is my understanding that there are two ways to collect Fest certificates, by buying them on the open market (either directly via a participant or from a dealer) or by attending the event. While many Fest events are short in duration, a couple of days to even a couple of hours, to me, the ANA Summer Seminar is a week long event, and a person wanting those Fest notes should pay their tuition to the ANA and attend the entire event. I just don't want the educational experience of the students, especially those that are neither Festers nor Gramsters, to become secondary to the collection of the Fest notes.

Instead, perhaps the paymaster should donate a couple of complete sets to the ANA YN auction so that those not attending can have an agent purchase the notes on the secondary market for their collection.

Dear Editor,

I was just reading in today's gram about the infra red inks that Guy A. and Joe B. have been battling around for the past couple of weeks and would like to offer the following observation:

I am sure that you have heard of BluBlocker (tm) sun glasses?

Well, just look at the backs of the current $20's with these glasses on, and you can plainly see the bands of ink change color from green to black and back to green.

I don't know if this will work with other amber lens glasses or not, but if you have a set of shooters glasses with the yellow tint, give them a try. I would be interested in hearing any reports. (Guy ? ).

Dear Editor,

I have good news for subscribers using AOL! I think I have solved the reception problem. I believe the problem is the result of very aggressive spam filtering. AOL blocks millions of spam messages everyday. It is their number one customer concern right now. They are literally changing their algorithms on a daily basis. I think we have been swept up in this battle against the dark side.

I am using AOL version 8.0. Others may have to adjust accordingly. First, I went to "Mail Controls" and looked to see if I had inadvertently blocked "mpcgram@yahoo.com." I had not. But I removed (unblocked) two spam addresses that started "mp." I did this several days ago and have received the last three grams with no problems. Could just two letters be sufficient to block a message? I don't know, but cause and effect seems to indicate so.

Next, I had an on-line chat with an AOL technician. He advised me that it was possible (probable?) that one AOL subscriber blocking a message address could affect some (all?) other AOL subscribers. So, all AOL subscribers should check their spam filtering selections (there is an alphabetized list under "Mail Controls") and see if they have inadvertently blocked the gram. I also recommend doing as I did and unblock any addresses with "mp" as the first two letters.

I hope this helps,

Warner

Dear Gram,

For some strange and unexplained reason, I have started to receive the Gram, again, even tho I am an AOL user! (I did complain to the "Boss" at Memphis. Do you think....)

Len

Dear Editor,

More info about the Colorado Springs mini fest at the coin show.

Larry Gibbs

Dear Larry,

I was excited at first with your email, but I searched the mail for more info on a mini Fest and could not find any. I guess that you meant to make that a question. I too would like info on a mini Fest.

Headquarters has more than enough problems with THE fest. I hope that YOU will organize something! Please let us know the details ASAP!

Research Horizons

By Wendell Wolka

As a collector of "stuff" from the "other side" during WW2, I've always wondered why German bonds have not been considered as part of the overall coverage. I really think we're probably wrestling with semantics here, as I have several war dated bonds which logic suggests were issued to finance the war.

I would like to kick this around with other Gramsters both here and at the Summer Seminar.

As an aside, I just uncovered a collection of 54 different Lottery Tickets from the Protectorate of Bohemia-Moravia. Will not have them in time for the Seminar but I think these will break ground for a new chapter in WW2R. Another area crying for coverage is that of German lotteries run between 1933 and the introduction of the Deutsche Reichslotterie. There is a large amount of material here waiting to be researched.

Wow, it sounds like we might be making a dent in the AOL problem. It looks like complaints work. If you use an AOL address and do not receive this Gram, complain for sure. If you do receive this one, get the number ready and be ready to complain. Indeed, will one of you AOLers who have complained please send the phone number so that we can publish that too. For those who worked on this difficult problem, thanks.

Dear Warner,

Congratulations on joining the ranks of gram columnists. Good luck - that weekly deadline will seem to come every three days.

Joe

Dear Editor:

Regarding recent emails from individuals who are planning to show up (perhaps late) and be paid at the summer seminar. I fully support their proposals - even if they miss scheduled pay call.

Warner

P.S. My presence at Colorado Springs can be construed as being late for Memphis. I expect to be paid (my Memphis pay), as well.

W.

Dear W,
Good try.

Editor

Dear Editor,

WOW!!! Am I dreaming or what???? This makes 3 MPC Grams I have received this week...whatever you did...keep it up!!! WAY TO GO!!! It's great getting the Gram again!!!!

PK6

Dear Gram,
I complained to AOL: Now getting Gram again

Nick

Guess I'm confused. you mentioned the mini-fest in the last issue of the gram!

Larry Gibbs
Gering, NE

Dear Larry,

Even if I too am confused, it certainly will be my fault. When you wrote a few weeks/months ago suggesting (inquiring about) a mini Fest, we ran the letter in the Gram with a little bit of encouragement. >From there the silence was a bit thunderous. However, there is still time to salvage a mini Fest since it does not take much. Three collectors at one place meets the minimums I think. The Colorado Springs Coin Show sounds like a/the place. Two oclock in the entranceway is the time. Entry admission is a show an tell item. If you/we (or anyone else) can think of something better between then and now, we can do that too.

How does this sound? Who will attend? We will start listing Colorado mini Festers tomorrow.

My Summer Seminar Topic

by Mark "Sparky" Watson

As one of the students in the advanced Military Numismatic class at the ANA Summer Seminar, I'm responsible for putting together a study project.

Originally, I had discussed working on a bibliography of military numismatic related magazine articles since many of the journals from the period do not have a good comprehensive index. However, as this work did not involve guidance from the teachers, they directed me to come up with another project. After much soul searching, I proposed my topic as US War Bonds with the end result being an advanced stage numismatic exhibit. If all goes well, I plan on entering it at the fall Long Beach show – if they are still doing exhibits then.

At this point, my working title is "The Life Cycle of the $25 US War Savings Bond." For the exhibit, I have various applications used to buy bonds, examples of the $25 US War Bond - both large and small, and a canceled bond – small only, looking for a large example. Other items would include advertisement for war bonds, volunteer material used to sell the bonds, appreciation awards, etc. In addition to getting assistance from the teachers on how to put together the exhibit, I will do research on the various war bond drives and other aspects in order to put together the text blocks.

Judy went to Memphis with me this year. I was at Memphis I and all but three others. Two when I was out of the country and one when my father was critically ill. This was Judys second. It was also the 25th anniversary of the first!

I had a grand plan. Gene Hesslers book US Essay, Proof, and Specimen Notes was to be released at the show. The book was ready at the printing plant in Michigan and we had tickets out of Detroit.

It was a miracle. The books were on the loading dock and we arrived at the airport exactly on time. As I unloaded book cartons, exhibit materials, inventory, and minor things of that nature, Judy supervised and inventoried.

Almost immediately she demanded to know where the clothes bag was. I responded that of course I did not know and frankly did not care—I had my books. Well, as you probably can guess, she did not like that answer.

I directed the skycap and we moved toward the ticket counter. I had it all ready and was about to return to park the car when Judy arrived seemingly out of nowhere. She had been on the telephone with the Ohio and Michigan state patrols, the local (home) police, landlord, cleaning crew, county disaster relive agencies, federal marshals, and the national headquarters of six national headquarters for womens clothing stores. She proceeded to tell me that it was clear that I had maliciously disposed of her fashion wardrobe.

After a few minutes of this, the entire terminal was listening to Judy and watching me, stoop shouldered taking it in.

Eventually, I told her that she had to make up her mind if she wanted to continue berating me or go to Memphis with me and that I would need an answer when I returned from parking the car, and, oh yes, would she watch this mountain of stuff that I had there.

Well the car had been towed so I figured that it was sort of a valet parking. Judy never really decided to go, but just kept talking (?) at me as we approached the counter, then as we loaded the plane and finally as we flew to Memphis. Everyone on the flight new the entire story. Soon, everyone at the show knew the story too.

From my point of view, she should think of it as a shopping opportunity which she basically did, but still wanted me to suffer (which I also did).

At home she was not satisfied to have new clothes. She ran an advertisement in the local paper. Much to my amazement, the person called who had found the clothes bag which I had apparently left on top of the car as we drove off.

This Memphis was somewhat less eventful from the marriage relations point of view.

PS I have been negligent in not mentioning this weeks poll question. Please rush to www.papermoneyworld.net and answer the poll question before Doug Bell and Ed Beamen realize how lax I have been. Then go back late tonight and answer another poll question.

MAIL CALL

Folks,

This is a multi-purpose information and coordination message regarding the summer seminar session. I am planning to do my research/article/presentation on U.S. Savings Bonds. Larry gave me the idea. What about Series A through D? As you have no doubt already deduced, this fits nicely with my recent commitment to write a column for the Gram.

First, I am asking concurrence and/or comment from our instructors.

Second, does this conflict with the plans of any of my advanced class compatriots?

Third, I can use all the help I can get. If anyone has any information or suggestions, please bring it to the class or advise me by email.

I am looking forward to seeing most of you in Colorado Springs,

Regards,

Warner

Dear Warner,

Looks like you and Sparky can collaborate which should give us some great results. I will be sure to bring some special research material for the two of you. You can find the answer on Series A-D in this material so I will let you find and report on that.

Sure sounds like fun to me.

Editor

Dear Gram,

Want to make "showing up late" at a Minifest even more confusing? You mentioned a minifest at the Colorado Springs Coin Show at 2 PM (I assume Saturday). I hope to attend the show for a couple of hours on Friday morning as I have a 1:30 PM flight out of Colorado Springs on Friday. Would I qualify for pay?

Ron

Dear Ron,

Yikes! Arriving early for a miniFest! Makes sense to me, but what to do. The monster continues to grow.

Editor

Dear Editor,

For all you guys planning on driving days to get paid in fest money you need to think twice? I was so looking forward to my second pay at the Memphis mini fest and was never even told till after the fact that everyone was paid when I approached the paymaster in charge he handed me $12 in pay??? Was this some kind of mistake? what the heck all this hype and where's the BEEF? Not even a error note will clam this fester from bad mouthing this shortage? I was even more surprised to see that I was the only one as of yet that received this small amount what's up? A day late? and some MFC short in Michigan.

Kevin

Dear Kevin,

We feel your pain. Rookie Festers must pay their dues! But, I think that the limited edition MemFest War bond that you received should have made up for the lack of cash.

Editor/temp paymaster

Dear Editor,

Mini fest at 2 o'clock I assume you mean 1400 hours and which day Fri or Sat?? I will be there either day.

Robert

Dear Ed (we all now know what that is short for):

There was some discussion of the Colorado Springs Coin Show in issue 945 of the world acclaimed MPCgram that we all know and love, even to the extent of naming a meeting location and time, BUT alas, nowhere to be found was the DATE of the show and location (a hint would be helpful such as a convention center or hotel name). We can on the other hand paly 50 questions and possibly never find the location.

Again, as in a preceeding note.

I am sincerely yours, The MPCgram lurker.

Dear Mini Festers,

You all sure are picky. You want to know the DAY?! Looks like Saturday and 1400 to me. HOWEVER, I want to point out that I am not the organizer here. Larry Gibbs thought of this. From my view this is his show!

Editor

Anybody going to Baltimore?

Gary Lee Hicks

WWII US Internment Camps

Submitted by Warner Talso

The following article is reprinted, with permission, from The E-Sylum: Volume 6, Number 25, June 20, 2003:
an electronic publication of the Numismatic Bibliomania Society. It describes a new (to me) dimension of coins and scrip used in internment camps.

TYPES OF INTERNMENT CAMPS

Karen Ebel of New London, NH writes: "To understand the internment camps coins, background on the government's "enemy alien" program is necessary. All German, Japanese and Italians aliens (approximately 1,000,000 people) were classified as "enemy aliens" immediately following the Pearl Harbor attack.

These folks were mostly permanent resident aliens, many with families, who had immigrated here years before. As enemy aliens, they had no Constitutional protections and were subject to internment for the duration of the war if they violated any of the many restrictions on their travel/personal property rights or if they were deemed to be "potentially dangerous to the public peace." The evidentiary threshold required for internment was quite low and many were interned on the basis of suspicion of being sympathetic to Germany, some for 6-7 years.

No internee was ever convicted of anything. Most internees had no clue why they were interned and were forbidden to speak of it when they left the camps.
Many died without telling their children. To this day, the fact of the enemy alien program is largely unknown in this country. That is why few know that 11,000 Germans and 3,000 Italians were interned, but the Alien Enemies Act of 1798 remains alive and well for future use.

Back to coins. The federal government operated two distinct systems of camps during World War II. The Department of Justice (through the INS) operated a set of internment camps for German, Japanese and Italian "enemy aliens" and their families (including many American-born children). The Wartime Relocation Authority, a branch of the military, operated another set of camps exclusively for the evacuated West Coast Japanese Americans. Some West Coast Japanese did end up in the DOJ camps (pursuant to the same procedure which applied to Germans and Italians), but most were in the WRA camps. I presume that different forms of "scrip" were issued in each system of camps. I don't know anything about the WRA camps.

My father was a German enemy alien internee at the Ft. Lincoln internment camp in Bismarck, ND. His scrip is marked specifically with the name of that camp and is gray pressed paper.

On Mr. Jacobs' site is an image of Crystal City scrip which is orange:
<http://www.foitimes.com/internment/Facesplaces.htm> Scroll about halfway down the page. (A picture of my father working on the railroad while he was interned is right next to it, by the way.)

The DOJ operated a number of internment camps for German, Italian and Japanese enemy aliens throughout the country, including Ellis Island. See <http://www.foitimes.com/internment/small.htm>. (Many Germans were still held in Ellis Island up to 3 years after the war.) There may very well have been different "issues" of scrip at each camp.

Individuals held in the DOJ camps got a standard monthly payment of scrip and also were paid for work in the camps in scrip. Only scrip could be used for purchases in the camps.

Thank you to your membership for their interest in this subject. If you have any questions, please feel free to contact me through Mr. Homren (Editor of The E-Sylum). If anyone has any scrip from any of the other internment camps, I'd be interested to know about it. For further details on internment history, please see <http://www.foitimes.com/internment/gasummary.htm>.

PS: I noticed that some of your readers are in Mexico and South America. They might be interested to know that over 4,050 German Latin Americans were taken from their homes during World War II by Latin American governments at the behest of the US Government. They were brought here on US military transport ships, including over 80 German Jews. These individuals were interned here and many were then exchanged back to the Germany for American and Latin American prisoners held in Germany. It's not clear whether any Jews were sent back, but I hope not. There were also approximately 2000 Japanese Peruvians. The Japanese Peruvians sued the US Government and have received a settlement of $5000 per individual and an apology.

I am now on the road to Colorado Springs. I hope to check email along the way and will try to keep my cell phone on. I got many things done/shipped before I left. Other things I anticipate working on from the Springs (have my computer). Others will have to wait for a week. I cancelled participation in the second week because of the daunting pile of things pressing on me so it will only be one (very busy) week.

I look forward to seeing the folks at the seminar and will miss the rest of you (next year?), but there is another way to look at this. All of the current columnists will be in Colorado. If you want to read about things other than the Seminar, you better send in some material?stories, reports, questions, comment, complaints (really). Send them in.

Attention Gramsters, (If I've got the power, then here it is) The mini Fest will be at 2PM on FRIDAY July 4th (not Saturday) due to scheduling conflicts for some of the festers. Looks like we have Harold Kroll, David Seelye, me (Larry Gibbs a fest newbie) Fred? And who else? Fred said a show and tell item is your admission. That sounds good to me. Any other ideas for a brief activity?

Larry Gibbs
2003 Co. Springs mini fest chairman (by default!)

Dear Larry,
Is this what you want or do you want Fri AND Sat?

Editor

Dear Gram,
At the Memphis M2C2 meeting each FESTER present was given a FEST IV T-shirt. By now, most of the other FESTERS should have received their T-shirt. If anyone would like to purchase one, they are costing $15 (with $5 going to the Scholarship fund) and also you may want to order a Sweat Shirt - (cost $25). Again $5 to scholarship fund. Contact Doug Bell with any orders. This must be done within the next 10 days. The vendor only holds silk screen for thirty days!!

Marv Mericle

Dear Gram,

You asked who was going to be in Baltimore? I for one am looking forward to seeing all the W.W.II notes issued by Guerilla Forces in the Philippines, USAFFE, United States Forces in the Philippines, Philippine Corps/7th Military District, 109th Division USFIP, 116th Inf. Regt. USFIP, P.Q.O.G. Markings Guerillas, 11th Guerilla Div. IX Phil. Corps, USFIP Luzon USAFFE and the many Municipal notes issued by various U.S. Army officers. I feel all of these fit into the Military Currency category. Looking forward to seeing you all there at the meeting!

Thanks

John Glass

Dear Gram,

Do newbies get issued a paybook at their first mini fest? Guess we'll do two Friday and Saturday @1400 hours as per your option. See you then.

Larry Gibbs

Dear Larry,

Pay books are issued for participation in a major even? Fest/seminar.

Editor

Editor

Ref the comments Russ make about going to the ANA World Fair of Money in Baltimore, I will be there all day Thus the 31st. On Fri the 1st, all morning there is a tour to the BEP that I have signed up for. I would love to attend a Mini Fest either Thus or Fri afternoon. That would be three of us with Gary, Russ and myself, is anyone else going to be there??

Robert

Dear Editor,

After writing several e-mails about the MiniFest in Colorado Springs, it would seem to me that you would know I will be attending this event.

Harold Kroll

2004 scholarship fund
Donations of cash and numismatic material will be gladly accepted. Generally the numismatic material is auctioned at MPCFest, but might be sold via ebay or other places. Your scholarship donations help the hobby by sending qualified individuals to the ANA summer seminar military money class. Except for unavoidable charges like ebay fees, 100% of your donation goes to scholarships.

Financing War

by Warner Talso

In the MPC GRAM of June 21, 2003. Wendell Wolka questioned the definition of war bonds by wondering why German bonds have not been considered. He noted that we are probably wrestling with semantics here, he has several war dated bonds which logic suggests were issued to finance the war.

He has an excellent point. First, let us start with a definition of bonds. My dictionary says "a certificate of ownership of a specified portion of a debt due to be paid by a government or corporation to an individual holder and usually bearing a fixed rate of interest." Thus a bond is may relatively easy to label, but whether or not they are used to finance war may be subjective. I have some German Foreign Debt Bonds issued by a New York bank in 1936 (Yes, apparently there were sufficient German sympathizers at the time to make this viable). These are 10-year bonds. I can argue that by 1936 Hitler knew where he was taking the German people and this was used to support the war effort. As another example, Canadian War Saving Certificates were created in WWII as an instrument to allow the individual investor to support the war effort. Call them what you will, by the above definition they are bonds.

In the United States there is a clear distinction to war bonds. First, some history. It is generally held that Jay Cooke, an investment banker, invented the mass marketing of government bonds in the United States during the Civil War to encourage overseas investors. (Note concern over the size of the foreign held debt led to the congressional decision in 1873 to resume a de facto gold standard in 1879.) Anyway, the techniques developed for war finance during the Civil War led to the sale of Liberty Bonds in the U. S. during WWI. The public responded enthusiastically to the mass marketing of Liberty Bonds, even at below market interest rates. So a war bond can be identified by marketing (patriotism) and by features (e.g., interest rate). Both of these features were fully exploited during the bond drives of WWII. The philosophy continues today with Patriot Bonds, although there is less advertising and more competitive interest rates.

In summary, I agree with Wendell. It appears that there is a great deal of subjectivity in the definition of war bonds, except in cases such as the United States where the fund raising effort was clearly labeled.

ANA Money Museum Open Sundays

The American Numismatic Association Money Museum now is open seven days a week to accommodate a growing number of visitors.

Beginning June 29, the Money Museum, at 818 North Cascade Avenue in Colorado Springs, Colorado, will be open Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., Saturday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., and Sunday from Noon to 4 p.m. The Museum is open to the public, and admission is free.

"In the first five months of this year, we experienced a 70-percent rise in attendance over the same period last year, and visitation in 2002 was a 211-percent increase over 2001," says Curator Lawrence J. Lee. "In addition, our tours are up 77 percent over a year ago at this time. We are expecting about 28,000 people to visit the Money Museum this year, but I my estimate may be too conservative."

Currently on exhibit at the museum are:

"Rendezvous with Destiny: The Money of World War II"--reflects on how people and nations raised money to finance war machines, counterfeited it to destroy economies and fashioned their own to sustain lives. (Through August 15, 2003)

"Mountains of Money: A Colorado Story"--tells the tale of how gold and silver extracted from the mountains and minted into coins, tokens and medals in mining camps, towns and cities transformed the wilderness of the Colorado Territory into the booming Centennial State. (Through January 31, 2004)

"Harry W. Bass Jr. Collection"--presents the finest specimens from the most comprehensive collection of America's gold coinage, assembled by the late Harry W. Bass Jr. of Dallas, Texas, who, in the 1970s and '80s, was involved in the management of the Vail ski resort in Colorado and development of the nearby Beaver Creek ski resort. (Permanent, technologically enhanced exhibit)

THE INTERNATIONAL BANKNOTE SOCIETY Program for Baltimore

from Marcus Turner(marcus@papermoneyworld.net)

The International Banknote Society will be hosting an educational program during the IBNS general membership meeting at the ANA World's Fair of Money in Baltimore, Maryland, USA. This program will be given on Saturday, August 2nd at 11:00 am in room 317 of the Baltimore Convention Center.

This year's program, "Guerrilla Odds and Ends" will be presented by Larry Smulczynski. It will discuss a collector's observations and discoveries after collecting Philippine Guerrilla and Emergency notes for the past 20 years. Larry is an avid collector and researcher of World War II paper money. His enthusiasm for Philippine material including the Guerilla issues dates back to his military service in the Philippines with the United States Air Force.

This IBNS general membership meeting will be open to anyone interested in attending. Make sure to include this important and informative meeting on your schedule while in Baltimore.

=====

Well, I made it to Colorado and am already having a great time and eating too much too. That is another feature of this event! Oh well, some people must sacrifice. Have made some discoveries and had lots of fun in the first three hours. Most people have met the challenge, but a few embarrassed people did not have their challenge coins today. I anticipate they will do better tomorrow, but then I expect new blood tomorrow too! Donot leave home without it as the commercials say!

=====

Dear Editor,

I know you're on your way to the seminar. Looks like there is no way for me to get to Colorado Springs even for one day. Thought about driving, I have made it in 16 hours before, but that means three days minimum and for some unexplained reason I have all kinds of prior engagements during this time. Go figure. Have a safe trip. I look forward to hearing about the seminar in the gram, hopefully I can make next years event.

Al

Dear Seminararians,

Last minute alert for those who have not yet departed home for the ANA summer seminar: I forgot to mention bringing clothes hangers. Apparently when the students clear out of the dorms at the end of spring semester, all the wire hangers are trashed. Bring as many as you will want for your shirts and trousers.

It also would not hurt to bring hand towels; the towels provided are medium bath towel size.

Joe

Dear Gram,

You asked that those planning to attend the Mini Fest on July 4 to speak up. I'm looking forward to it as it will be my first 'Mini.' I was concerned at first when it was scheduled for Saturday as my plane was leaving early Saturday morning. I'll be there Friday with Pay Book in Hand. I also plan on attending ANA in Baltimore. Having a Mini Fest there would be great, hopefully it can be arranged on Friday Aug 1 before or after the Philippine Collectors Forum meeting.

While on the subject of attending events please add Loretta and I to MPC Fest V; whenever it is held. Have we settled on dates yet? The last thing I recall is a hint it may change due to conflicts with Maastricht. Got our Fest Shirts in the mail yesterday and we are delighted with them. We've already ordered sweatshirts too. If I remember to pack it I'll wear it to the Mini Fest.

Dick

Dear Dick,

Thanks for organizing the Baltimore mini. We will talk about it in Colorado!

Editor

Dear Editor,

Please direct this reply to John Glass

John - I will bring all of my Philippine material to the Baltimore ANA. I have quite a lot of it so stop by my table and look my stuff over. I wore a tricorne hat as a trade mark so just ask for the guy with the funny hat. If you look for me in the show directory, look for Leo May Enterprises, Inc. I will look forward to seeing you at the show. I have an isle end table. I don't know if we have met before so please identify yourself when you come to the table.

Leo May

Dear Editor,

May I come to the "minifest" at the summer seminar? I don't know if there are any special requirements. I still have my paybook and challenge coin!

Thanks,

Max Spiegel

Dear Max,

Of course you can come to the mini seminar. The only requirement for entrance is a show n tell item and as a paybook holder, you do not even need that! If you will be at the seminar, you are entitled to be paid too! Come by the finance office (class room) on Sunday about 2pm.

Editor

Dear Editor,

Friday AND Saturday is OK. I didn't know you wanted to do two. New poop! Two mini fests Friday and Saturday at 1400 hours. (Final change!) Larry

Larry Gibbs

Dear Larry,

It is now what I want. It is your miniFest!!!

Series 1944 Dinar Issued

In the opening hours of the military money seminar, Allied FesT Certificate Series 1944 dinar was issued and paid to students, faculty, and others with pay books. The exchange rate at the beginning and end of the day was one to one.

New students at the seminar started the experience by learning about pay operations. As part of the training the students practiced the ritual with training AFC. An administrative problem arose when the finance officer responsible for delivering pay books to the seminar for the new students reported that his fighter had been shot down enroute to the seminar. He narrowly escaped capture and swam to shore. Thereafter he further evaded capture by crawling several miles through gravel in cold driving rain. Through all of this he protected the pay books, but upon being rescued in a daring helicopter operation, some sinister source swapped brief cases with him and the pay books were lost. Some of the details of this story are believed to have been exaggerated, but no additional details are known.

The dinar consists of the following denominations: 1, 2, 3, 10, 20, and 30 dinar. The notes are similar in appearance to the Series 100 C yen that were eliminated a year ago at Colorado Springs.

Shortly after the issue of notes, David Klinger reported finding a 2 dinar note that had been raised to 20 dinar. Initially, students thought that it was an error, but careful examination confirms that it is a raised note. All students were warned and headquarters was warned of the problem. Rumors spread that Series 1944 might be withdrawn, but no comment was forthcoming from headquarters.

Things are really jumping here at the seminar. More news is breaking. I will not be able to keep up with it. I hope that others here will send in their reports, ideas, comments, and even complaints. For those of you not here, we need to know what is going on in your world too.

In addition to class, Joe Boling was on tap last night to perform Joe Boling, the Play and tonight is giving a seminar wide class on counterfeiting. I expect to really put him to work tomorrow!

A real highlight of the day for me was to visit the Rendezvous with Destiny World War II exhibition at the ANA museum. In spite of helping with it and talking about it here (a lot), this was my first time to see it. I was impressed--and very pleased. I am going back and will probably report in more detail at that time. The last day for the exhibit is August 15. If there is ANY way that you can get to the Springs to see it, do it!

Dear Gram,

OK, We've got the DAY and the TIME -- now all we need is the PLACE!

Dear Gail,

Darned if I know. It is at the Colorado Springs Coin Club Show in downtown Colorado Springs, but I will be darned if I know the address nor even the name of the building! We will start in the hallway!

Dear Gram,

What a great first day at the ANA Summer Seminar! Waking up at 4:00 AM to get to the airport on time was the only bad part of the day. The dreaded airport security was as bad as I was expecting and the flight were smooth most of the trip. It was great to see two young men at the foot of the escalator to Baggage Claim at the Colorado Springs Airport holding up ANA signs to greet those attending the seminar. A shuttle took me right to checking and reservations. It could not have been easier. Thank you ANA.

Spent the day getting to know the area and eating too much food at the huge spread for the welcoming buffet. The evening was topped off with Fred arranging the whole group of attendees (well over 100) just before the opening ceremony wishing Judy (the Boss) "HAPPY ANNIVERSARY" in loud unison. The evening was capped off with a Joe Boling performance of 'The Play' A must see event that was most enjoyed by all. A few pictures taken in the early morning are included.

Dick F.

Dear Dick,

Thanks for the report. Don't forget your paybook.

Editor

Dear Gram, I will be at the ANA Baltimore show on Saturday and have plans on attending Ski's lecture at 11:00 . Can we MPC Festers get together after the lecture? Gary Lee Hicks

Covering the entire World of Military Numismatics
Series 004 - Number 951      Monday June 30, 2003

New Series Dinar Issued

Series 1944A dinar was issued at the military money seminar to supplement the series 1944 already in circulation. The series is similar to series 1944 with the addition of the denomination in text in addition to numerals. This alteration was necessary because Series 1944 notes were reported that had been raised. Series 1944 continues to be accepted, but it is expected that it will be retired from circulation by attrition.

Kroll Safe

The report yesterday of Harold Kroll (not named in the report) surviving an aircraft crash and other emergencies was exaggerated according to information received today. It seems that Kroll was a terrible mess, dirty, bleeding, and exhausted. Reporters assumed that his condition was the result of enemy action. However, it is now certain that Kroll's condition was the result of dumpster diving. He attempted to recover scrap material from the military money seminar. He was successful in recovering important salvage from series 031 MFC. After release from sick call, he was the big winner at the seminar poker game crushing other Festers and strangers too.

As you can probably tell, things continue to be exciting here in Colorado. Dick Freyser and Joe Boling both reported to me that they had sent items for the Gram, but I cannot find these items in my mail boxes (admittedly rather full boxes). Joe says that his is important includes information on the YN auction here Wed. We will somehow get that information out tomorrow. Please watch for this information. Joe thinks that Gramsters will be interested in this information.

ANA SummerFest report

by Joe Boling

The non-festers attending the ANA summer seminar shake their heads and wonder how grown men can be so silly; the festers shake their heads and wonder why persons attending other classes seem to be so serious. And those on the ANA staff who know how the fest mentality works don't wonder why emotions run high when the basic course attendees get travel pay but the advanced course students do not. Related to the latter event, series 1944A MFC dinar appeared in the travel pay distribution today. This is conjectured to be a response to the recent appearance of two dinar notes raised to twenty.

Monday was the first full day of class; the basic course started with AMC (not MPC, a break from tradition, but related to the fact that the initial pay was in Allied fest certificates rather than MFC). They got as far as AMC kroner by end of the day, leaving yen for Tuesday.

The advanced course spent the morning working on a stack of Japanese and Manchou bonds; their task was to find the SB number for each piece. In the course of doing this, a glaring omission in SB was discovered; the table of numerals, denominations, and dating systems that appeared in World War II Military Currency (1978) (Appendix 1) was not carried over into World War II Remembered (1995). If you use the later book often for material bearing these attributes, and are not already comfortable with Chinese-style numerals (including their more formal forms), Xerox page 226 from 1978 insert it someplace in 1995.

In the afternoon, the four advanced course students worked on their independent research projects.

The YN auction hounds have been scouring the campus for lots for their sale Wednesday night. One significant anonymous donation, received today, is a Series 1934 $1000 Federal Reserve Note (district K, in dirty fine condition, if my quick glance at it was sufficiently discerning). An equally significant donation is a Series 1944A MFC 30 dinar note, serial number C00000001*. When asked to place an estimated value on the piece, the donor was hard pressed, since the value of the dinar had slipped to D1.5 per US$ by close of business today, and there is no guarantee that the entire series might not be replaced in a currency reform if the local economy continues to erode at this rate (an annual inflation rate of over 12,000%). The donor finally settled on $25 as an appropriate starting bid for the piece, the face value of which is $20 at this writing. I am willing to execute bids for anyone wishing to bid in absentia on this piece, but I must have instructions by email NLT midnight (local) Tuesday (joeboling@aol.com).

In news from other fronts, the finance officer was surprised to receive DFs from several advanced course students requesting conversion of series 031 MFC into dinars, on the grounds that they had just arrived in theater and needed walking-around money (their travel pay having been held up by inefficiencies in the travel computation section). Their requests were honored, but that still did not seem to generate enough cash for a poker game, as they continued to speculate on ways to create suitable exchange media for poker (the supply of cigarettes has also been constricted, by recent anti-vice policies promulgated in the theater).

Stay tuned to this station for more reasons why you should have been here.

Gram 951 was only sent out about an hour ago, but Joe was able to get his column to me so we wanted to get it out right away. In addition to the items that he told you about, an advance peek at the YN auction catalog reveals that there are some AFC dinar specimen notes. We will try to give you a detailed report tomorrow in time for you to get some bids in. Because of the timing described above, I have killed the rest of this Gram. There is no mail call or standing features.

Pay Books Arrive

The missing paybooks arrived today at the summer seminar so that the deserving students could be paid. That is the good side of the paycheck news from the seminar.

Another prominent numismatist arrived with her husband to be paid. They had their challenge coins (which they had not had a day earlier), but they only had one paycheck. The wife picked up pay by cleverly using her husbands paycheck. Then she claimed that she should be paid again. Of course she was not paid. We will not reveal the name of the wife of the president of the American Numismatic Association. (Shame, shame.)

Gramster-interest material in ANA YN auction.

By Joe Boling

OK, here's what is offered in session I of the 14th annual YN Scholarship auction at ANA summer seminar (fest-related lots only - MPC were looked at for position 8 notes but not otherwise noted; a lot of six high-bore MPC and a LOGEX note were withdrawn to be re-lotted as individual lots, and were not available for inspection tonight). What follows are direct quotes from the auction catalog.

D119. Hey David Seelye, this lot's for you! A specimen set of Allied Fest Certificates from this year's ANA Summer Seminar. The lot includes 1 & 2 Dinar notes from both Series 1944 and 1944A, along with single examples of the 3 Dinar, 10 Dinar, 20 Dinar, 30 Dinar and 50 Dinar Notes. We guarantee you will not find another set like this! (OK, so maybe "guarantee" is a strong word - you never know what Fred Schwan and Joe Boling have up their sleeves!)

D120. So maybe you got outbid on that last lot, but don't despair! Here are a few more Allied Fest Certificates - 2 10-Dinar notes (Series 1944 and Series 1944A) along with a 20-Dinar note from Series 1944A.

D121. Now for some interesting examples of specimen Allied Fest Certificates. This lot contains two notes we're not sure how to classify... Essays? Errors? First is a Series 1944 1-Dinar note which appears to have the underprinting overprinted. Also included is a 3-Dinar note which has the numeral "3" in blue. All other 3-Dinar notes this cataloguer has seen have the numeral printed in yellow.

D122. A rare example of a specimen 50-Dinar Series 1944 Allied Fest Certificate. This denomination has never been officially released into circulation.

D123. Now onto a circulation example of Allied Fest Certificates - and a replacement note at that! Series 1944A 30 Dinar note, serial number C00000001*. You know David Seelye likes serial number 1... can you outbid him?

D161. A must have souvenir card from ANA's 35th Annual Summer Seminar.

Number 000019, Post marked [sic] Jul 4, 2003 from Colorado Springs. Military Numismatics since 1930. [This is Harold Kroll's souvenir card for this event - sold for 15 dinars when issued on 30 June 3002.]

If Fred gets his inbox cleaned out enough that this message does not bounce, he will send it out in the next gram. I will extend the time I will take agent bids until 1630 local Wednesday (the sale is at 1900).

I am in sensory overload. I am having a great time and believe that most if not everyone feels the same.

There have been some notable challenge failures. In addition to the failure mentioned in the lead new story a Fester who will not be named failed to bring his coin to the Springs and by his own admission groveled to receive another one. He received another coin but has been toting beverages, ice, coolers and assorted supplies between dormitories and class rooms. He is a real MARK, but his failure has added real spark to the event.

Dear Gram,

I just put an article on Korean Propaganda Currency on the Internet. I have written on this subject three times in the past in the IBNS Journal, so this article will not be the usual in-depth piece with Pick numbers and other numismatic details. This article is written for the general reader, and in particular the psychological operations trainees at Ft. Bragg. It is a light look at a number of the banknotes we prepared for use in Korea, most all in color.

ANAFest report

By Joe Boling

The YN auction saw fierce bidding from an unexpected quarter, as class member Wendell Wolka bid to win on every lot of Allied Fest Certificates, swamping the efforts of Boling with internet bids and Mark Watson, who had a phone bidder on the other end of his cell phone throughout the short run of AFC lots.

Prices realized were (check yesterday's gram to see the contents of the lots) (there is no buyer's fee in this sale): lot D119, $725; lot D120, $130; lot D121, $250; lot D122, $225; lot D123, $250; lot D161, $70.

During the bidding, Kroll and Seeley were conspicuous in their inactivity. When the dust settled, Harold rose with a satisfied grin and said "We got 'em all." Evidently he and David had engaged Wendell to execute their bids, in an effort to avoid having other gramsters in the room run them up on their lots of interest.

A friend from Seattle shook his head at the action on these lots, saying "This is for notes that were only manufactured last week?", which I confirmed to be correct. But after all, the proceeds of this sale (just as for the proceeds of the Rendezvous with Destiny set that sold for $1400 at Fest IV) go to provide scholarships to the ANA summer seminar.

There was a new lot announced this morning in an addendum to the catalog, consisting of: a Chambliss set of replicas; a set of 681 replicas postmarked in Colorado Springs (date not specified, and I did not inspect them, but probably identical to the sets distributed to seminar members this week); a booklet of Fest IV canteen chits; and two sets of Fest IV canteen chits signed by the designer. That lot brought $15.

The MPC in lot 132, which had been re-lotted overnight, realized (I did not verify the grading, and don't know whether they were graded by the consignor or the YN catalogers):

481 first printing $10 F, $25
661 $5 choice UNC, $17.50
692 $5 F, $35
641 third printing $10 XF, $20
681 first printing $20 XF, $45
692 first printing $20 VG, $20
USAFS Series 560 LOGEX $10 CU, $12.50

As I write (nearly midnight on Wednesday), the poker game is in full swing on the patio outside my door, with AFC dinars trading hands in every pot.

The players seem to be oblivious to the potential for an imminent C-day, as the value of the dinar continues to slip (2:1 against dollars at COB today), which is causing the troops to grumble about the eroding value of their pay.

There is starting to be a buzz about the minifest scheduled for this weekend. If you are coming, remember to bring a show-and-tell item that will interest your fellow collectors.

Fest Dinar Plunges

Allied Fest dinar hit an all time low against the US dollar (and MFC 031) Wednesday with a closing rate of two dinar to the dollar. On Sunday it was one to one. The projection for Friday is that the dinar will continue to drop. Dinar users are complaining about the dropping rate and the inability to convert to a more stable money.

=====

David Klinger is a sharp eyed numismatist. I very carefully call him a numismatist here because he hardly collects MPC, but he has done more research in the past few years than anyone.

Today at the seminar he gave a great presentation on the submarine vignette used on MPC series 681 fractional notes.

However, that was minor compared to the sharp eye that he used to notice that the agricultural vignette in the tint on the back of MPC Series 701 $1 is the same as that use on the small denomination AM lire!

MAIL CALL

=====

Dear Gram,

Ref Baltimore ANA convention and Min Fest. As I mentioned earlier in a Gram, Fri morning there is a trip to the BEP and then at 1300 hrs in room 317 there is a Philippine Collectors Forum. A good time for the Mini Fest might be around 1400 hrs or right after that forum is over. I will not be able to attend anything on Sat and also from 1000-1400 on Sat is the currency auction that some Fester's may want to attend. Anyway that is just my suggestion, looking forward to arriving in CS with my paybook. Thanks for keeping us up to date even with your busy schedules.

Robert

Dear Gram,

Per your inquiry. I saw the fotos fine and the subjects never looked better, even if in a zoo!

2004 scholarship fund

Donations of cash and numismatic material will be gladly accepted. Generally the numismatic material is auctioned at MPCFest, but might be sold via ebay or other places. Your scholarship donations help the hobby by sending qualified individuals to the ANA summer seminar military money class. Except for unavoidable charges like ebay fees, 100% of your donation goes to scholarships.

C-Day!!

Allied Fest dinar Series 1944 and 1944A were invalidated by conversion on July 3.
Military Fest Certificate (MFC) Series 031 replaced the dinar series. The MFC series was first issued at MPCFest IV in March. The notes issued in Colorado were overprinted with the legend Seminar III and have an ultraviolet stamp MPC that does not appear on the original 031 notes.
It is not known at this time if the 031 notes without these extra security features are valid in Colorado, but it is believed that they are not.

Financing WarBy Warner Talso Happy 4th of July! In keeping with the spirit of this United States historical holiday, I propose an additional facet to the working definition of a war bond. That is volunteerism. Last week, one of the characteristics was patriotism. Volunteer support is closely related.
Recall the movies stars that supported the bond drives during WWII. All of Hollywood was eager to support the war effort by going on tour during the bond drives. Additionally, companies and government offices provided free support. Companies provided (and still do) a free payroll deduction plan. There were high profile drives on pay day to encourage workers to purchase E series bonds. The slogan was "everybody every payday." On the government side, bonds could be purchased in Post Offices. The Savings Bond Division of the Department of Treasury had a large contingent of volunteer workers on the staff at least through 1978. Another WWI program that was revived was the use of savings stamps to encourage and supplement bond sales. The Treasury issued stamps in the amounts of 10 cents, 25 cents, 50 cents, 1 dollar and 5 dollars. When a buyer had accumulated $18.75 worth of stamps (usually in a booklet for that purpose), the buyer exchanged them for a $25 series E bond. Children were encouraged to save "a dime at a time." Schools had a day of the week designated for stamp sales. An estimated 25 million stamps were sold. Young people volunteered to sell as well as buy stamps. Newspaper carriers at the time ('paper boys') were almost universally young people. They participated in a program to sell stamps initiated in 1941 by the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin. About 150,000 carriers, representing 900 different newspapers, sold 1,700,000 each 10 stamps or equivalent in bonds. With this kind of spirit, the series E bond became the most widely held security of all times.

We are very behind on everything! Among other problems, I could not find a copy of the boiler plate info for the Gram so this is sort of a substitute.
Have you tried to call me? I am sorry about that too. It seems that the aquatic qualities of cell phone batteries are not well understood nor documented. On the way to Colorado, my cell phone battery fell directly into my (very hot) coffee. It fried the battery. The coffee then hurt my fingers, stained my clothing (and car seat), and possibly contaminated my internal organs. You did not expect me to waste the coffee did you? The battery is dead and I have not had 12 minutes to search for one here. It has been wonderful, but dreadfully busy here!

Dear Editor,

I see from the last few Grams that the Seminar is going quite well. I would like to know, however, what the requirements are for issuance of a paybook. Must one attend a Fest or will a Mini Fest do, and did any of the events in Memphis qualify as a Mini Fest?

Roger Urce

Dear Roger,

Good question, thank you. Basically, you must attend a major fest event to receive a pay book. So far, major events are MPCFests and Military Money seminars. Of course this is subject to revision as new events are created.

Editor

Dear Freditor, Hope the seminar and other activities are going well- wish I were there too. I just wanted to add a word about the Philippine meeting at ANA on Aug. 1 since I am very much involved. It is scheduled to last at least several hours as there will be several presentations plus some exhibit items, perhaps an organizational type of session too, who knows what good may come out of all this? So if anyone wants to plan other activities they should be aware that most of Friday afternoon is most likely taken with this PI meeting. Ray Czahor, organizer of the meeting, expects at least 75 in attendance, and probably more by now as that was several weeks ago. In any case I hope a minifest can successfully be held as I would like to attend that too. See you at ANA! Neil S.

Series 4 Number 959      July 6, 2003

CSCC minifest report

by Joe Boling

Twenty five persons attended the Colorado Springs Coin Club minifest on 4 July 2003, including visitors who had not already been in town for the ANA summer seminar from as far away as Arizona, Oklahoma, and Michigan. After introductions all around, each attendee presented a show and tell item, including four YNs. The entire meeting took about ninety minutes. At its conclusion, pay was distributed, consisting of MFC series 031 overprinted CSCC (although some pieces, apparently essays, were also seen bearing an overprint "Colorado Springs"; so far, only $4 notes have been seen with this overprint).

There was not enough CSCC-endorsed currency to meet the payroll (see following report for details); MFC series 031 notes overprinted "Seminar III" were used to supplement the CSCC notes. All notes distributed at the minifest (all three overprint varieties) are postmarked "Colorado Springs CO ANA CP0 #3 USPS 4 July 2003."

It should be noted that the UV-sensitive stamp on the MFC series 031 "Seminar III" notes does not say MPC, as reported in gram 958, but ANA. All Seminar III notes distributed with the 4 July postmark that have been checked by this writer are also stamped ANA in UV-sensitive ink.

Harold Kroll distributed a modified version of his summer seminar souvenir card, showing a special block commemorating the minifest. The cards are double error pieces. Due to a misunderstanding with his manufacturer, they are printed on paper rather than card (appears to be 24# stock). In addition, the commemorative block indicates that the date of the event was 5 July, and each bears a WWII-related postage stamp postmarked 5 July 2003.

A second session of the minifest is scheduled for that date (later today as this is written).

Malfeasance in office by finance officer alleged

Participants in the summer seminar floating poker game on the night of 3 July observed examples of MFC series 031 bearing the CSCC endorsement (described in the previous report) being wagered. Investigation revealed that a member of the finance office staff had mingled finance and personal funds and had inadvertently brought CSCC notes to the poker game.

Additionally, Schwan is belived to have compormised AFC Series 1944 and 1944A by leaving the entire unissued stocks unsecured by leaving them on the desk of museum curator Larry Lee (an innocent by stander).

Two members of the seminar preferred charges against the finance officer, Fred Schwan, alleging that if he was not himself the perpetrator of this breach of regulation, he was responsible for the operations of the finance office and thus liable for its errors. Colorado Springs Marshall Gail Baker, serving in an emergency appointment as provost martial, responded to the charges by ordering Schwan into confinement in the stockade, the third floor of Loomis Hall.

However, Schwan failed to report for bed check, and was last seen packing his possessions as if preparing to flee the theater. Persons planning to participate in the 5 July minifest at the Colorado Springs Coin Club show were warned to watch for him and to alert the MPs if he should appear.

This Gram is filed from the highway. I have been able to cross three state lines in spite of an extensive drag net. Communications continue to be a problem, but even if a battery could be secured, it is believed that any transmissions would be monitored because of the outrageous charges leveled against me. The Gram will be published from various secret locations for the foreseeable future. It will not be published from the same place more than once. Additional safe houses are needed.

Dear Editor,

I thought you might find this interesting. You are not the only ones with email Newsletter deliver problems. This is from the Kim Kommando email Newsletter.

Q. Somehow, I've managed to block your weekly newsletter from my e-mail. I'm using America Online. Can you tell me how to unblock it?

A. You have a lot of company. I get messages every week about this. AOL, Yahoo! and MSN users seem to have the biggest problems. All of these systems have strong spam controls. They allow the user to specify what will be blocked. Sometimes, people accidentally block mail they would like to receive.

AOL's mail controls are easy to use. To access the settings: -On the toolbar, click Mail>>Mail Controls. Click Next--Under Set Mail Controls For, select your screen name --Select Customize Mail Controls for this Screen Name and click Next--You have five choices for mail customization. You apparently have chosen one that blocks some e-mail. I suggest you pick the third choice, which allows you to list the addresses from which you want to receive e-mail. Add these addresses for my newsletters: Click Next and you're done.

If you have accidentally blocked an address in Yahoo!, go to the Mail area and click Mail Options. Under Management, click Block Addresses. Find the address in the Remove Block box. Highlight it, and click the Remove Block button.

The procedure is similar in MSN. In the mail area, click Options. Under Mail Handling, click Block Sender. Find the address you want to unblock in the Block Sender List. Click it to highlight it, then click Remove.

CSCC minifest report - phase II

By Joe Boling

Fifteen persons attended the second phase of the Colorado Springs Coin Club minifest (organized by Larry Gibbs, who did not get credit in my previous report). The drill was the same: introductions, show and tell, BS, and paycall. The payroll this time included all varieties of MFC series 031 previously reported, enhanced by a green ANA overstamp and the addition of yet another postmark, 5 July 2003 (these notes are thus postmarked twice). It will take assiduous research to determine whether all denominations and previously known varieties of series 031 were included in the relatively small stack of notes that were available for the second day of the minifest and received the 5 July postmark.

Fester Kevin Neidy has prepared a souvenir card for the event, composed of a pulled proof intaglio eagle print (in green), enhanced with a four-color text reading MPC MINI FEST / July 4th 2003 / Colorado Springs, Colorado / Life is the gift of giving! Live! Love! And collect MPC! / Let Freedom Rule! Note the double misspelling of the reportedly spellchecked state name! The cards are serially numbered and postmarked 4 July 2003. Twenty were produced, and a donation of $20 to the fest scholarship fund (plus $1 for postage) will get one mailed to gram readers (twelve remain at this writing). If you want a specific number, email joeboling@aol.com to reserve it. Send orders and payment to: Joseph E. Boling PO Box 4718 Federal Way WA 98063-4718 Delivery will commence after I return home from the ANA summer seminar. Not all serial numbers received the complete fourth line of text, so you may receive a minor error card if you want a specific number (or if your order arrives after all of the perfect cards are sold). About nine of Harold Kroll's souvenir cards remain in Boling's hands after today's event (see yesterday's report). They are available for $10 plus $1 postage, or postfree if ordered together with the Neidy card. That payment should be made out to Harold Kroll, not to the Military Scholarship Fund.

Finance officer disappears while under charges

Chief of fest finance Fred Schwan failed to return to his arrest in quarters Saturday after being allowed to take a minifest attendee to the airport. A subsequent examination of his quarters revealed that he had taken everything but an aviation magazine, some rubber bands, and a Dry-Erase marker. No doubt he left the magazine behind so that it would appear he intended to return, but as of 2200 Saturday, no further sign of him was evident. He had deputized Warner Talso to pay the minifest attendees, and slipped away during the minifest under cover of the pay call. However, before investigators could determine where Talso was to return the undisbursed funds, he also departed the A0. No suspicion falls on Talso, but investigators would like to know whether Schwan made any arrangement to recover the residual cash.

Seminar Auction II Items

By Joe Boling

Items that will be consigned to the YN auction at the ANA summer seminar this week (lot numbers not yet assigned; auction takes place 1900 hrs 9 July (Wednesday)).

1. AFC series 1944A 1 dinar and 10 dinar, SN C6A and C10A.
2. Short set MFC series 031 with SEMINAR III overprint (no postmarks): $1 (F12A), $2 (F4B), $5 (F11A)
3. MFC series 031 "SEMINAR III" $5 note (SN F23B) with 4 July 2003 postmark (pay for Friday minifest)
4. MFC series 031 "CSCC03" $2 note (SN *6C) with 4 July 2003 and 5 July 2003 postmarks and green ANA stamp (pay for Saturday minifest)
5. Harold Kroll souvenir card for CSCC minifest (paper stock) (if won by a gramster, serial number to be negotiated based on remaining stock) (only a copy will be handled by YN auction staff, to avoid damage to the card)
6. Kevin Neidy pulled proof souvenir card for CSCC minifest (if won by a gramster, serial number to be negotiated based on remaining stock) (only a copy will be handled by YN auction staff, to avoid damage to the card)

Submit bids to me (joeboling@aol.com) by 1630 Wednesday.

=====

I was able to avoid all road blocks out of Colorado, Kansas, Missouri, Illinois, and Indiana. Upon reaching Fest headquarters (rear), I was able to obtain asylum from the outrageous charges leveled by Festers in Colorado who apparently did not receive the Fest notes that they wanted for their collections! Although the charges are ridiculous (but mostly true), I was able to receive protection only because I had a get-out-of-jail free card issued by a courteous bail bondsman and poker player in Colorado named Bob.

Dear Editor,

I have a pair of end boards from one of the "bricks" sold as part of the last MoD sell-off of redundant BAFSVs.

They were used for the BAFSV, 2nd series £1 with serial numbers AA/9 513001 TO AA/9 514000. They have been carefully removed from the "brick" by simply cutting one tape. I now possess both boards connected by the tape, and with an intact TdLR wax seal. One board has the four pencil signatures on the form giving the issue and serial number details.

I also possess on of the notes from this "brick"; AA/9 513052. I have mounted and framed all these items, both for display (out of direct sunlight) and to protect the tape and wax seal.

Regards, A. M. C.

MFC Update

By Al Glaser

Now that the Seminararians have had a chance to return home and while you are organizing all the varieties of AFC/MFC received, please take a moment to record serial numbers, position numbers, overprint colors, any errors or anomalies and send to thetrader.2@cox.net. Your help is needed more than ever as the Finance Department created more varieties than any other event. Scans of errors and anomalies in jpeg format would be much appreciated for insertion in the new book pages. This plea for help is also directed at those lucky individuals who attended the mini Fest in Colorado Springs on Friday and Saturday.

The accusations against the Finance Department and specifically the finance clerk are very disturbing. Lack of security at Fest HQ and the finance clerk has been a well-documented concern of many Festers since finance took over production of all Fest certificates after Fest I. However, co-mingling of personal and Fest moneys goes way beyond security concerns. This could have severe consequences when it comes to the perceived value and rarity of many Fest certificates. It is my hope the Finance clerk will come out of hiding and answer the charges. As a suggestion, the clerk should notify the provost martial that he will place himself under house arrest and confine himself to the PCBH until a formal hearing can be convened. This might be too severe a penalty, since he has not yet been found guilty of any impropriety. In addition, bail should be set at $10,000 MFC. I will be willing to act as bail bondsman for 10%, in MFC, of course (try to throw in a couple of replacements and errors). Stocks of current MFC are in all likelihood low after being paid out at the ANA seminar and mini-Fest, so coming up with the 10% bond might be difficult. If for some reason he decides to pay any part of the bond with any withdrawn issues of AFC/MFC...well you can draw your own conclusions.

Mini Fest Experiences

By Kevin Nedy

Mini fest in Colorado Springs was a great time and it was brought to my attention from Mr..S (That's Mr. Spell checker "Steve Swoish") that after all the time and planning that I put into making my first Intaglio Print fest cards for Mr..K (Harold Kroll) to pass along with his cards was a disaster! Some how I spelled "COLORADO" wrong and even my spell checker didn't catch it? So any of you that has one of these error cards and would like to send it for a replacement card that is spelled right just email me and I will arrange its recovery and replacement with a second printing of the card, (HMM is there two printings of this card?) It will be interesting to see how many will come back (for the rarer corrected card?) or to see how many are kept to rub in my face for years to come? I am hopeful that these will be as collectable as the Harold cards (He always puts out a great card! Thanks!) also I am sure Mr. H will be making a series of these intaglio printed cards soon because he has purchased one of the highly sought after printing plates to give the other Mr..S (David Seelye) a run for his money? Whom of course has cornered the printing plate market too! (no surprise) By buying and owning more plates than even I? Still it was a great and fun time as usual with lots of action at the poker table with them teaching me how to play the wild card games that only true poker champions play? These Mini fests get your blood flowing and always wanting more? Maybe there could be a Summer and a Winter fest so there isn't that big gap between the once a year fest that is already held?? Anyone else like that Idea?? Possibly we could get a bunch of charter boats and have a fishing tournament with prizes "Fish Fest Port Clinton"? Its possible? I hear Fred was a Captain at one time You've all heard his fish stories? 18lb.walleyes of the black hole! Never any photos???? Anyway my email address is kevin517@hotmail.com should you wish a return on your card sparing me future embarrassment and if there's any interest in a Summer fishing tourney I would be glad to nominate Steve as Chairmen anyone second my motion?

Glad to have gone thanks to all of you who made it a great time!

=====

=====

Fish Fest I? Yes, it can happen—and fishing has been good this year. If you are looking to catch an 18 pound walleye, you should also be sure to stop in the antique malls and shops to pick up that replacement 481 $5 and 591 25 cent that are waiting out there to be found. You could buy a lottery ticket too, but I think that you would rather have the replacements!

=====

Dear Editor,

I recently purchased from Mike Cummings a first edition of the Comprehensive Book of Military Payment Certificates by Fred Schwan. It arrived on July 7th. It is a green covered book with a series 481 $10.00 attached to a page.

The book I purchased had an inscription to Mike thanking him for help with prices in the book. It's dated April 1988 and numbered 0020.

At the MPCFEST III auction, I purchased a similar green covered 1st edition. It is interesting in that this book also is inscribed to Mike Cummings. It is dated May 1988 and numbered 0024.

This bit of information from 15 years ago, shows that the author of the book was not aware that he had already send a book to a contributor in April, so he sent another in May. This information may give some insight to the organization skills of the author.

David

Dear Editor,

In the MPCGram 763 Joe Boling refers to a cold war propaganda note he bought from Colin Narbeth. I too have an example of this piece, although I believe the same design carried three different messages, so I may not have the example that Joe has.

I have obtained a full translation of the message on my example. This revealed some interesting information. My neighbor speaks Russian and has worked in Russia for nine years, until his recent retirement.

He could not translate much of the message. He sent the Russian draft to a Russian national working in Italy. She is in her 30s and she too was unable to translate much of the Russian.

She sent it to her mother in Siberia who, with great difficulty, managed to translate it. She commented on the archaic nature of the Russian grammar used; some even predated her schooling. Were our cold war propaganda translators so old that their Russian pre-dated that then in current usage?

I attach a word file with the translation of the propaganda message on my piece; remember that this may not be the same as that on Joe's.

Regards,
Andrew M. Clark.

Series 004 - Number 962      Thursday      July 10, 2003

Summer Seminar (Fest)

Ron Waddell

Just arrived home from the ANA Summer Seminar and thought I would write while every thing is fresh in my mind. All reports start out praising the experience, which I think clouds their judgment, so I want to "tell it like it is." I hope you will print this report so they can form their own opinion. I will hold mine until the end.

The trip to Colorado Springs was uneventful (the best kind) and the ANA was right there to get us to the college. Check-in was easy and did not take long to get situated. The buffet provided by the ANA was the first indication that problems of gluttony would be a major concern.

I had planned on using the first day to visit the ANA Headquarters and Museum. But here was my first problem - for some reason I had to keep going back to the museum and library. Must be they put too much stuff there for some of us to absorb in one visit.

Sunday morning was the Annual Book Sale, which everyone says is so great. Well it is a mad house. Have to have a number (I saw one fellow waiting an hour before opening to get a number) and then everyone circles the tables and start digging. I assume they had the books stacked at first but I was No. 23 and thought I was probably in the Port Clinton "black hole." It is amazing what they will do to get your money, and they got some of mine. On Sunday and again on Monday (when they cut prices by 75%). I had planned on putting the books in my suitcase to bring home but after two days of the Book Sale, plus another purchase from the ANA's regular stock (at a 40 % discount), I had to let the ANA post office box them up and mail home.

The first session of "Military Numismatics" was Sunday afternoon and pay was the main concern. I would not say much about payday since it gets covered very well by others and seems to be blown out of proportion (were we like that in the service?).

Just a couple of incidents for the inexperienced; when we received our travel pay, I thought I had a major error when the two 10 dinar notes that I was looking at were different - one had the word "ten" spelled out, the other did not. Fred had just covered the problem of the AM Lire in class and his comment "better look closely" caused me to discover that I had to think a little about what we were studying and what he was trying to teach us. This was Series 1944A, not Series 1944.

There is an element at these events that is designed to fill in the spare time with a game called "poker." They did not tell me until afterwards that it was for "keeps." As usual, the oldtimers took the "young" recruits money (same as at Fest IV). However, I was able to recoup some of my loses from the big winner (Harold). I had traded him a #2 serial number that day (one for one) but had another, which was a star #2, which I held out for much more money. He agreed to the trade, but not before I had to withstand some serious verbal abuse (and this was "my money" he was using to pay me). Like many inexperienced recruits, I played again in the Thursday night game. Since I did not have much of the current dinar notes left (only my travel pay which I had not scrutinized yet), I got out my Series 031 extras to play with. On my first bet, I found out that this money was not current in this theatre so had to go back to my room and get the travel pay.

Actually Harold was very generous on the trade and it is a good thing since I owed Fred 5 dinar from the last pot, one of many that I had second best hand. As Fred was trying to make change for the 30 dinar I gave him, I noticed a very rare note in the notes he had in his hand but could not tell which he gave me. I could not wait to get away to see if he "screwed up" and put it in my change. HE DID. I don't want to imply that these guys have any compassion for losers in the poker game (but maybe they do).

The classes and instruction were great but I have to say there was a lot they did not cover. I think this is just an excuse to have a second class (can you imagine not being able to cover two small books like WWII Remembered and Military Payment Certificates in a few days). We covered the major currencies in detail and had many specimens to look at. However, they were just like the ones I had at home. Only difference was that these had different prefix and suffix letters (or lack thereof) and in many instances the denominations were higher than mine. He even put a set of notes out that were not completely printed. Said they were proofs of Series 661. Several guys noticed that the $10 note was very interesting, at the stage before they put the clothes on the lady.

One instructor had the audacity to sell his better notes and not have them available for our perusal. All he had was stack after stack of "lesser" value notes for us to examine. LESSER??? Hell, there were notes I had never even heard of, much less seen. And then he got out his collection of Japanese bonds - I thought I was in the Japan Finance Ministry's archives.

The YN auction was interesting and several Festers certainly supported the cause and I am sure you will hear much more from others. However, I was setting between Sparky (Mark) and Wendell. Mark kept buying lots and giving them to YN's and then Wendell (who constantly mentioned in class that he is not interested in MPC) started bidding on the MFC in the auction. It did not take long to realize that something was fishy but that is a story for someone else to tell.

I did attend one of the mini-seminars but missed out on one because it filled up before I was sure I was going and could get signed up. Consider there were about 250 attendees for the first week.

Accommodations were in the college dormitories. No air conditioning. When I was in the service, I can not remember going anywhere without my air conditioned tent. However, mother nature was nice to us and I only had to move closer to the fan on the last night. But the dry air did make life uncomfortable due to sinus problems. I did not have the sense to ask on Sunday if there was not something to relieve the discomfort. There is a saline solution nose spray that I found out about on Thursday - the next to last day. Also, the college has an exercise room but did not open it until 10 AM, too late to be of any benefit to us early risers.

I was concerned about how I could get to the Coin Show on Friday and then to the airport since the last shuttle to the airport was leaving at 10AM. I tried to get Gail to schedule some later trips but it was the 4th and drivers were not available. She said I could talk to the 10AM shuttle driver and ask to be picked up at the show but I did not find out until early Friday morning that it was Brian Fenton and I could not find him. I had decided to just wait at the dorm and take the bus to the airport, and was on the bus, when Gail said Brian was there and would take me to the show and then to the airport. It worked out great. By the way, Brian has a great "short snorter," which he shared with the class.

After all that, what is my opinion of the summer seminar - IT IS FANTASTIC. You have heard the old saying about "buy the book, then the note". I would modify that to "buy the book, attend a seminar with good instructors, and then buy the note". It is not like living in luxury but I know of no other place to get the information that was presented at this seminar (and in a very interesting way), nor see the specimens that were available at this seminar. Nothing will take the place of the annual Fests, but this is a Fest with much more detail. And the above is only part of the many happy events.

I will mention one other, something that was obvious (only because it was not obvious), and it gives a sense of the magnitude of the specimens available to see and handle. Security. The only security I saw was a couple of guys riding around in golf carts. Fred and Joe had many, many thousands (hundreds of thousands) of dollars of material in our class room. The SS Central America class had millions of dollars of gold, at least a half million at a noon time session where we could pick up the gold ingots. I did not see anyone that looked like a cop, but I was assured the security was there, it just was not seen.

One of the first things I told my wife that I was going to do when I retired, seven years ago, was to "attend the ANA Summer Seminar". Now I've finally done it, and could not ask for a better class to take. It would not be the last. I want to thank everyone that has supported the Scholarship Fund - you can't realize what value you have created, unless you experience it. See you at Fest V.

Editorial/opinion

Sometimes there are pleasant surprises. I went to work on today's Gram after missing yesterday and I found that I had a gram complete for yesterday except for this (weak) editorial! I had forgotten that I had worked on a Gram for yesterday! (That is no surprise to many/most of you). I have a Friday column from Warner waiting here, but I will put that off till Saturday along with a report from Joe on the Seminar YN auction. I have lots more to talk about, but just cannot remember what so I will try again tomorrow.

Financing War

By Warner Talso

The summer seminar is over. The seminar was great fun and the learning, sharing, and networking was intense. I discussed several topics with my fellow seminarians that are germane to this subject, particularly regarding US Bonds. We will get to that in due time. We also shared reference material and I learned of several new (to me) books on financing war. Perhaps book reports can be the topic of future columns.

I picked up several bonds that caused me to adjust my thinking of WWII regarding neutral nations. There were five European nations that were neutral, or as one source calls them "non-belligerents," because they were hardly neutral. They bent with the pressure and accommodated one side or the other depending on the situation. The first acquisition was of several Soviet-Swedish Bonds of 1942. These bonds were first discussed in Gram Number 292 of March 27, 2001, by Gramster Mikhail Istomin of Kharkov, Ukraine. These were for loans given by the Swedish government to the USSR in 1941-42 according to a credit agreement between Sweden and the USSR in September 1940. Why Sweden would loan the USSR money is unclear. Maybe Sweden wanted to balance their close trade links with nazi Germany. It remains unclear why these were not provided in a standard way by funds transfer through banks. There are two possible explanations: 1) Sweden and the USSR wanted to keep the loans confidential. And this was the easiest way to keep the secret. 2) Sweden was in doubt as for repayment and this seemed to be the best way to have some evidence to present in court. The bonds surfaced in Russia about four years ago. Their denomination was very high for that time. It is interesting to note that the interest rate was 4.5%. This appears to be quite high based on my unscientific observations. So far I have noted that the German government seems to have paid about 3.5% interest, the Canadian government about 3.0%, and the US government no more than 2.9%. Of course, the higher the interest rate, the higher the perceived risk.

The other acquisition is a certificate for five shares of The Pennsylvania Railroad Company purchased by the Swiss Bank Corporation in March of 1937. At the end of the war, The Swiss Compensation Office, acting on behalf of the Swiss Government, had to certify that no nationals of Germany or Japan had an interest in the transaction. The certification was documented by an attached certificate. These certificates are candidates for listing in the neutral section of the next WWII Remembered.

Seminar Auction Report

By Joe Boling

ANA YN benefit auction session II - prices realized for fest-related items

Again there was a mysterious bidder on the floor acting as agent for a bona fide collector of MFC, but this time average buyers were able to prevail (mostly). The following were the hammer prices for fest-related material in this sale: lot 135. AFC series 1944A 1 dinar and 10 dinar, SN C6A and C10A - $35 to the shill bidder lot 137. Short set MFC series 031 with SEMINAR III overprint (no postmarks): $1 (F12A), $2 (F4B), $5 (F11A) - $65 to a woman unknown to either of the agents representing absent bidders; this buyer seemed to be delighted in the designs independent of the significance of the notes as monetary instruments. Lot 139. MFC series 031 "CSCC03" $2 note (SN *6C) with 4 July 2003 and 5 July 2003 postmarks and green ANA stamp (pay for Saturday minifest) - $40 to a buyer prepared to spend much more. Lot 141. MFC series 031 "SEMINAR III" $5 note (SN F23B) with 4 July 2003 postmark (pay for Friday minifest) - $30 to a happy buyer who had submitted a much higher bid lot 143. Harold Kroll souvenir card for CSCC minifest (paper stock) - $10, exactly the market price for that card lot 145. Kevin Neidy pulled proof souvenir card for CSCC minifest - $20, also the market value for that card.

Both souvenir cards were won by a bidder whose objective was to support the YN program, regardless of his interest in the items being sold, so it is unknown whether he has any actual interest in becoming a gramster or fester (he bought a large quantity of material over the evening, and submitted much of it for resale near the end of the night - not including these two cards).

Hello,

I wanted to mention something I discovered while reading the July-August issue of the AARP magazine, (not my issue but a loaned issue). It contains a very interesting article about Korea. On page 48-49 there are photos of 3 guys who were in Korea during that time and are friends, the layout also has different memorabilia from the Korean War. One of the items used in the photo is a 5 cent mpc note that appears to be a 472 series. There are no numbers visible, but thought this might be of interest to other gramsters as some may be receiving this magazine. I am not a member of it, but a family member is. Hope all are getting ready to have a good safe weekend.

Sam Feedback

Kevin and all Gramsters

How about a midwinter mini fest in Orlando after the FUN show? (There is even another outfit there that prints and issues Mickey Mouse Money.) The rooms in Orlando are pretty cheap at that time. Many Festers and Gramsters come to the FUN show and could just stay on for a FEST after FUN. Lets hear from some of you out there in e-mail land.

Paymaster (NOT THE ONE WHO IS ON THE LAMB!!!)

Dear PM,

By the standards of most mini Fests, there is not a need to stay after the show to have a mini Fest. Of course it is possible to have some sort of event to follow the official FUN or even official miniFest. Frankly, FUN has been a mini Fest in everything but name for the past few years. I cannot remember if any money has been issued for a FMF (Fun Mini Fest) [Al?], but it sounds like a good thing to do. Generally, a local organizer is needed. That sounds like ye ol paymaster to me.

Rendezvous with Destiny Soars

The serial number three set of the Rendezvous with Destiny MFCs changed hands at the summer seminar for an undisclosed amount. The special commemorative military fest certificates for the opening of the ANA Museums Rendezvous with Destiny exhibit in 2002 were issued to people who attended the event. Visitors who were holders of Fest pay books were paid a set of three notes. Others received a single note.

Since the event, collectors of MFC have keenly sought sets (and individual notes). The serial number two set sold at MPCFest IV in 2003. Later it was traded for the number one set. In addition to the number three set at the seminar, unconfirmed rumors had two denominations with serial number 12 trading hands. Two different collectors had the 12s, one new collector bought them both.

On the Road

By Howard Daniel

I drove to Iola after Memphis and visited the folks at Krause Publications. It was a great time and I will definitely go back to work on some of their catalogs and do some research in their extensive library. Then to Grand Forks, North Dakota, to visit a Burma specialist; Gillette, Wyoming to visit a Vietnam War (VNW) veteran friend of mine who owns a coin store; and Niel Nielsen in Salt Lake City to sit around and talk about Philippine numismatics. After Niel, I drove to Denver and visited George Fisher of "Fisher's Ding" fame about cash-style coins and then on to Colorado Springs to visit another VNW veteran friend.

After Colorado, my next stop was in Goodyear (near Phoenix), Arizona to visit a VNW veteran friend, but I had to cancel visiting Carl Anderson and George Notarpole in nearby Mesa because I was running out of time. My next stop was El Paso, Texas where I looked for a VNW friend but I could not find him in the telephone book. So I continued on to San Antonio and visited with another old VNW friend, and Rick Medina and his son. It was good to finally meet Rick's son and you would like their spacious store! Houston was my next stop to visit a Vietnamese numismatist but he was not available so I drove on to Longview, Texas and stayed the night. In the morning, I visited Sam Flagler, a WWII and Korean War veteran of the Navy Seebees. Did I write Navy? Sam and his wife were the last people I visited before returning to my wife's condo in McLean, Virginia, where I beat her back from her two week trip to Mumbai (old Bombay), India, by five hours. I am now trying to catch up on two tubs of mail and hundreds of emails and other obligations. Now that I am back, let's get this criminal activity taken care of!

It is time that I come to grips with the Fest Five scheduling issue. I started this mess after Fest IV when I suggested that the weekend after CPMX might not be the best time for Fest V. In part my opinion was influenced by complaints of conflicts with Long Beach and the ANA min year conventions. It was also influenced by complaints of some Festers about the weather here in Fest city at that time of the year.

The conflict situation can never be fully resolved, but we try to do our best. It turns out that in 2004, the post CPMX date does NOT conflict with Long Beach

OR with the ANA midyear (Portland, March 25-). However, the dates that I selected in April DID conflict with the Masstericht show that does have a history of participation by Festers. Finally, I was informed (incorrectly) that the post CPMX dates conflicted with the Central States show to which several Festers have strong ties. Fortunately, that problem was a false alarm.

We did receive notice from a few candidate Festers who were attracted by a later date. I hope that you will continue to consider the Fest with the March dates.

The weekend after CPMX is March 5-7. I think that this is the best time for the Fest in 2004 and ask you to accept and support that. This is not to say that the issue is not open for discussion for 2005 and beyond, but for 2004, I think that this is it. In spite of this, we (I) invite your comments (soon please).

Dear Esteemed Editor,

On July 5, I bought an issue of The Washington Times because The Washington Post was sold out at my usual source, so I could solve my daily crossword puzzle addiction.

There was an article in it on page E3; "Aussie's efforts honor Death Railway POWs by Denis D. Gray of the Associated Press. Rod Beattie has built the Thailand-Burma Railway Centre to gather together in one place all of the information and names associated with this WWII tragedy. I tried to find an email address and/or website for him and/or his centre but I could not anything. So I started looking around and found "Never Forgotten", The Newsletter of the Taiwan P.O.W. Camps Memorial Society describing Rod's work. Their website is at <http://www.powtaiwan.org/sprgsummer01/page8.htm>. But they also had a complete address for Rod's museum and an email address as follows;

The Thailand-Burma Railway Centre

Kanchanaburi, 71000, Thailand
Tel. 034 620050 Fax. 034 622975

Both of these places could be of much interest to Gramsters who collect POW "stuff" and I hope this is useful to them.

Howard A. Daniel III

Dear Gram,
I see that we can now add a new title to Schwans name - that of 'Fugitive from Justice'. Since he has now admitted to crossing state lines we can bring the FBI in on the case. I wonder what he must do to attract the CIAs attention. I guess supplying FEST funds to Ben Laden and the like would do. Howard D., with your contacts can you look into this for the good of the rest of us law abiding MPCers and report your findings to us here in the Gram?

Paymaster

Gramsters,

Do any of you have Vol 1 of Paper Money of Surinam by van Elmpt? I have checked with the ANA / IBNS Library, and they do not have a copy. Looking to borrow a copy for an article I'm writing for the gram.

Thanks,
Sparky

Dear Sparky,

There is not better way to get a letter into the Gram than to state that the purpose is ultimately to write an article for the Gram!

Covering the entire World of Military Numismatics
Series 004 - Number 965      Tuesday      July 15, 2003

GARY E. LEWIS AND WILLIAM H. HORTON JR.
ELECTED NEW ANA PRESIDENT AND VP;
THREE NEW GOVERNORS TO JOIN BOARD

A new president and vice president, and three new and four incumbents have been elected to the American Numismatic Association (ANA) nine-member Board of Governors, with 8,544 ballots cast in the biennial election.

ANA Vice President Gary E. Lewis of Cape Coral, Florida, was elected president, defeating ANA Governor Patricia A. Finner of Iola, Wisconsin. Lewis received 4,589 votes to Finner's 3,827.

In the contested election for the vice presidency, Governor William H. Horton Jr. of Keyport, New Jersey, defeated Governor Kay Edgerton Lenker of San Diego, California, by a vote of 4,391 to 3,919.

New Board members are Alan Herbert, Donald H. Kagin and Will Rossman. Incumbents re-elected are M. Remy Bourne, Arthur M. Fitts III, Barry Stuppler and John Wilson.

Lewis, a 43-year life member of the ANA, was first elected to the Board of Governors in 1995 and has served on the ANA's Audit, Finance, Exhibit, Resolutions, Mediation, Commemorative Quarter and Young Numismatists Committees. He also has served as a regional, district and club representative and is the 1979 recipient of the ANA Outstanding Adult Advisor Award.

Horton, a 31-year life member of the ANA, was first elected to the Board of Governors in 2001. The general chairman of the 2000 ANA World's Fair of Money in Philadelphia, he is a co-founder and first president of the Garden State Numismatic Association, and has served as president of a number of other clubs. Horton has served on a number of committees for the ANA and been recognized by several clubs for his outstanding contributions.

All members of the ANA Board of Governors elected this year will assume office during the Association's 112th Anniversary Convention in Baltimore, Maryland, July 30-August 3. Installation of officers will take place at the convention banquet on Saturday, August 2.

Votes garnered by the winning candidates, as tabulated by the independent accounting firm of Biggs Kofford & Company are:

- * 4,800 for M. Remy Bourne of Vadnais Heights, Minnesota
- * 4,260 for Michael S. Fey of Morris Plains, New Jersey
- * 4,799 for Arthur M. Fitts III of Framingham, Massachusetts
- * 4,576 for Alan Herbert of Belle Fourche, South Dakota
- * 5,749 for Donald H. Kagin of Tibourn, California
- * 4,195 for Bob Korver of Carrollton, Texas
- * 3,649 for Walter A. Ostromecki Jr. of Panorama City, California
- * 4,289 for Will Rossman of Estes Park, Colorado
- * 4,939 for Stuppler of Woodland Hills, California
- * 3,375 for Anthony Tumonis of Tucson, Arizona
- * 5,918 for John Wilson of Ocala, Florida

Nearly 30 percent of the eligible ANA voting membership cast ballots in this election; nearly 28 percent voted in the ANA election two years ago.

Editorial/opinion

=====

We stay way clear of national (and international) politics here at the Gram. We even try to stay out of most numismatic politics, but every now and then we just feel compelled to go there. This is one of those times.

The slate of officers elected by the ANA is an excellent one from the point of view of military money collectors and MPC collectors in particular.

Gary Lewis is an MPC collector and Gramster. Indeed, he is a former air force finance officer. Bill Horton, is a paper money fan, but I do not know if he has ever collected MPC or similar issues.

Remey Bourne on the board of directors is a Gramster, supporter, and collector of AMC. Of course John Wilson is a Gramster AND Fester so we need not say anything more about him. Don Kagin is a real MPC fan. He had his first introduction to Fest money at the recent summer seminar when he played poker with Fest money.

Frankly, I cannot attest to the real qualifications of these people nor even of the defeated candidates, but I leased and excited about this slate of officers.

=====

Dear Gram,

I was taken off the Army's Retiree Recall List just before the International Paper Money Show in Memphis a few weeks ago. This so depressed me, I withdrew from the MPC/MFC world, and I think at just about the right time. Since Memphis and to when the seminars were completed in Colorado Springs, there appears to have been some activity involving yourself and possible others that requires a Criminal Investigation Department (CID) investigation. Is there a CID within the MPC/MFC world that can respond to the many apparent valid, rather than alleged, complaints?

Howard Daniel, III

Dear Gram,

Sorry, guys - you had me all through the last two weeks. Now I'm trying to get caught up at home.
Joe

Dear Joe,

What is this caught up thing?

Editor

Dear Editor,

Hi! No Grams since #961!!!

Guy!

Dear Gram,

"Gramless" since July 9th!! NEW RECORD!!
((slackers!)) get it together!

Guy!

Dear Editor,

I have been given an MPC poster that displays eight MPC notes: series 661 $20; 481 $10; 611 $10; 681 $10; 651 $10; 591 $10; 692 $10 and 692 $20. At the top of each note it identifies as, "The Fiftieth Anniversary of the introduction of United States Military Payment Certificates". Below each note, is the same paragraph describing a brief history of MPC and is dated as ANA Sept. 16, 1996. The lower right hand corner indicates it is 113/125 and it has the ANA Seal stamped on it. The Printer is the Great Lakes Bank Note Company. My questions being; was this poster specific for the ANA show, who iniated the idea for this poster and who decided the specific series printed on the poster? Any information from the Gramster Group on this item would be greatly appreciated.

Bob Unger

Dear Bob,

Well, my favorite answer to questions is that it is in the book. In this case, the souvenir cards you mention are discussed on page 165 of the current MPC book. What you have is an uncut sheet of souvenir cards issued by the ANA in 1996 for the 50th anniversary of the introduction of MPC.

MPC Use by Retired Military Personnel

By Mike Cummings

I am in Korea at the moment. Just wanted to pass along something I heard the other day.

I was at Narita Airport waiting on my flight to Seoul and an old guy sat down next to me and we began talking. He was living in Yokosuka and retired from the navy as well as civil service. Real old and literally had to yell in his ear (his batteries had run down on his hearing aid!)

We started talking about MPC as he asked if I knew about it. I smiled and said a little and told him I would like to buy any he had and he seemed to be a pack rat telling me various things he had put away.

Then we were talking about PX and Commissary privileges for retirees in Japan. I was telling him that for retirees those privileges were the compliments of the Japanese government and not really the military and he seemed surprised. I explained to him that as a retiree, in Japan on a visa, he only received those benefits because the Japanese government allowed it and it was covered in the SOFA and could be pulled anytime they wanted too. Now in Japan I explained that he no longer received APO privileges as the host government does not allow it.

This led to a very interesting thing he said and I was unaware of it but you probably are. He said years ago when he retired and they were still using MPC on base, retirees were NOT allowed to use it. Ever hear of that? Just thought I would pass it along.

Look forward to seeing everyone at the ANA.

Armed Forces Leave bonds. Do you remember those? We have discussed them a few times here. The first ever listing of these interesting items appeared on page 393 of World War II Remembered. A few examples have been found over the past decade. I received an interesting call today. It was from a staff member of some US senator. A constituent asked the senator what to do with his AFLB! Then somehow the staffer found me! Of course the question was WIIW (what is it worth). That is a difficult question to be sure, but you can also be sure that I would like to buy the item. Heck, I would just like to see it!

Dear Gramsters,

Just to let you know I have updated my web site with over 200 new notes added to my MPC listings. You can view it at www.denlys.com .

Tom Denly

Gram,

Believe it or not I just cashed in my frequent flyer miles on American and got a ticket to DFW for the Dallas show. Are we doing the MPC BBQ again?

Marcus Turner

Dear Paymaster,

Could a relationship of issued AFC/MFC be established for par value in tulip bulbs on a daily basis?

Cheers,
Colin

Dear Gram,
My comments on the new dates for Fest V: Sign me up to attend.

Thanks,
Ron Waddell

Dear Gram,
I would like to thank all my fellow MPC collectors for there support during the recent ANA elections. I look forward to serving you as the next ANA President.

Gary Lewis

Still getting TWO. You will now have all the time in the world, for the next month or so, to solve this problem and I will not be reminding you about the problem every day. Val and I leave here some time tomorrow heading for Baltimore. I know some of you will think that tomorrow is very early to be heading for ANA but we have to make a side trip to California for a week of family festivities. I EXPECT that by the time I return to this computer in early August that the PROBLEM will be solved. Paymaster

Dear Editor,
I will be sending out a separate mailing to about 40 MPC collectors in the Texas area in about two weeks in conjunction with the Dallas Paper Money Show and MiniFEST. It would be very useful to have a specific date and Time for the intended event.

I will be unable to attend the Baltimore ANA event this year. For those attending, bring your MPC FEST Challenge coin (for those of you how do not keep it with them at all times). While it is not widely know yet, Don Kagin was the recipient of a challenge coin while at the ANA summer Seminar (at a game of chance with cards).

It might prove to be interesting to challenge him. With selling a famous fabricated metal disc from 1804, he should be good for a drink or two.

Matched!!!

By Bill McNease

The Database is working! I received notice from Doug Bell, system administrator (Wiz), that a note was placed on the MPC database with the same serial number (different series) that I have on one of my notes. The other individual was also notified. Negotiations are underway to put these notes together. Not only will the database put these types of notes together but there are a great many other possibilities of comparisons and matches that can happen. This is also an excellent way to safeguard your notes in the case of loss or theft.

I can think of no reason not to put your notes on the database. Instead of buying some sort of software to track your purchase, just use the database and download to your own computer, then print a hard copy. No cost involved.

The database is easy to use and it is getting better with the feedback from the users. I have to admit that the initial task of loading all my notes (over 1100) was daunting but it has been well worth the effort.

=====

Bill McNease's discovery of matching serial numbers via the MPC database is exciting. It is always exciting to find something interesting for a collection, but this goes beyond that in my opinion. This is an example of using technology to further our collecting passions. Furthermore, it is one of those rare cases where we can be rewarded for doing the things that we should do anyway—enter notes in the database. Bill is absolutely correct, that entering our notes does good things: increase security, serve as a personal want/have list, AND provide research information. It is the best of all worlds. Finally, this is an example of intermittent reinforcement—the most powerful kind. Every time that you enter a number, you might get a match! It does not happen often, but it might happen every time and it might even happen two times in a row!

Please go to the database and enter your notes! It is reasonably easy and it is free.

Dear Gram,
What time is the IBNS meeting on Saturday in Baltimore??

Gary (Who has Fours?) Hicks

Editor,
I can't make the Baltimore ANA and the associated MiniFESTs scheduled, I will be jealous of the good times I'll be missing. But I will be at Dallas!!
Will there be a MPC MiniFEST Poker game on Friday night at the Dallas Lyn Knight Paper Money show?

David

Dear David,
Hm, well, if there is a poker game on Friday (and/or Saturday) night, I am sure that it will be for educational purposes only.

Financing War

By Warner Talso

The Summer Seminar may be over, but it is still a source of articles and projects. There is so much energy at the Seminar that one can hardly keep up with the flow of ideas. I was discussing the future of this column with Fred "The Delegator" Schwan and he suggested I look for some articles in a publication called the "Bond and Banknote News." So I descended on the ANA Library. This is great source of information and I highly recommend it if you have not availed yourself of their services. It is easily accessed through the ANA web site at www.money.org. The Head Librarian, Nancy Green, graciously led me right to the Bond and Banknote News (BBN) files. This was an interesting periodical published 3 or 4 times a year between the years of 1983 and 1991 by Squirrel Publishing Ltd., Shrewsbury, England. The magazine apparently struggled throughout its life and finally gave up in 1991 (when it was incorporated in Coin News). This was despite the Herculean efforts of the Associate Editor for Military Matters, as of 1987, Fred Schwan of Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

Keep in mind that I thought I came up with the theme for this column all by myself. Fred, The Delegator, was enthusiastic -but then, when isn't he? All Fred said was "this is an area that needs more research." Imagine my surprise when I found out that he had written a column for the BBN called, are you ready, "Financing the War." I leave it to the reader to decide if this was mere serendipity or Machiavellian manipulation. Fred wrote articles on financing war in Canada, Newfoundland (!), Australia, New Zealand, China and India. Dividing the topic by country is yet another means of parsing the subject. I will be liberally extracting information from these articles in the future for those of you who may have missed them the first time around.

Fred started his first article with a discussion of a working definition of war bonds - much as has been done here. His conclusions are not inconsistent with those expressed here. Fred's first article states that there are three purposes for selling war bonds: 1) to finance the expense of the war effort 2) to reduce the amount of money in circulation, thereby reducing the possibility of inflation (because of competition for commodities in short supply); and 3) allow the population to participate in the war effort. Very interesting. More to come.

Editorial/opinion

I had a great time at the Canadian Numismatic Association Convention in Windsor, Ontario. I think that I have enough for several Grams so it must have been a good time!

Did I tell you about Brett Irick at the seminar? At the closing banquet, after we made spectacles of ourselves with challenge coins, this fellow whom I did not know at all came up and more or less asked for a challenge coin. His name was Brett Irick. I explained that I could not really give him one, that he had to do a good deed. After a brief discussion he agreed to make a donation to the scholarship fund and I gave him a challenge coin. That was the end of it and I may have told the story before.

The end that is until I walked into registration at the CAN. Yes, there stood Brett at registration! I challenged him on the spot. He was mortified--and full of excuses. He still owes me by the way.

Within only a minute I saw Wendell Wolka sitting at a bourse table. In response to my challenge he had an innovative and creative if inadequate response. He casually reached into his pocket, withdrew, and flashed as Washington quarter as though it were a challenge coin. Good try Wendell. (Who also still owes me the drink.)

For a change both Nancy and John Wilson met the challenge! Their record has not been good, but they were ready this time. I suspect that the training may now be complete!

Tomorrow I will tell you about some other adventures and some finds.

Dear Editor,

The weekend of March 5-7 for FEST V is fine with me.

By the way, are you planning to go to Baltimore and if so will you be in disguise?

Roger

Dear Gramsters,

In response to Gary's questions on the time for the MINI Fest in Baltimore let Mini Fest were not scheduled through the ANA it is thought to schedule them at the end of meetings already being attended by Gramsters and Festers.

On Friday, August 1 at 1300 hours (AKA 1:00 PM) there is a meeting of 'Philippine Collectors Forum' in room 317, The Mini Fest will take place there following their meeting.

On Saturday, August 2 at 1100 hours (AKA 11:00 AM) the IBNS will hold their General Meeting in room 317. The Mini Fest will take place there following their meeting.

The times and rooms for these meeting were taken from the convention schedule found on the ANA Internet site www.money.org. Don't forget your Pay Books.

Dear Gram,

Just a note on a Texas poker game. Poker in Texas is legal if there is not an unfair advantage to any player. It this case, since I won't be able to attend, Harold will have an unfair advantage. Therefore, I can not condon the Poker game.

Bill McNease

AFTER THOUGHTS

By Harold Kroll

I know it has been two weeks since returning from the ANA Summer Seminar, but so much to catch up on after being gone for a week, and what a week it was. This was the second year for me as I had to pass on last years event due to circumstances beyond my control but the adrenalin was running high by the time I arrived in Colorado Springs Saturday afternoon. There were two classes this year, regular and advanced, there were 5 of us in the advanced class including Joe Boling as our instructor and 12 in the regular class with Fred Schwan as the instructor. Each class took a different approach to the content with the advanced class having to prepare a show and tell project to be presented to the regular class.

Sunday morning started with a trip to the ANA library book sale where I picked up quite a few reference books at bargain prices. Next stop, the Rendezvous With Destiny WWII exhibit at the ANA Headquarters was quite a sight to see. The "WEASAL" on display would make a great vehicle for deer hunting. The monies on display show and tell how the use of different currencies played a big part in the war efforts. If at all possible you should make an effort to view this exhibit.

A heart sinking feeling came over me on Sunday afternoon while we were eating dinner, I had been put in charge of carrying the paybooks for the new seminarians. In the course of getting ready for the trip I changed out breifcases and it hit me that I had not transferred the paybooks to the case I was taking. Sure enough on return to room and checking, no paybooks. I called my wife and asked, well pleaded, for her to get the paybooks out Monday morning via express mail. She agreed to do this and I felt some what reprieved, but then I had to face the finance officer and admit to my failure of not having brought the paybooks. After a severe tounge lashing and I lost count of the list of demerits, I was relieved of my post and other arrangements were made for payday activities.

The first day of class, Monday, started off OK with Joe assigning a project for us to do, things were going very well and then the advanced class found out that the regular class had been issued AFC training notes, denomination being in DINARS. We were told that being in the advanced class exempted us from being issued training money due to previous training. We all disagreed as we needed to be familiar with the design and denominations of the notes for future use. As you can guess our pleas were turned away. To top this off we then learned of specimen DINAR notes having been distributed to the regular class and again the advanced class was passed over, now we were discussing the thought of leaving the advanced course and attending the regular class before another note was released.

Pay call was announced and again I had to explain my incompetence to bring the paybooks to all the class and that they would be there on Tuesday by noon and they did arrive safe and sound. The class was more understanding than the chief finance officer.

Notes issued for payday were Series 1944 DINARS in the following denominations, 1, 2, 3, 10, 20, and 30 dinar. Each student was paid on a scale of how many events were attended in the past. Then the craziness starts with everyone looking for certain serial numbers, errors, and replacements. You talk about some serious trading going on, yes indeed. Many of these notes traded on a one for one basis and then it changed to a note and boot and then a note and FRNs and from there it got worse, became a challenge to acquire the notes you were seeking. These notes are also used to buy reference books, chit books for refreshments, Fest Savings Bonds, souvenir notes, a collectible in its own right and lastly to play poker with. I never played poker before betting with DINARS, different but interesting. At the time of issue, these notes were par with the dollar, 1 to 1. Inflation set in quickly and the rates for the dinar started a rapid fall in value. David Seelye listed the exchange rate of the dinar in a previous gram.

Editorial/opinion

The C.N.A. convention was great, as I said yesterday. The first think that I found was a literature dealer. I spent a long time going through his stuff. I only bought two items from him: one cheap, one not. The cheap one was a special edition of the Numismatist for October 1942. It is called Section II and convention number and titled Proceedings of the American Numismatic Association Convention 1942.

I have an interest in the war time conventions that I might have mentioned here in the Gram in the past. It (the interest) started when I found a 1942 convention medal/badge. That was the first time that I had thought about this aspect of the war. I would have guessed that there was no convention at all 1942-1945. The convention badge is decidedly an emergency product, thin and relatively poor quality. I really need more information on this medal. I have tried a little to find this info, but sure need some help.

The proceedings have lots of information even if they do not include any information that I could find on the convention medal/badge.

Concerning location for the 1943 convention Judge Moss made the following comments: My colleague and myself have carefully considered that contingency [1943 convention location] so far, we fell that the war will be over and we are going to make three suggestions as to where the next meeting place should take place, either Rome, Berlin or Tokyo.

A little later there is more serious discussion about having a convention in Chicago in 1943, but there was also discussion about not having one at all.

Prominent numismatists are mentioned for going into military service. One interesting proposal is that people who went into service could have their membership number reserved and be reinstated after returning to civilian life.

I should be able to answer many of these questions by consulting David Bowers two-volume ANA centennial history, but I cannot find it. I certainly own a set. I admit that I do not use it often, but I do have one. Wait. At this very moment I see it!

Now if I can get back to that bookshelf, I should have my answers—or at least some of them.

I made it. I have the book The war years are in volume one. The first thing that I must say is that there is more information here than I expected. I am going to have to read these years in detail. I would put the entire two volumes on my (notional) to-read list, but there is no hope that I will finish the list as it stands now—so many books, so little time.

Well, there was a convention in Chicago in 1943, but I cannot find anything on the war-years medals. Once again, I hope that someone will help. Specifically, I believe that these medals are listable for the next edition of Remembered (based upon their (apparent) emergency nature.)

MAIL CALL

Dear Gram,

Now that the date has been decided, sign me up for the big one Fest V.

Robert Drew

Dear Esteemed Editor,

I noticed a Gramster asking for the time of the IBNS meeting at the ANA.

It is at 11AM on Saturday in Room 317. The NI meeting follows it at Noon in the same room. "Paper" Gramsters are invited to the IBNS meeting and "metal" (club tokens) Gramsters are invited to the NI meeting.

You do not have to be a member to attend either meeting, and there is a show and tell part to both meetings where you can introduce yourself and describe an interesting piece for a minute or two to the other attendees. See you at the meetings, and at the NI/NBS/IBNS club table where Gramsters are welcome to visit, rest and use as a message center.

The Master Sergeant Daniel

Covering the entire World of Military Numismatics
Series 004 - Number 971      Monday      July 21, 2003

Afterthoughts continued:

By Harold Kroll

In the course of trading the new DINAR notes a fake note was found, a 2 dinar note had been raised to a 20 dinar note with the zero being much smaller than the 2. If my information is correct there were two of these notes reported. It seemed that there might be a recall of the 1944 dinar issue but none was made and everything went on like nothing happened. Classes resumed with the advanced class having the afternoons free so to speak to work on their selected projects for presentation to the regular class.

The first of several mock poker games started Monday evening under an archway between two of the dorms. All the players were from the military group to start but that did change. As folks strolled by to see what was going on at our table, you could see the strange looks on their faces as they stretched out their necks to get a good look at the currency we were using to bet with. Several asked what were the notes and we would stop the game and give a brief explanation, I think some understood and some did not. The notes did attract a lot of onlookers all through each night we played poker. I had to buy in with FRNs to play as most of you know I do collect the MFC and AFC issues so I had to keep most of what I received in pay to complete a set, this does get worse. After the nights game I came out fairly well but as previously mentioned the DINAR was losing its value against the dollar. I decided the only way to preserve some of the value of the dinar was to purchase a few of the Fest Bonds, by this time the conversion was 1.5 dinar to the dollar.

Joe had picked out several nice projects for the class and Tuesdays program was great, studying and learning about Japanese bonds. It took a while to understand how to use the catalog and look up the bonds but as he went through the program it started to click a little. Believe me, working in this area is not a simple thing to do. It is a very fascinating area of how Japan financed the war through the use of these bonds. They even had Savings Certificates which I was not aware of, I know, Fred, it is in the book. We did find an omission in the WWII book of a chart to help calculate the dates on the bonds and I'm sure it will be included in the new book. This was crash course but it sure provided more information on how to deal with this area of collecting than I knew before.

After supper we all decided to adjourn to the archway for another round of poker and the game was on again. All players returned from Monday nights game and a couple were out to get their losses back, that is what they thought anyway. Again we had onlookers trying to figure out what we were using to bet with and lots of questions were asked and answered. A few new games were introduced and it made for interesting betting. David and I butted heads in a Lo Ball game where you could keep buying an extra card after the first five cards were dealt. The kicker to this extra card was each time you bought one it went up 5 dinars starting at 5 dinars and it kept going up. Needless to say I lost that hand but learned a valuable lesson for future games.

Our class had a terrific program on detecting counterfeit notes on Wednesday morning. It is surprising what little things to look for can make all the difference in the world to aid in picking out a counterfeit note. Joe has put a collection together with a good note along with the counterfeit note. This makes it easier comparing the notes side by side. When you have the opportunity to view so many notes at one time, it is amazing how good some of these counterfeits are and then on the side how bad some of them are. The ones that are done poorly really stood out and you wonder how they were ever passed as genuine notes.

The YN Auction was held Wednesday evening and there were plenty of bidders in attendance. Of special interest to David, myself and few others were 5 lots containing various pieces of AFC dinars with Specimen stamped on them. We discussed the possibilities of bidding on these lots and chances of being run up on our bids so we decided to have an agent bid for us. After long and exhausting negotiations with Wendel Wolka he agreed to bid on our behalf for these 5 lots in the auction. There were 118 lots to be bid off before reaching lots 119 through 124. If you have never attended a YN auction, you will see some very strange and unusual bidding taking place, lots are sometimes resold several times to help raise funds, lots are won and donated to YN'S, last year a bottle of water was bid to $1,000.00. You have to be there to see what takes place, everyone gets involved. Anyway lot 119 is about to come up for auction, David and I are sitting to the back of the room, to our right is Mark Watson who now has Al Glaser on the cell phone, to our left is Joe Boling who will place bids for the Internet bidders. Lot 119 contained 9 Specimen notes with a 50 dinar note that had not been issued. Bidding started and between Mark, Joe and Wendel we sat there and watched and Wendel gave quite a show while bidding. Joe dropped out leaving Mark and Wendel to continue to the final bid of $725.00, with Wendel getting the first lot. This continued with Wendel being successful for all 5 lots. The 5 lots brought $1580.00 which we found out later was 10% of all bids made for the entire auction. One of the bidders sitting in front of Wendel made a remark, "this stuff was just made last week." Quite a few people were wondering why David and I were not bidding and finally they realized what had took place. Wendel you did a super job, thank you.

At some point in time David and I were discussing the possibility of purchasing more dinar notes from the finance office the next time it was open and he hit on an idea that worked out great. Being that we were in a different class and classroom we decided that according to the way things were done during the use of MPC that we were in a different theater of operation and should be able to convert MFC from our theater of operations to the new theater of operations. When the Finance Officer was approached with this query, he had to think about this request and after some thought he admitted that this was a very good request and it was honored. David and I agreed it was a very smooth move. The finance clerk was also amazed that such an idea was brought up, he gave a smile and also stated good move.

Travel pay call was announced after lunch and a new series was introduced, Series 1944A DINARS. The only major difference between this and Series 1944 was the addition of the denomination in text as well as numerals. This was just like the situation with Allied military lire 1944 and 1944A!

Again the frenzy of swapping and buying the new issues to complete a set had started. I was approached by one student who wanted $60.00 US for a single serial number two, 2 dinar note. He told me he was trying to recover from the previous nights poker games. We did strike a deal but not for the sixty dollars.

Thursday morning was special to me, Joe had brought his Japan bond collection with him and we all gathered around to look at each page of three oversize binders filled with more bonds than you can imagine. While he described what for and why so many bonds were issued it started bringing together the real meaning of how these wars are financed and the support from the citizens, not only in Japan but all countries involved. You have to take a few steps back and try to digest in a few hours what took place over several years, quite a task to do.

The evening poker games did draw a lot of attention, we even had a few new players sit in, Bob Evans instructor for the SS Central America course sat in several games, I do not think he did very well but he enjoyed and had a great time. Don Kagin even got hooked and bought in with FRN's, he did go away a winner in dinars. Both seemed to be intrigued by the use of this "FUNNY MONEY." It needs to be mentioned that the Finance Office made a mistake in issuing notes by mistake at one of the poker games that were intended for distribution at the Mini-Fests on Friday and Saturday with CSCC 03 overprinting, Colorado Sprigs Coin Club, but without the postmarks. This error was caught immediately but too late to correct, no one would have given up these notes anyway.

C-Day was announced to convert the dinar back to current use Series 031. Issued were Series 031 with Seminar III overprinting, here we go again with the collecting frenzy. I was lucky in cards and had a total of 250 dinar to convert, by this time the exchange rate was close to 2.75 dinar to $1.00, wound up getting $92.00 MFC on conversion, still not too bad considering it was winnings. Up to this point the amount of different issues and notes was staggering and it was not over yet. There were two more issues from the Friday and Saturday Mini-Fests, both having different date postmarks for each day. With all the many series, denominations, overprints, replacements and errors the total number of will exceed over one hundred pieces for the die-hard collector of MFC and AFC notes. There were souvenir cards issued, one for the seminar, one for the Mini-Fest on Saturday and a special hand pulled proof made by Kevin Neidy on a Spyder Press with a vignette of an eagle, nice job Kevin. There may be a few of these cards available, production was limited to 25 each. Put a request in the Gram if interested.

Some of the names, not really, and times may be changed but a week at the seminar is an adventure that is hard to describe, it is FANTASTIC. I could not finish this without saying something about the ANA providing this opportunity for all of us to enjoy such a great hobby and special thanks Gail Baker and her wonderful staff of people that makes all this come together, many thanks to y'all, See you next year.

The second (expensive) book that I bought from the used numismatic book seller was Scottish Banking, A History, 1695-1973 by G. Checkland. In 782 pages of text and wonderful illustrations, it has four pages about World War II. I figured that I just had to have this book for research for Remembered. The text is a little disappointing, but I can find a few useful sentences for our work. Thereafter I will be selling the book. Anyone interested in Scottish banking?

Dear Gram,

The IBNS meeting in Baltimore is at 1100 Saturday in room 317.

Joe

Dear Editor,

How do I get a paybook and start collecting the minifest currency sign me up for the fest in port clinton as I am in newton falls just hours away.

I will be in baltimore on wednesday to take the judging certification class.

I am working on my newton falls ohio national bank note (my magruder note) I had fun at the summer seminar with joe and wendell as my instructors.

talk to you again

edward arrich

Dear Ed,

Great, we look forward to having you at the Fest! Collecting Fest money. Hm, now that is an interesting idea. In order to get a pay book, you must attend a major event (Fest or seminar). If you can attend the mini Fests in Baltimore, you might receive some souvenir notes.

Editor
[aside, have you found any Newton Falls notes?]

The following letter from David Seelye was not intended for publication in the Gram, but the sales pitch is irresistible. --editor

Dear MPC/AMC Collector,

I will be have a bourse table at the up-coming Lyn Knight Dallas Paper Money Show August 21-24, 2004. The event is held at the Sheraton Grand Hotel 4440 W. John Carpenter Freeway Irving, TX. The auction is the catalyst for the show. There are about 30 paper money dealers in attendance.

While I'd like you to spend all of your money at my table, there will be an 3 session auction held. Thursday night's session will be of particular interest to you. A large collection of MPC, AMC, POW chits, WW2 related items assembled over many years by a dedicated collector will be the highlight of Thursday's session. The collector's name has not been featured in any of the literature associated with this sale. But it is well known by the collecting community, R.A.M. of Texas.

With the military collection as an excellent drawing card, there will be an official gathering of like minded collectors on Saturday. This will be a MPC MINIFEST. The unofficial schedule will be the same: introductions, show and tell, BS, and pay call. If you have a Pay book Bring, it along. Don't have one yet, they are issued at either MPC FEST V or ANA summer Seminar.

But you will still receive some MFC (that's Military Fest Certificates I take at par for anything on my list) if you attend.

I am asked many times if I collect MPC. No I don't, But I DO AVIDLY Collect MFC. So REMEMBER I WILL BUY/TRADE for your MFC notes! ALL Serial #1's, Replacements, errors wanted!!! $$$

This will be a Great time with 15+ other MPC Fanatics!! Fred Schwan will be there to sell and autograph his 4th edition book. Surely you can spare the time for your hobby. Please stop and introduce yourself to me. One of the great pleasures at shows is to meet and put faces with the names on my mailing list.

Sincerely,

David E. Seelye

Dear Editor,

Your tale of the Armed Forces Bond is interesting for a couple of reasons. First, I do not know what Senator's office called you, but if I were the Senator I would have that person replaced. I would hope that a Senator's office would know that questions on bonds should be referred to the Bureau of the Public Debt. Thankfully for you (if you can get it), they did not know that. Where they would have gotten the information to call you is curious, however. I hope you can track it down or at least get the information off of it including the face value.

I, too, have been chasing another AFLB. It is possible that these are the same ones. The Senator is not from Utah, is he? I have had on again off again correspondence from a gentlemen in Utah about one that is in his family. It was awarded to his mother in a divorce sometime before maturity. She never did anything with it. Since she was no longer his wife, the Bureau would not cash it. I have made an offer for it, but he has not accepted; he thinks he can get more by cashing it in. I do not know the answer to the "what is it worth" question, but I got mine off Ebay for $75.00. That was the list price and no one else bid on it in the US currency section. I suspect that they would go for a little bit more on the open market. In an otherwise arm's length transaction, I have always followed a piece of advice given to me by a wise collector friend about 10 years ago: "The seller gets paid for his expertise, and you get paid for your expertise." Sage advice from a man who bought an Alaskan seal skin note for $0.50 from a dealer's junk box.

Change of Life

By Joe Boling

Fred and I started out strong in Colorado on transferring notes from my WWII Remembered to his draft second edition, but he soon got more interested in poker, so we only got a portion of the work done. He's going to have to come out here for a couple weeks sometime to get really cracking on this project.

I had a minor epiphany while driving home from Colorado. Having had so much fun for two weeks in numismatics (though I was working like a dog the whole time I was there - no poker games for me), I realized how much I miss being able to play with my collections. I decided that I don't need to see 400+ live performances a year; 200 will do, and I can do that just going to theater 3-4 days a week (in fact, going just Thursday-Sunday for 40 weeks would probably total over 300 shows). That will leave me three or so days to do other things - like numismatics, or actually performing in shows instead of watching them. So I have started to cut back, going to a show because I really WANT to see it, not just because there is an open spot in my calendar.

And apropos of this, shortly after I got back, a theater director called and asked if I could do my one-man show in his theater's slot in the Seattle Fringe Festival this fall. I told him I'd be delighted, so I have a seven-performance run from 19-28 September. If you are going to be in Seattle in that time, let me know and I can tell you where to come see me. Yes, numismatics gets mentioned in the show - even World War II Remembered, and everyone who comes gets a wooden nickel.

I doubt that I will make the minifest on Friday next week after the PI forum, because best-of-show judging occurs on Friday afternoon, and as soon as that is finished, I have to prepare the press release naming the exhibit winners. But I usually am able to come to the IBNS meetings on Saturdays, so I will see you minifesters there. And as long as you are at the convention, don't fail to walk through the exhibit area to check out the work of other collectors. There are practically no military-related exhibits this year, but lots of other interesting material.

My next column will be filed from Baltimore (unless I get rambunctious and write one a day early).

=====
=====

I try to resist commenting in this space on articles or columns, but I cannot resist in this case. In addition, I do not have the energy at this moment to be more creative. Joe just does not appreciate the work required to play poker! Furthermore, he underestimates the value to the seminar of exercising the Fest money. Other than mission, why would I have put so much energy into the (poker) project at the seminar?

=====

Dear Gram,

I have recently attended my first Mini Fest. This event has me now faced with a few questions for the Finance Officer. I have been given some conflicting information concerning future pay. It has been established that our Pay Grade is based on the number of Fest Event we have attended. From one source I have been told that for purposes of Pay, MPC Fest Events include the annual MPC Fest, the ANA Military Numismatic Summer Seminars, and the one time Rendezvous with Destiny event held at the ANA. Mini Fest do not count as an event for MFC pay purposes.

Another source has told me that all events, to include Mini Fest events are to be counted. Could the senior Finance Officer address this question?

Another question dealing with Mini Fest events deal with our Pay Books. As requested, I brought my Pay Book to the Mini Fest in Colorado Springs. Although I stood in the Pay Line and received Pay at this event it was not logged into my Pay Book. I believe other Mini Fest events had entries logged. What is the official policy concerning Mini Fest payment? Are they to be logged? Realizing, that often payment received at Mini Fest has no value other than a souvenir of attendance that can be of value to some Festers that collect anything related to an MPC event. Again, Can the senior Finance Officer address this as well, hopefully before the next scheduled Mini Fest in Baltimore?

Dick Freyser

Dear Dick,

Judy was not available so I consulted with the chief finance officer. First there are no rules. This is an evolutionary process. The first Fest money was not issued until Fest I (and the term Fest money did not appear on the money until Fest II). Mini fests are not controlled by any central authority (as if any of this stuff were controlled by any authority). It is my vision that pay increases with each major event attended. While it was my vision that manifests would not receive an entry in the paybook, I am now leaning the other way. Even if any entry was not made, the point of presenting a pay book at the Colorado Springs mini Fest was to qualify for PAY. Those at the mini Fest without a pay book received a souvenir note, but not pay.

An interesting in between situation concerns those at the seminar, with a pay book, but not enrolled in the military seminar. These people are entitled to pay and we made entries in their books. Like I said, it is evolutionary.

Your thoughts are wanted.

Editor

Dear Editor,

I am pleased to see the change of dates for the 2004 Fest so it does not conflict with Masstricht. I sent an email about this some time back & I am not sure if it had any effect but the change to avoid the clash is most appreciative.

Cheers, Trevor

Dear Trevor,

Thanks for writing before and now too. Yes, I received your earlier letter about the conflict, but did not get around to running it (sorry). In keeping with our publication policy, when I find it, I will run it. Look for it in 2008 or 09.

Holocaust and Camp Collection to Museum

Steve Feller

Beginning August 28, the Charlton E. Meyer, Jr. and Gloria B. Meyer Collection of Holocaust and Camp Money will be exhibited at Holocaust Museum Houston. You are strongly urged to see it if at all possible. It is one of the most complete collections of this money ever assembled. It will run through November 9. On August 28 I will give an overview presentation on this collection.

The currencies of the camps of World War II speak to us of the tragedy, depravity, horror, liberation, hope and salvation of that time and those places. Many times collectors of such items have been asked why on Earth anyone would collect these monies. Or even how can you possibly tolerate collecting these currencies? The answer is that these bits of paper and metal can speak to us of the broad tragedy in a most personal and understandable manner. After all, money has been used within sight of the chimneys of Birkenau inside the barbed wire at Auschwitz.

Hold a piece of concentration camp currency from the Westerbork Transit Camp in Holland with its vignette of the main road of the camp. This road was known as the "Boulevard des Miseres," or the street of misery. One can imagine a young Anne Frank walking on it to the trains to the "East" in 1944.

Mr. Charlton E. Meyer, Jr. is a gentleman from Shreveport, LA. He discovered the existence of this money from a well-known dealer who showed him some camp scrip. The rest is a tribute to the tenacious drive of Charlton. In his own words:
"The one thing that I learned early was that nobody knew a lot about the subject and no Holocaust museums had any sort of a collection. My drive was centered on not only collecting this scrip and related areas, but to get it into a museum as a permanent exhibit -- not for any thanks but simply because it needed to be done."

Camp money from the Second World War is an enormously broad topic. Generally speaking the topic may be divided between issues of the Allied, Axis, and neutral powers. Within the Axis domain there is money from prisoner of war camps, concentration camps, ghettos, work camps, and civilian internment camps. While the money was used by all people caught up in the tragedy of the war special mention must be made of the money used in the Holocaust. As is well-known and thoroughly documented nearly 6,000,000 innocents lost their lives in mankind's most organized program of murder. Many of the examples of money in this collection silently speak of this loss. These notes move our souls to anguish. This exhibition, The Price of Existence: Ghetto Scrip from the HMM Archives bears witness to the full scope of the Holocaust through its breadth and depth.

Allied Camp money includes POW issues and internment camp notes as in the well-known issues of Camp Hay Australia, Canada, and the Isle of Man. All are in this collection. This collection includes the rarest of the rare, usually unseen notes. Examples of the rarities include the unique Natzweiler note, Sokolka Ghetto in Poland, many Auschwitz notes, many UNRRA notes, and so much more.

If there are questions please send them to me at sfeller@coe.edu.

Editorial/opinion

To me it is amazing (and wonderful) that for the second time in a year we are talking about museum openings relating directly to our specialties. Shows, even conventions, Fests, especially mini fests and even seminars in the final analysis are by, of, and for collectors. Great fun and even learning experiences, but not much out reach in them. Legitimate museums featuring numismatic material from World War II is another whole area.

If you have not been to see Rendezvous with Destiny exhibition in Colorado Springs, do so soon before it closes. Try to make it to the opening of the Meyer collection in Houston and if you cannot make the opening, try to get to the exhibition before it closes.

As for me, I plan on attending Dallas and motoring to Houston between events in the hope of finding some treasure along the highway.

I hope to see many of you at one or the other and at least some of you at both!

Dear Editor:

I enjoyed Harold's article in today's Gram about the Summer Seminar. However, I must comment on a glaring error. Allied military Lire was issued dated 1943 and 1943A. Not 1944. I was shocked to see such a basic error in as fine a technical journal as the Gram. Where is the fact-checker when you need him?

Warner

Dear Editor,

On Page 14 of the August 2003 issue of Bank Note Reporter on Page 14 is an article about the upcoming Educational Program with Larry Smulczenski speaking on "Guerrilla Odds and Ends."

It is scheduled for Saturday August 2, 2003 at 11AM in room 317 at the Baltimore Convention Center. So If you are at the ANA this year, plan to attend!

Financing War

By Warner Talso

I can not help it. Another column based on the Summer Seminar. As my project in the Advance Course. I prepared a talk on the history of the U.S. Savings Bonds. This is a continuation of information you have seen here in the past.

The modern concept of U.S. bonds was introduced in 1935. The strategy was based on the very successful mass marketing concept of the First World War. The stated purpose was threefold; instill thrift in the minds of the American public, educate the public, and bind people closer to the government. There were series A, B, C, and D bonds. Also called "Baby Bonds." They had new, at the time, features like fixed redemption value and were registered by name. They had values from $25 to $1,000, sold at 75% of value, and paid 2.9 % interest if held for 10 Years to Maturity. Mass marketing included selling bonds in Post Offices and advertising by direct mail and in magazines. Eleven million bonds were bought by two million investors. The program was hugely successful.

This led to the Series E Defense bonds introduced in June 1941. The war in Europe was threatening the United States, there was a serious concern of inflation and the government needed to raise money. The Series E bonds were similar to their predecessors. The interest rate was 2.9% if held to maturity (10 years), but now there was a graduated rate of return. The interest rate was much lower if the bond was cashed early.

Series F and G bonds were introduced at the same time. These matured after 12 years. They could be purchased only from Federal Reserve Banks or the Treasury.

The Series E bonds are still available as Series EE. Interest rates and maturity dates have evolved to be more competitive. The names have evolved to reflect the national mood. We started with Defense Bonds, then War Bonds to reflect the country at war, then Savings Bonds, Freedom Bonds, and now Patriot Bonds.

Some general characteristics of U.S. Bond have been: 1) marketing and promotion, with a strong appeal to patriotism, 2) during war, hard hitting slogans, such as "I died today, what did you do?" 3) unique features such as low interest rate, and 4) a spirit of volunteerism.

As collectibles, there is a great deal of information left to be discovered.

Editorial/opinion

Do you remember my mention of the AFLB (Armed Forces Leave Bond) that I was chasing? The office of an Eastern senator had called because a constituent was having trouble cashing his AFLB. How the staffer found me I will never know, but I was happy that she did. Well, yesterday I received a copy of the AFLB and the phone number of the owner.

The owner is the original recipient of the bond so I hope to get some info in addition to the bond. You can be sure that I will keep you informed on the progress of the negotiations, but that is not the point today.

The AFLB is exactly the same as the one on page 393 of Remembered (except the value is typed in as $100).

Here is the interesting part. The AFLB in the book is dated Jan 1945 and has a serial number of approximately 6.7 million. This new find is dated July 1946 with a serial of approximately 3.7 million. On the surface these numbers seem a little wild even though they could be as they seem but issued by different offices or separated in some other logical way. The AFLB are signed by John Snyder. As we point out in the book, he did not take office until July 1946 (coincidence). It is likely that ALL AFLBs were issued after July 1946 but were given an issue date based upon the date that the service member left the service.

I must state that this is speculation. It is not based upon British intelligence. Your thoughts and ideas on the subject will be very welcome.

Dear Editor,

After reading Gram 973 I was a little confused and had to take a few seconds to regain my thoughts, reread my article and get my bearings tightened back up as Warner had thrown me for a loop with his comments about the article I had written on the Summer Seminar. Maybe he was reading something in WWII Remembered, having spaghetti for lunch, or out in his garden picking tomatoes and thought of Italy. I don't know what inspired him or have a clue where he came up with AMC Lire, 1943 and 1943A, from reading the Summer Seminar article. The issued notes at the Summer Seminar were AFC DINARS, 1944 and 1944A not AMC LIRE. It's OK Warner, we all have our moments, I have been told it does get worse with time. What was the question again?

The Gram is and remains a fine technical journal for all who take the time to read it. Your support whether it is right or wrong, the questions, input of new information and all contributions fuels the editor to publish it every day, well almost every day. BTW, I heard a rumor that the editor was asking for a pay scale raise.

Harold Kroll

Dear Harold,

Well, you both got me confused. In going back over your articles, you do seem to have been correct, but it is a no win position for me because I should have fixed one of them before publishing. Furthermore, in reading your article more carefully because of this exchange, I found other things that I should have fixed, so I really lose all around! Oh well, the biggest advantage of being editor is that I get to have the last word or decide who does!

Editor

Dear Gram,

I will attend but I sure hope we do not have an airport shutdown. This is a terrible time to have a Fest because of the bitterly cold weather. Alaska is warmer!!!

Nick Schrier
Veteran Fester

Dear Nick,

Well, I disagree only a little. The most important disagreement is that in my opinion ANYTIME IS A GREAT TIME TO HAVE A FEST! Of course if there is only one Fest (which there is), then it can be discussed as to when is the best time. I am sure that we will continue to struggle with this idea until we have Maui Fest I.

Covering the entire World of Military Numismatics
Series 004 - Number 975 Saturday July 26, 2003

The First C-Day

By David Klinger

There has not been a lot of detail about how much MPC was issued and then destroyed in various areas. In the case of the first series of MPC, it appears that a rather large percentage of the series 461 in Europe were not accounted for, since no one knew about the concept of "C Day". These quotes, from USAREUR are from a series of volumes titled: Occupation Forces in Europe Series (this from Volume IV). These are the only two entries I found related to the introduction and destruction of the first series of MPC. The first entry was included in a long discussion about the organization and locations of various Disbursing Offices:

"Prior to the move from Paris to Friedberg, the Paris Disbursing Office had received by air from the United States $247,791,200 of military payment certificates, which were distributed to offices in the European and Mediterranean Theaters prior to "C" Day, 16 September 1946, the date on which they were exchanged for occupation currency."

A little bit later in this same volume there was an entry related to the destruction of series 461 and the introduction of series 471:

"The new series 471 military payment certificates were received early in 1947 and were distributed on 10 March 1947. All preliminary plans for the conversion were kept top secret. The superceded series 461 was called in, recorded and burned by a currency destruction committee of thirty officers under the supervision of Col. A. G. Wing. The committee verified more than $233,600,000 in notes of denominations of from five cents to ten dollars."

So, in Europe about $15 million was not accounted for during the first "C Day" (That is about 8%.) I think that on subsequent conversions there was a smaller percentage. What do you think ?

Recent reports indicate that we are having far fewer problems with AOL address, but that we might now be having some problems with earthlink addresses. I think that there is a conspiracy against our Gram. How has your Gram been? Has it been arriving consistently? Of course then again, your editor compounds the reporting problem by missing a few days here n there. We are studying some nationwide cordless internet as a possible partial solution.

=====

Dear Gram,

Your analysis about the date of issue of the AFLBs is correct. The date of issue goes back to the date of separation of the service member.

Those who had separated from service prior to the passage of the Act authorizing the bonds were able to apply for them retroactive to their date of separation. (This was reported by me in an earlier Gram.)

You will be fortunate if you end up with this piece considering it is in the hands of the original holder who has the right to cash it in. If the Senator's office knew where to send him, it would have likely been lost forever.

Jim Downey

Dear Gram,

Now I am further confused. To quote Harold's original letter, he says "Travel pay call was announced after lunch and a new series was introduced, Series 1944A DINARS. The only major difference between this and Series 1944 was the addition of the denomination in text as well as numerals. This was just like the situation with Allied military lire 1944 and 1944A!" (Italics added.) I interpret the last sentence to refer to the actual AM lire and therefore should have read "1943 and 1943A".

Warner

Dear Warner,

Well, the most interesting point might be that for most people italics and other special characters get lost in transmission of the Gram. That is why I avoid them. We even avoid or omit apostrophes and quotation marks because they frequently get translated in transmission.

Editor

Dear Gram,

Well, Steve let the cat out of the bag. The invites to the grand opening will not be mailed until Aug.5. So y'all know about it before anybody else. Be kind in your opinions since I do receive the MPC "Daily," and I may come back and haunt you about any unkind comments. It does not make much difference since I donated it to them last September. Honestly, I have no idea what it looks like now. Next, I have to go down there on August 26. Nothing like Houston in late August with the temp.and the humidity both high as all get out. I am not even sure if everything is being shown.

Oh well !!!!

Best,
Charlton

Dear Charlton,

Oh man, I feel like the weatherGram. One person complains that the weather is too cold for a Fest, another too hot for a museum opening!

Editor

Steve:

I enjoyed your article on the Holocaust Museum exhibit in the latest MPCGram. Do you mind if I reprint it in The E-Sylum? It is a weekly email newsletter I edit for numismatic literature collectors and researchers. I think my readers will find it of interest. Do you know if the museum is planning any sort of online exhibit? Thank you.

More Armed Forces Leave Bond Info

By Jim Downey

The [AFL] bonds earned 2.5% per year for five years. Interest ceased accruing upon reaching maturity. A $100.00 bond would have earned only $2.50 per year for five years for a total of $12.50 of accrued interest. In other words, a $100.00 bond has a cash value of $112.50 to someone eligible to redeem it.

A short history of the Armed Forces Leave Act of 1946 can be found at <http://www.dod.mil/prhome/N4B1.html> When you read the material on this site, you will learn that bonds were issued in $25.00 increments. This is what I suspected because all the known examples are multiples of $25.00. Service members were compensated for unused leave including BAS, BAQ, subsistence, etc. Needless to say, these amounts would not calculate to even $25.00 increments for every service member. It appears that checks were issued for the difference. I have divined this from the fact that the Treasury form for redemption also includes checks issued pursuant to the Armed Forces Leave Act and the $25.00 increments of the bonds. In other words, if a service member's eligible accrued leave benefits were $78.45; he would have been issued a $75.00 AFLB and a check for $3.45. (This probably explains the $0.40 check that I have from 1947 that indicates it was for Armed Forces Leave.) The checks would have been payable immediately (and most of them would likely have been cashed), but the bonds were not redeemable until the end of five years after the date of issue, except that bonds could be used to pay premiums, loans and interest thereon, or reserve on United States Government Life or National Service Life Insurance prior to maturity. We know the bonds are rare, how rare do you suppose the checks are? Who would have saved them?

This is a first. I started working on this Gram this evening. Then I remembered working on one this morning. I could not remember if I had sent out a Gram today. Please do not get me wrong, I do not begrudge you a bonus Gram now and then, but still, I would like to know it. I had to poke around quite a bit to determine that I had not sent a Gram.

Along a similar line (forgetfulness/old age(?)) I had another interesting experience today. I was reading Romain Probsts catalog on Luxembourgish paper money. I was checking data in Remembered and found a few little fixes. Then I came across the issues for Luxembourg prepared in Germany during the war. I thought that these were likely new listings. Then to my surprise, I found that we had them listed in the occupied governments section (see page 773).

Dear Gram,

Get two copies every day it's issued at my AOL address...but for God's sake do not try to get rid of the extra copy. You might FUBAR it. See you in Baltimore.

Wendell

Dear Gram,

I mentioned at the summer seminar that I saw a $25 Series E bond (not a War bond) on ebay that was dated June 1944. The bond is a replacement for a bond issued in June 1944 - the issue date of the replacement is Oct 14, 1953.

Also, I picked up a State of New York - $10,000 War bonus bond. It is an issue of March 1948, actually issued on Dec 15, 1950, and due January 1, 1955. It doesn't say anything about WWII but I assume it is for vetrans of WWII. Is this correct? Is this similiar to the State of Michigan "Veterans Bond" on page 395 of WWII Remembered? Thought you might have seen these.

Thanks,
Ron Waddell

Hello Ron,

Yes, we have seen the NY Vets bond and have added it to the book. Still, we only know of NY and Michigan. We need help here. David Klinger and Jim Downey ought to be able to so some magic on this score.

2004 scholarship fund

Donations of cash and numismatic material will be gladly accepted. Generally the numismatic material is auctioned at MPCFest, but might be sold via ebay or other places. Your scholarship donations help the hobby by sending qualified individuals to the ANA summer seminar military money class. Except for unavoidable charges like ebay fees, 100% of your donation goes to scholarships.

Unofficial Gram Report, KiloGram

By Ed Beaman

I felt it necessary to produce a facts & figures, report about the Gram. This becomes ever more clear, as we rapidly approach the magic "1K." Mile stones are to be shared with everyone, and I believe that in Gram 1000 everyone should get their "congratulations to Fred" sent in plenty of time to make the printing deadline. What would be great is to see #1000, be the largest Gram ever produced.

Each & every Grammster could contribute. It may even be split into "Gram 1000A" & "Gram 1000B," a second printing of sorts! I know that Fred, will be busy clearing the Yahoo mail box, as the date approaches. #1000 will be "GEM UNC" as were the 999 before...!!

Of course your ideas are always welcome. I predict the 1000th Gram to be sent on, or about August 22nd.

As of Gram #976, on 7-27-03, there have been 1006 electronic messages sent. The first was "OOPS" message sent on Monday, April 10th, 2000 at 11:44am. It had a mere 16 recipients. On Saturday, April 15th, 2000, the first numbered letter was sent. "MPC Message 1," was sent at 12:23pm. The next day, 21 recipients, received "MPC Gram #2," at 11:00am. There have been a variety of missed Grams, and many double/extra mailings, over the past 39 months. The following Grams are officially missing, and were never sent. #167, #214, #275, #291, #335, #535, #775, #782, #810, #873, #955, #956, & #957. There have been over 36 extra mailings, too many to list. The more famous Grams include, #23 & #23b "Extremely Important," #100 "Decigram", #144 "Gross Gram," #150 "Sesquicentennial Gram," #200 "Bicentennial Gram." Of course there have been countless articles of excellence and importance. When you can visit papermoneyworld.net, the MPC Grams are archived under services.

My sincere Thanks To Fred, Doug, & the MPC community for putting together a "Great" daily publication.

I can not wait for #1000.

Editorial/opinion

Ed certainly has a way with words. Did we really miss 955-957? Sure I sneak a few skips in there, but: 1) I do not expect to be caught, 2) certainly never intended nor hardly can believe that I skipped three in a row. I must have wanted to be caught.

Ed is correct, the publication of the 1000th Gram will be an important milestone and a credit to many people. (Since it will be very difficult to figure out just what number is the 1000th Gram, we will be satisfied with calling the Gram with number 1000, the 1000th Gram.) It has indeed been a team effort. Standing out in my mind are the columnists who faithfully (mostly) met deadlines and gave us great information and entertaining reading. In order of number of columns (from most to least) Joe Boling, Larry Smulczenski, Marcus Turner, and Warner Talso deserve special credit. Of course as Ed mentioned, Doug Bells wizardry has been essential to distribution, archiving and many other aspects.

Yes it would be a good idea to have kilogram be the biggest gram ever. I will try to figure out some important features for that Gram, but I will certainly be happy to have your input along that line too. Yes, everyone can participate by sending a letter. However, if we get at least two letters (total), we will not publish mere congratulatory letters. You may include the normal congratulations, but you must (please, please, please) include something else. A small point is fine. What was your favorite Gram moment, or Gram, or columnist. Or your least favorite Gram moment, or Gram, but NOT least favorite columnist. Thoughts about the future will also be appropriate. What can or should we change? I created a special address for letters and other materials intended to be published in kilogram: MPCGram1000@yahoo.com. Please send your letters, comments, features and other things that are intended for publication only kilogram to this special address.

Dear Gram,

That was a great article by Jim Downey on the Armed Forces Leave bonds.

W Talso [via IM]

Dear Gram,

At a somewhat certain time in all our lives, we become victims of CRS... [Can't Remember "Stuff"]...

Jay in Garrison, Tx, a charter member of the CRS Society...

Dear Gram,

I have a $25.00 Series E Bond dated 1944, but is not a war bond. It may very well be the one that Ron Waddell mentioned in Gram 976 since I acquired it off Ebay a few months ago. It is printed on the 1943 dated form and is identical to the war bonds except that it is without the War legend on the bottom. The date of issue is 1944, but the stamped issue date is 1953. My analysis is that the original holder either lost the war bond and this replaced it or the original holder died before maturity and this one was issued to a payable-on-death beneficiary, heir or other survivor.

Jim Downey

Dear Jim,

Thanks for the info. In addition to replacement, there is the possibility of reissue. As you know a reissue is necessary to update a bond when some critical information changes. Typically, this is the addition or removal of a beneficiary. Reissues are not made for minor clerical errors or changes of address.

On current EE (and I) bonds, it is possible to identify a reissue because it has a coded number starting RI. I was surprised (amazed) to observe that most if not all current reissues are without the PATRIOT legend. This is true even when the original bond was issued in the Patriot period. Eventually, I will have more on this.

2004 scholarship fund

Donations of cash and numismatic material will be gladly accepted. Generally the numismatic material is auctioned at MPCFest, but might be sold via ebay or other places. Your scholarship donations help the hobby by sending qualified individuals to the ANA summer seminar military money class. Except for unavoidable charges like ebay fees, 100% of your donation goes to scholarships.

State Bonuses

By Jim Downey

After many of the wars in which the United States has participated, many states governments passed bills authorizing the payment of bonuses to veterans. The bonuses were usually one-time payments of nominal amounts to show appreciation for service during the war. The states issued bonds to finance the payment of these bonuses. The Michigan and New York bonds discussed in the recent Gram were issued for that purpose. The bonds would likely have been purchased by institutional investors such as banks, brokerage houses, etc. They were not issued to veterans as payment for the bonuses like Armed Forces Leave Bonds were. As with most state issued securities, they would have formed part of a fixed-income, government issued portfolio. The bonds would have matured many years ago and those redeemed were presumably cancelled or otherwise destroyed.

At this point I have been able to determine that Washington, Montana, Oregon, New York, Michigan, Delaware and West Virginia issued bonds to finance the payment of veterans bonuses after WWII. Believe it or not, Guam apparently authorized the payment of a veteran's bonus for WWII veterans who were residents of Guam sometime in the 1990s. It does not appear that bonds were issued for them, though.

Database Coordinator Needed

By Doug Bell

Activity in the MPC database has picked up substantially since the announcement that Bill McNease had found a serial number match. This is very good news. You should enter your notes: your collection, your duplicates, your inventory.
www.papermoneyworld.net This is to the advantage of everyone.

We are missing some opportunities to gather important research data because our efforts are not coordinated. Many notes appear in public places like auctions (ebay and floor events). I know that some people record all or most of the MPC that appear on ebay. Others attend floor auctions and shows. It would be idea if we could create a system to gather the information. This could be done is several ways. The project could be divided into the parts mentioned (ebay, floor auctions, shows) or there could be some other approach.

Here is what I think that we need to do. First, gather information and ideas from readers. Second recruit a coordinator to implement the plan that we develop. The coordinator need not be the person to do all/most of the work. He/she in my view would, well, coordinate the efforts.

Please send your thoughts to the Gram.

Editorial/opinion

I feel strange. It is Tuesday of ANA Convention week. Every year for the past 30 (except for two years ago when my mother died), I have been enroute to the site of the ANA convention on this day. Often I was already there. This year I am not going to the convention (at least I do not think I am going). I do not have a big conflict and certainly have nothing against the ANA or the convention?far from it. It just boils down to that I have too much to do otherwise. I also have been getting enough numismatic stimulation of late with Memphis and the seminar. Then again, this year has the added attraction of the Medina sale in Dallas next month.

letters/submissions for Gram 1000 special double issue should be sent to MPCGram1000@yahoo.com

Dear Gram,

Thanks to Joe Boling's teaching on counterfeits, I was able to save the snack-o fund at the squadron $50. Last Monday when I came into work, I went to buy a soda. Looking in the "honor system" cash box, spotted a Series 1993 $50 bill that just wasn't up to par - paper didn't feel right and the printing was off. After taking it home and looking at it through a loupe, could readily see the printing dots from a desktop printer.

Cheers,
Sparky

Dear Gram,

My sincere thanks To Fred, Doug, & the MPC community for putting together a "Great" daily publication. I can not wait for #1000.

Gary Hansen

Dear Esteemed Editor,

I heard on the radio that Bob Hope passed away. A couple of months after Bob Hope's 99th birthday, I sent an email to him and thanked him for his service to our country, and especially to our military. I also told him that I had never seen one of his show live in Viet Nam, even though I was there six years, because I always sent one of my troops in my place. But I was guaranteed to see all of his shows in reruns for the rest of my life. His secretary sent me a reply saying that he got a kick out of my email. Tears came to my eyes because I had been able to thank this great man and give him a laugh.
The Master Sergeant Daniel

P.S. I know you want to only publish letters that relate to military numismatics but I thought you might make an exception for Bob Hope.

Howard A. Daniel III

Dear Howard,
Sorry, no exceptions.

Editor

Dear Gram,

The replacement bond (Series E 1944) Jim has is different since I bought mine from the fellow that bought it on e-bay. Interesting that they both have issue date of 1944 and reissued in 1953.

Take Care, Ron

2004 scholarship fund
Donations of cash and numismatic material will be gladly accepted. Generally the numismatic material is auctioned at MPCFest, but might be sold via ebay or other places. Your scholarship donations help the hobby by sending qualified individuals to the ANA summer seminar military money class. Except for unavoidable charges like ebay fees, 100% of your donation goes to scholarships.

Report 1 from ANA

By Joe Boling

I was talking to someone today about "when Fred gets here," and had to pull up after about three sentences and say "Oh, but Fred isn't coming."

Not much to report yet. Today was PNG day, followed by late ANA dealer set-up. The Master Sergeant arrived today, but he is not staying with me (he seems to prefer sleeping with his wife near DC for the week). I was given a ticket to the PNG banquet tonight, the first time I recall having participated in that event. It was a good meal, with two free drinks (I had only one (soft), following with water), and a lounge act that started before everyone had their dinner (an act that involved pulling audience members to the stage for a 45-minute hypnosis act, meaning that many of those participating did not get to eat their meals - not very slick on the part of the performer). Before the entertainment, PNG made a slew of awards. I was surprised to find that some of the people who were honored are names I do not know (let alone knowing the people attached to the names). Obviously my contact with mainline dealers in US material has been limited over the years.

The exhibits are mostly installed, but I have been looking at them only to check certain award eligibilities and for disqualification problems (such as the exhibit with the life-sized copy of a US note in it - since his object was to show the signatures, I had him cut off the top portion, leaving the signatures showing).

The medal for exhibitors and judges this year is gorgeous, a three-inch version of the convention medal with an inscription on the reverse linking it to the exhibiting and judging program. [Oh no! Now I really am feeling some regret. Can I judge on Saturday if I get there by 3pm? ?Ed.]

I saw only one tiny pile of military-related notes on PNG day, with nothing interesting among them (a few MPC, a few AMC). Tomorrow will see all the world PM dealers set up, but I will be much more busy on ANA-related tasks, so will get to see few dealers until Saturday/Sunday. More later in the week if something significant happens (the PI forum is Friday).

=====

The ANA Convention is now in full swing without me?how can they do that? I guess if I would show up it would help. I hope that some of you who are in attendance (or will be in the next few days) will send us reports. Your Gram needs you.

letters/submissions for Gram 1000 special double issue should be sent to MPCGram1000@yahoo.com

Dear Gram,

I attended the Shreveport Coin Show on the 26th of July and made a point about asking about Charlton E.Meyer, Jr. I did not know him but I found him and enjoyed talking with him about Camp Money. He was a very interesting man and told me a few things about Camp Ruston located close to my home. He said that he was looking forward to the opening of his exhibit at the Holocaust Museum at Houston in late August.

Before signing off, I can report that very little MPC was available in Shreveport this past weekend.

William Choate

Dear Gram,

You can remove my list of MPC Forsale from the Gram - they are all sold. The Gram does the job. Thanks. Also, that was great information on the veterans bonds in Jim's article. Do you (or Jim) know the amount of the bonus?

Thanks,

Ron

Dear Ron,

Thank you for selling your notes through the Gram. The bonuses were paid by the respective states and almost certainly for different amounts. That should be part of the research.

Editor

Dear Gram,

Due to a quirk in the rules and regs, when I returned home after Vietnam, I got a Veteran's Bonus from Louisiana and Texas. Bonds were not part of the bonus unless they were issued like municipal bonds and in that case I wouldn't know it.

I got $500 from Louisiana because I entered the Army from Louisiana. In Texas I qualified for the Texas Veteran's Land Board loans because I was born in Texas. (Just another good reason to be a Texan). The Texas loan was for $20,000 @ %4 for purchase of land.

Bill McNease

Dear Bill,

I knew that there was a reason that I did not want to play poker with you. When I got back from Vietnam I received from Ohio $600 (I am fairly sure). As with you, if bonds were sold to fund this, I do not know about them (but would like to).

Editor

Dear Editor,

What follows is a transcription of a radio spot announcement from the American Forces Vietnam Network, recorded off the air in July 1970.

"When you give MPC to a cab driver, you are not only making him very happy, you are making Charlie overwhelmed with joy. Why? Because Charlie needs money for weapons. When you pay with MPC instead of Piasters, you are giving the Viet Cong the very money he needs. You may be contributing to your buddy's funeral. Don't use MPC on the Vietnamese economy."

2004 scholarship fund

Donations of cash and numismatic material will be gladly accepted. Generally the numismatic material is auctioned at MPCFest, but might be sold via ebay or other places. Your scholarship donations help the hobby by sending qualified individuals to the ANA summer seminar military money class. Except for unavoidable charges like ebay fees, 100% of your donation goes to scholarships.

Financing War

By Warner Talso

Looking for some long-term organization to this column, I have decided to discuss financial strategy in terms of the chronology of relatively recent history. For no particular reason other than that it is interesting, let's start with the U.S. Civil War (1861-1865). This was the bloodiest and most expensive war in the history of the United States.

The financial aspects of the war were anticipated prior to the outbreak of war, as southern banks began withdrawing their deposits in New York banks, demanding payment in specie, immediately upon news of Lincoln's election to the presidency in November 1860. Thereafter the outcome of the war was very much in doubt. The North was twice the size of the South in total population and much larger than that in terms of industrial production. But the North had a constitutionally weak system of taxes and no central bank. The North feared it would not be able to finance an effective long-term campaign.

The South, by contrast, was confident that its staple crop of cotton would provide both the justifications for foreign finance and possibly foreign military intervention on its side. Both views proved very wrong in the end, but at the outset the fears of the North and the hopes of the South were not unrealistic. In the North, cost of mobilization increased enormously while revenues, mainly from customs revenues and land sales, fell sharply. Secretary of the Treasury Salmon P. Chase was responsible for the Union's various experiments in war finance (until Lincoln surprised him in 1864 by accepting his threat of resignation). Chase seemed to do everything wrong according to both economists and historians. But we know he gave us the concept of War/Savings bonds as we know it today and that is significant. Anyway, Chase is criticized for various unsuccessful efforts to sell long term debt on the New York market at unrealistically high prices until inflation and military success made his prices reasonable by 1863. The strategy seemed to be to issue currency in large amounts and then encourage people to hold it. Spending it would speed up the rate of inflation. A lasting result was a central government long-term debt widely held across the country and National Banking System -- although this did not become effective until after the war.

[Jay Cooke was the architect of the Union bond system. He is known as the financier of the Civil War (well, at least of the Union Civil War). The point of this is that Cooke was born (1821) in Sandusky, Ohio. Sandusky is twelve miles from Fest headquarters. If you are a Civil War buff, you can visit Cooke's home in Sandusky. Cook wrote an autobiography which includes many numismatic references. Among them he describes his job as a clerk in Sandusky. Part of his job was examining the variety of notes that came in and determining their value by using the bank note reporters of the time. ?Ed]

Report 2 from ANA/Baltimore

By Joe Boling

At the Numismatic Literary Guild bash this Thursday evening, Bill Fivaz received the Clemmy, the NLG's highest award for sustained achievement.

Larry Smulczenski arrived Thursday, and was seen sharing the duties at the IBNS/NI/NBS table with Howard Daniel. Tomorrow is the Philippine symposium and first minifest of this convention.

Old news, but still creating quite a buzz on the floor, is the appearance Tuesday evening of the fifth 1913 Liberty head nickel, seen with the other four specimens on Wednesday morning when the show opened. Long considered lost, the mysterious fifth nickel (the Walcott specimen) has been in the possession of the Walcott family for many years, but they believed that they had an altered date example of the elusive coin. Go to www.coinworld.com for the full story; Coin World editor Beth Deisher was instrumental in having the coin brought to the convention for authentication and a reunion with its sisters.

=====

On Tuesday Yahoo started sending me reminders per its calendar system for ANA convention events. The bad news is that that is throwing salt into the wounds. The good news is that it made me think about this calendar system. I think that it is great, but I have not heard much from you about it. <http://calendar.yahoo.com/mpcgram> Doug Bell was correct about the need for a coordinator for serial number harvesting. No one has come forward that I know of. If you do not want to volunteer yourself, do you have an idea of the idea person?

letters/submissions for Gram 1000 special double issue should be sent to MPCGram1000@yahoo.com

Dear Gram,

I also received a bonus from my home state of NH after I returned from VN. I do not remember the amount but it seems it was maybe $200. I remember thinking it was not very much. I am leaving to go back to NH and Maine for my son's wedding, so I will try to do some research on the NH bonus. I will also be visiting the ANA convention so will write about my experience there, since the editor needs some help with reporting on the ANA convention.

Robert

Dear Esteemed Editor,

David Klinger's letter about the VC needing MPC was interesting, but only partially true. The VC did have their people funnel MPCs through our deserters in Viet Nam. I seem to remember there were about 400-600 deserters in various parts of the country (mostly big cities and mostly Saigon) at the height of the war at any one time. A big part of their income to survive was getting MPCs from their "friends" and then going to the PX/BX with stolen valid ID cards and ration cards to buy particular goods for them, like alcohol that ended up in VC/NVA medical units.

No weapons because they used their own stuff. The weapons came down the Ho Chi Minh Trail (HCMT) and most other supplies, plus a good then bad then good again flow through Cambodian ports and then up to near the Vietnamese border at the end of the HCMT. The rule for the VC/NVA from Hanoi was that they would only spend RVN Dong in South Viet Nam. This originated back in 1959 when they wanted the world to believe only the Southerners were fighting the war and with no northern money around, this was one way to back up their claim. The money flow started with the very highest of the ranking RVN civilians and military taking suitcases of their Dong to Hong Kong. Money changers there converted the money at huge discounts into US$, Swiss Francs, British Pounds, etc. that were then transferred to bank accounts around the world. The money changers then sold the RVN Dong to agents for North Viet Nam for Russian and Red Chinese currencies, which were then converted to other currencies. Chinese couriers then brought the RVN Dong back into the South and it was held in their bank branches in Cholon (Saigon suburb) until it was asked for by the VC/NVA.

It was usually about 1.5 million US$ in Dong that was transferred to the VC/NVA almost every week via old ladies and men couriers who carried it in their clothes into Cambodia and turned it over to the highest NVA headquarters (COSVN) finance unit. The RVN Dong was then used by the VC/NVA to buy supplies and/or food and other necessities on the South Vietnamese markets and to pay for activities against us and the RVN military/civilians. We (our guys) broke up the flow every once in awhile but there were too many "allies" and others involved so it kept coming back into operation as soon as one part of it was shut down.

Do not ever mention that I wrote the above to anyone otherwise I have to kill you and anyone else who has read it. Well, maybe not everyone, but just those on my "list."

The Master Sergeant Daniel

2004 scholarship fund

Donations of cash and numismatic material will be gladly accepted. Generally the numismatic material is auctioned at MPCFest, but might be sold via ebay or other places. Your scholarship donations help the hobby by sending qualified individuals to the ANA summer seminar military money class. Except for unavoidable charges like ebay fees, 100% of your donation goes to scholarships.

EYES FOR THE NAVY

By Jim Downey

At the beginning of World War One, the United States Navy was unprepared for the conflict. Like the Army, the Navy was poorly trained and inadequately supplied. The Navy put out a call to civilians for donations of binoculars, spy-glasses, telescopes, sextants and chronometers. The program was called 'Eyes for the Navy' and was made the subject of a number of war posters. Thousands of Americans sent optical and navigational devices to the Navy.

The items were not exactly donated, however. Those who sent items to the Navy received a check for $1.00 from the Navy Disbursing Office as payment for their article. The check is on the standard white United States Treasury check used during the period. Treasury checks during this period had a line indicating the object for which they were drawn. The Eyes for the Navy checks identify the item donated. Accompanying the check was an unsigned letter from the Navy that read as follows:

The enclosed check, payable to your order, in the sum of $1.00, is payment in full for article purchased from you by the NAVY. However, if practicable, at the termination of the war to return same to you, the $1.00 payment will then constitute the rental price.

A complete record, giving you name (sic) and address with complete description of the article, will be kept at the Navy Department. Each article is also engraved with a number which acts as a key to designate where same is to be returned at the termination of the war. In this connection, the return may be facilitated if the Navy Department is advised as to any change in address.

The participants also received a large engraved certificate and a letter signed by the Assistant Secretary of the Navy. That letter read as follows:

Your prompt and patriotic response to the NAVY'S call for binoculars, telescopes, and spy-glasses, is most appreciated. The glasses will be very useful in the prosecution of Naval Operations until victory is won. At the termination of the war, if possible, every effort will be made to return them to you, when it is hoped that you will feel compensated for any evidence of wear, by the knowledge that you have supplied 'Eyes for the NAVY' during a very trying period. On behalf of the NAVY, I wish to thank you most heartily.

These letters are highly sought after by autograph collectors as the Assistant Secretary of the Navy during World War One was Franklin Roosevelt.

The Navy returned as many items as possible. A complete set of these items, including the binoculars, letters, check and certificate, recently appeared on an episode of the Antiques Roadshow. The appraiser passed over the check saying that it had 'some collector interest' as a financial document and put most of his appraisal towards the Roosevelt autograph.

Editorial/opinion

=====

My catalog for the Dallas Lyn Knight sale of the R. A. Medina (and others) collection arrived yesterday. Such events are virtual reenactments of Sears catalogs arriving in the West in the 1880s. Wish books inspire imagination. I have not worn out my catalog yet?but I might. Just as anticipated, it includes lots of great material for my collection. Almost certainly more than the budget will allow, but then we should not let such details get in the way (I seldom have). As usual Knight et al have done a nice/great job with the catalog. I will try to comment on some of the items in the next few days, but I also want to encourage your review of the catalog and material.

You can also review the material by visiting www.lynknight.com. I found the site responsive and better than most.

Dear Editor,

I see the Veteran's Bonds issue is taking on a life of its own. Researching them will be painstaking since the records (if they still exist) would be dispersed among the states. I will do some poking around and let you know what I find.

Jim

2004 scholarship fund

Donations of cash and numismatic material will be gladly accepted. Generally the numismatic material is auctioned at MPCFest, but might be sold via ebay or other places. Your scholarship donations help the hobby by sending qualified individuals to the ANA summer seminar military money class. Except for unavoidable charges like ebay fees, 100% of your donation goes to scholarships.

Baltimore Mini Fests Report

By Dick Freyser

I am happy to report that the two Mini Fest held at the ANA Show in Baltimore were held and that there were over a dozen participants at each. These events did not have a specific time table but were scheduled as "following" the scheduled events of the 'Philippine Forum' on Friday and the 'IBNS meeting' on Saturday.

Unbeknownst to me the Philippine Forum was scheduled from 1300 to after 1700 so rather than having a meeting, at the first break Mini Fest Pay envelopes were available to festers who presented pay books. There were a few non festers who also receive a souvenir note. I did stay for the entire 'Philippine Forum' meeting and did provide pay envelopes to festers throughout the meeting. I believe every fester in attendance received their pay on Friday.

The Saturday Mini Fest was to be held at the end of the IBNS meeting. At the end of this meeting we announced that the Mini Fest would be held in room 315 as the room we were in had another event scheduled.

Those in Attendance at this Mini Fest also received Pay Envelopes. At both Mini Fest 25 pay envelopes were mixed and each fester choose his/her envelope at random from the stack.

The pay for Friday consisted of a set of Replica MPC Series 691 with a rubber stamp on the back with 'ANA BALTIMORE 2003', 'MPC MINI FEST', 'AUGUST 1 2003'. Each note was also stamped with a six digit serial number in UV ink on the front. There were a total of 25 sets made.

For Non Pay Book holders I had prepared 100 replica MPC series 681 $1.00 note with the same markings. The only difference the date line is 'AUGUST 1&2 2003'. I have a number of these notes available. If you wish one please send a SASE and a donation check for $10 (or more) for the scholarship fund to Dick Freyser email me at dfreyser@cs.com for my snail mail address. If you were a Mini Fest attendee on Saturday, I failed to include one of these notes in the Pay envelopes, if you did not receive one and wish one please email me with your address and I will send one to you at my cost.

The pay for Saturday consisted of a set of Replica MPC Series 701 stamped like the first set except the date was 'AUGUST 2 2003'. Those in attendance on Saturday also received a set of notes made by Russ Walsh.

http://www.papermoneyworld.net/grams/ana\_baltimore.htm

All Festers should know of Russ's talents. He is the designer, of The MPC Fest IV canteen chits, the Series 031 MFC, the Fest IV T-shirt design and perhaps other Fest material I am not aware of. Russ has made a series of $1, $5, $10 and $25. Emergency Fest Payment Certificates. These beautiful official looking notes are serial numbered with a Prefix 'A' and an eight digit serial number from 1 to 25. Each note carries the printed signatures of Fred Schwan (battalion clerk) and Russ Walsh (battalion finance clerk). There is also an ANA seal circled in blue with the words 'World's Fair of Money Baltimore Maryland' and an outer circle in red with stars and "ANA July 30 - August 3, 2003' There also appears to be some micro printing under the lower left corner of the note. Too small for me to make out but I'm told by others it is 'Keystone Banknote Company'.

Printed on the back of these notes are "ANA World's Fair of Money®" (top border), and "Baltimore, Maryland 2003" (bottom border). The back field of the $1 note has the following text in 6 different languages: "This certificate good for 1 dollar in military festival certificates, and is governed under the rules and regulations of festival headquarters." Identical text is found on each note with only the value being different. The notes increase in size with the denomination and each note is a different color.

I have no doubt that these limited notes will be much sought after by MFC collectors.

In addition to the Mini Fest, throughout my two days at ANA I made challenges and received challenges from many Festers and even non-festers who had MPC challenge coins and challenged me. At different times I even challenged our ANA president and Nancy. I am happy to report that Nancy met the challenge. I am also very pleased to note that despite their heavy schedule, both John and Nancy made appearances at both Mini Fest.

Dallas BBQ

By Doug Bell

The second Dallas MPC barbeque/mini Fest will be held on Saturday from noon to about 3pm. Like last year we will have, what else, barbeque? Please send me a reservation so that I can try to figure out how many people will be there. Also please be sure to bring your paybook.

Editorial/opinion

To say that the mini Fests sound like a success is certainly an understatement at this point. It sure sounds like everyone had a good time. We look forward to some more reports.

I never finished telling you about my visit to Windsor and the Canadian Numismatic Association Convention. The most interesting actual item that I bought is not even really a numismatic item, but I think that you will like it. It is a pass issued in June 1945 for Walter Westing to visit Brussels. That is interesting. But look at the back of the pass.

<http://www.papermoneyworld.net/grams/uspash.htm>

It has no fewer than six rubber stamps applied and an additional important manuscript notation. Every one of the stamps is interesting, but some more than others. In particular the stamp pertaining to conversion is very interesting. Can you make out what Westing converted (and reconverted)? I cannot quite make it out and want your opinion before I shoot my mouth off. Then he received a partial pay of $10. I think that this is a very interesting document. Tell us what you think.

MAIL CALL

letters/submissions for Gram 1000 special double issue should be sent to MPCGram1000@yahoo.com

Dear Gram,

I would like to thank Dick and Loretta Freyser for hosting the mini-Fest at the Baltimore ANA. They worked hard to make sure that everyone got what was coming to them (take that anyway you want!) Those that had them, got their paybooks signed and those of us that didn't have one received a souvenir anyway. All who attended were good sports and, it is no wonder that the Gram and Festers are getting the reputation they deserve. (This too can be interpreted in many ways.) But most of all thanx to Dick and Loretta.

Len

Dear Gram,

Am having fun sitting here studying my Knight catalog. You are correct that it is a wish book. I am looking forward to Dallas.

2004 scholarship fund

Donations of cash and numismatic material will be gladly accepted. Generally the numismatic material is auctioned at MPCFest, but might be sold via ebay or other places. Your scholarship donations help the hobby by sending qualified individuals to the ANA summer seminar military money class. Except for unavoidable charges like ebay fees, 100% of your donation goes to scholarships.

ANA Show Report

By Roger Urce

We arrived in Baltimore mid morning on Thursday which gave us the rest of the day, all day Friday and a couple of hours Saturday morning to see the show.

Since I still collect the round metal things, I managed to add to my Buffalo Nickel and US Commemorative collections.

Paper money was well represented and I did have a nice chat with Leo and was able to take a few nice notes off his hands. I also picked up a couple of NAAFI tokens that I need to do a little research on because I can't read the denomination (I guess I need new glasses or a stronger glass). Also found a very nice series 651 $10 note in CU and a couple of Philippine "VICTORY" issues.

The Philippine Forum was very informative. Ray Czahor, Neil Shafer and Dr. Pineda provided a lot of history and information and a number of attendees brought along items for "show and tell". Just prior to the Forum I was able to purchase a copy of Neil's 1974 book on Emergency and Guerrilla currency of WW 2. With the speakers and the book I learned quite a bit more about this interesting field. I was also fortunate to win a nice example of a One Peso note from the Mountain Province as a door prize. That coupled with the notes I picked up from Ray on Saturday enhanced my beginning collection. Holding more Forums in the future and using the Gram in conjunction with the Forum were discussed; both ideas, in my opinion are worthwhile.

The best part of the show, however, was meeting and talking with fellow gramsters/collectors. It's always nice to put faces to the names we see in the Gram.

By the way, during the Philippine Forum, ANA President John Wilson called out the Master Sergeant to present him with an award. Perhaps Howard will provide the details.

I did miss seeing Fred and David, but hopefully they will be in Strasburg in September.

Editorial/opinion

=====

As reports come in about the ANA convention, I miss it more than I did during the event. It sounds like it was a gala event and great show. Frankly, it always is. We have been examining the calendar a little more closely for the past few days and the weeks ahead look a little chaotic. I cannot imagine how I can meet the obligations that I have made.

letters/submissions for Gram 1000 special double issue should be sent to MPCGram1000@yahoo.com

Dear Gram,

Just a quick note to make a small correction in the gram. The Meyer collection will start its public exhibition on Aug 28 and continue through November.

Steve

Dear Steve,

What is the correction? Hope to see you there. Too bad that you do not (yet) have a paybook. As listed everyday in the calendar, here is the website for the museum: <http://www.hmh.org>

Editor

Dear Editor,

You have it right, I did help Loretta, on Friday she was the paymaster and signed pay books with a title of 'PMD' (pay master of the day). The one pay book I signed in her absence was under the title 'APMD' as her assistant. Pay books were not signed on the second day. She was elsewhere as most of the pay envelopes were handed out, she arrived back in time for her pay. She was at the BEP table hoping to win a drawing where she could qualify to purchase a hand pulled souvenir Card. Since it was left to me there were no pay books or signing for pay on Aug 2 Mini Fest.

Dick Freyser

Dear Gram,

The Baltimore mini Fest notes are great. I should have postponed my surgery in order to attend.

Please reserve 1 spot at the BBQ table for me.

David E. Seelye collector of MFC serial #1, replacements, specimens, and errors

Dear David,

Seems like a shameless plug to me. Anyway, if you had looked, we had you on the list.

Editor

Dear Editor,

I am in Florida!! Decided suddenly to come here for a couple days before heading back to Tokyo on Wednesday.

As previously stated I did very well at the ANA buying and selling better MPC/AMC. Picked up a 691 Set from Ian Marshall. Was good to see him and Leo May. Also had a couple interesting chats with a guy I really admire, "SKI".....he is a most knowledgeable guy and really a nice person, wish everyone was as gentlemanly as him.....he also got a major item from me for his collection. He can tell you what it was but you don't run across one every day.....

I really had a great ANA. The U.S. market is real, real STRONG! I managed to sell quite a few items and was able to purchase three (3) 651 fractional sets on the floor and was happy to "flop" them there as well.

I have a show this weekend in Tokyo and will send you a full report.....

Lastly, I was really disappointed at the dearth (?) of MPC guys at such a major event. Most conspicuously missing was that guy who has been around for 30 + years promoting and telling anyone who will listen all about MPC.....none other than Fred Schwan who I first met at my first ANA 29 years ago in the Miami (Bal Harbour) 1974 show.....

Best regards,

Mike

Dear Gram

I plan on being at fest next year since you changed the dates.

Neil Shafer

Dear Neil,

Great, we look forward to having you. Be sure to get lots of sleep before you get here. You are the eighth new Fester to sign up. We need three more new Festers to register in order to match the first year's total. Every year we have been able to match the first year total with new Festers. We should be able to do that again this year.

Editor

Dear Editor,

You have sent gram 980 a second time, dated 3

August, exactly the same as the previous iteration dated 1 August. Gram 981 came between them.

Joe

Dear Joe,
No charge for the extra copies.

Editor

Dear Esteemed editor,
The pass is a great item! The "Part Pay $10 June 10, 1945" has "W.M. Koehler" under it. I wonder if he is related to the Koehler family whose business makes sinks and other plumbing items. If so, maybe he has some records about this time too.
The conversion appears to be "400//=352" and followed by a check mark. Below it appears to be "W0 M=US" There is more after the "US" but I cannot make it out. I think it is a German Mark to Belgium Franc conversion rate for the 400 to 352, and the "W0 M=US" has something to do with the German Mark to US$ conversion rate.
It is only a guesstimate, but I hope I am contributing something to the solution.

The Master Sergeant Daniel

Dear Editor,
Many thanks for the interesting report, although it has nothing to do with currency issues, I found it interesting the article on : "...It is a pass issued in June 1945 for Walter Westing to visit Brussels..." so I thought of sending some scans of pass's I found, I hope its acceptable to do that. I think its for liberated Southern Italy, for the British Section.
The other pass/permit is issued at the British Embassy in Belgrade, and the last pass is for Thereisienstadt, issued by an SS officer, in last days of the war.

Thanking you again for the interesting report,

N.

Dear N.,
Thanks for writing and for sending the scans. I have to pick at one point that you make. The Westing pass is indeed (in my opinion) a numismatic item whereas the others, however interesting, are not. The numismatic connection is clearly the stamps on the back of the Westing pass. Such documents frequently have some statement about currency restrictions etc that certainly make them of interest to collectors and in my opinion, make them numismatic items. Of course some disagree, but few would disagree that they are suitable for inclusion in a WWII numismatic collection.

Dear Editor

Dear Editor,
What is a paybook? I got paid once in Dallas but that is all. Do you think I can get paid again this year. I did let everyone get the notes they wanted from my pay envelope. As the BNR said Everyone is heading to Dallas.

lyn knight

Dear Lyn,
During WWII soldiers were issued pay books which they carried on their persons. Pay entries were made in the books as well as on rosters. The books and rosters were reconciled on occasion. The system was necessary because of the extreme flux of the situation as men (yes, and a few women) moved about the battlefields. We have issued paybooks to Festers as part of the learning and fraternal enterprise. Basically, we have only issued paybooks to people who attended major Fest events: Port Clinton Fests and ANA Seminars. People at other events have received notes but are not supposed to receive full pay. [Sounds like you need to turn in some of your pay!]. At the seminar, Festers with pay books are entitled to partial pay if they are not taking a military class. This year a Fester came to the class but without his/her paybook and expected to be paid. The pay officer/instructor refused.

One thing is for certain. You had better bring and carry your challenge coin! (Fair warning).

ANA Final (Maybe) Report

By Joe Boling

Now how to amuse them today? [Line from a Christopher Robin story, about how CR feigns sickness one day to keep the adults hopping.]

Just received tonight from Beijing, a scan of an unknown Manchukuo agricultural savings bond series dated February 1946! They seem to have been preparing the stock well in advance. This is release #1, so even the bond's series was being planned six months before issue. Where on earth has this been hiding since 1945? The piece found is far from pristine.

ANA final report - the Saturday banquet was one of the nicest meals I have ever had at such an affair, really excellent food. It apparently was not ready on time, because emcee Randy Campbell launched into the awards immediately, and eventually announced that the dinner was almost ready. A couple of awards later we finally got fed.

ANA military money seminarian (2002) Max Spiegel won the YN best of show award with an exhibit unrelated to military money - "The Old West," illustrating how western images have been adopted for US coinage (bronze, nickel, and gold, throwing him into the general and specialized class). The open BoS went to an exhibit that IS military-related, but not money - medals. It is titled "A Selection of US Mint Medals from the War of 1812, Engraved by Moritz Fuerst" and was placed by Lenny Vaccaro.

The People's Choice award went to John Whitney for his 43-case non-competitive exhibit of US notes. This exhibit will blow your mind if you ever get to see it. Not only does he have a substantial number of the major types of US note, his cases of fancy serial numbers are simply unbelievable. Say he has a note with serial 00088000 - well he also has all the other digit pairs in the same position (00011000, 00022000, etc) - case after case of these, overlapped to show several score of notes per case - simply incredible. Also ladders, reverse ladders, radars.... Scads of serial number 1 notes, many examples of changeover pairs (but not just the pair - five notes on each side of the changeover), error notes you would not believe ( a full case of double-denomination notes, suspended over mirrors with barely any room between notes to look through to the mirror image below), a half-case of nationals with "Whitney" in the title or town name, specimen notes, and bushels of others that I am not remembering. Shades of Amon Carter - this collection must have kept several dealers employed for many years.

The Farran Zerbe award went to Charles J. Ricard, Charles N. Ricard, and the Lighthouse family, a multi-generational award stretching back a century. I have not seen the Zerbe done this way before. It must be the year of the family, because the Lifetime Achievement award went to the Al Baber family, all of whom (Al, Dorothy, Larry, and Larry's wife (Celia?)) were/are long-time ANA volunteers or officers. The Medallion Sculpture award went to Ron Landis, who was unfortunately not there not receive it. The Outstanding Government Service award was not made this year. ANA's outstanding YN advisor award went to military money seminarian Mark Hotz.

Sunday morning I finally got a chance to do some serious shopping. I had been able to walk the aisles through about row 7 during the week, a half-hour at a time every other day (there were sixteen aisles). I had discovered about Tuesday that I had come away from home with only four checks in my checkbook, but I did not let that stop me. The last several purchases I made Sunday were on memo, checks to be dispatched after I got home. It's nice to have been around long enough to become known and trusted.

The exhibit committee met Thursday and made some major changes in the exhibit program for the spring shows. The next spring convention is in Portland 26-28 March 2004; watch for more next week on how to prepare exhibits for that event. Story-tellers will love it.

Editorial/opinion

=====

A story on the front page of the Monday Wall Street Journal told of problems created by attempts to control SPAM. The thrust of the story was about what apparently are called innocents. These are people/groups who have their email blocked as spam when it is not. Specifically, mentioned in the article is AOL. We know something about that! Basically, the article is critical of AOL, but it does not give any tips and AOL does not sound excited about protecting innocents. Things seem to have gotten better for us, but it is hard to be optimistic.

letters/submissions for Gram 1000 special double issue should be sent to MPCGram1000@yahoo.com

Dear Esteemed Editor,

The July 28 issue of the ?Army Times? has an article on page 27 titled: ?Gold dollars coming soon?? There is no byline for the author of the article so it was probably written by several people on their editorial staff.

It reports that a ?July 10 report from the Senate Appropriations Committee urges the Defense Department to cooperate with the U.S. Mint in getting dollar coins into the hands of service members and thus into circulation. The committee says stateside military commissaries, exchanges and clubs should hand out dollar coins for change instead of dollar bills. Overseas bases would not have to be part of the plan.?

If the plan is implemented, should the Sac Dollar be included as a ?military? coin in our collections?

Sincerely, The Master Sergeant Daniel

Dear Editor,

There are several sets still available, from the Memphis mini Fest event, that I prepared. There are a total of 13 notes that I issued. If you want a set, all it takes is a check for $25.00 made out to the ANA Military Scholarship Fund. (or Euro 25,- cash donation)

For those that will be at Dallas, I will have the few remaining sets with me there.

Dear Editor,

Have notices giving the date and location of MPCFEST V been sent to the major numismatic publications for inclusion in their Show Directory?

David

Dear David,

By major do you mean those tree gobbling monsters with the leisurely weekly or monthly publishing schedules? If so, no. Not yet.

Baltimore Advenrues

By Ron Waddel

Thought I would add a few more comments on the Baltimore convention. The larger shows are always worth attending because of the wealth of material that is on display - from great exhibits to material for sale. Having a Mini-fest just adds to the enjoyment and Dick did a great job. I don't think he mentioned in his report how difficult it is to get UV ink and get the pay ready. Also, the Emergency Fest Payment Certificates are just great. How do you guys get these "banknotes" printed? It was difficult to foresee that the scheduled time on Friday would be a problem and I think Dicks task would have been much easier if the meeting had a specific time and location but things worked out fine. Saturdays meeting was much better and there was some "show and tell", which can turn into "show and sell", which is even better. Picked up a nice German "tank gas ration" receipt.

I had scheduled a meeting for chopmarked coins, used in the China trade, and much of my time was related to that but still I found a few WWII related items and a couple of nice MPC's. All in all it was a very nice show. I got to see quite a few Festers that I had not seen since Fest IV or the Summer seminar. This may be the best part of the show.

Joel Shafer-Managing Director, World Bank Note
Division
Lyn Knight Currency Auctions

I would like to take this opportunity to write about some material that we will offer in our Dallas sale later this month at the Sixth National Paper Money and Historic Artifacts Show from August 20-24, 2003:

Sheraton Grand Hotel at Dallas/Fort Worth Airport
4440 West John Carpenter Freeway Irving, Texas 7506

This is a very important sale for enthusiasts of military issues-do not miss this show! You are most welcome to come early on Wednesday to ensure sufficient viewing time.

Included in this sale is a wonderful old-time World War II collection. This collection features an outstanding array of Military Payment Certificates (MPC), Allied Military Currency (AMC) with high grade replacements and other special items, and many highly sought pieces from around the globe issued during this era. A few words must be stated about this collector.

The collector wishes to remain anonymous. He is in his mid 70s and is a veteran of World War II, the Korean War, and Viet Nam. He joined the Air Force in 1945 and retired in 1969. His current passion is providing important assistance at the local coin shop.

This individual has made important contributions to the fields of both coins and paper money. His interests have been diverse-at one time, he even had a large aluminum coin collection!

He has been a collector for over 45 years. He began with United States coins and made a promise to himself never to collect paper money. However, the history and beauty of world paper money caught up with him and he was hooked! He started serious collecting over twenty years ago, but did limit himself to pieces from the World War II era. He hopes that other collectors will enjoy this material just as much as he did.

On a personal level, he is well-liked and respected by his colleagues.

The world paper money/MPC section will consist of approximately 1700 lots to be sold on Thursday, August 21. It is important to note that this sale significantly exceeds our previous high for number of world lots offered. In fact, it is quite possible that this offering is the largest ever brought together at one time for sale anywhere!

We have placed the MPC in the enviable "leadoff" position. It is truly a terrific group-over 100 lots of MPC and related material! This selection is sprinkled with high grade types, a wonderful mixture of printings, special serial numbers, and other goodies. Among the highlights are:

|            |                     |                |
|------------|---------------------|----------------|
| LOT 38     | 10 Dollars          | #M35/MPC 847   |
| Series 521 |                     |                |
| LOT 64     | 5 Dollars           | #M55/MPC 876   |
| Series 611 | Plate position One! |                |
| LOT 79     | 10 Dollars          | #M70/MPC 907   |
| Series 661 |                     |                |
| LOT 95     | 20 Dollars          | #M98/MPC 938/1 |
| Series 692 |                     |                |

The plate position one 5 Dollars Series 611 is truly superb; it is a fresh, original beauty.

Throughout the Allied military currency section, you will see many scarce, high grade types as well as replacements and other special offerings.

AMC highlights include:

|          |                          |           |        |           |
|----------|--------------------------|-----------|--------|-----------|
| LOT 738  | Germany                  | 100 Mark  | #197d? | 1944      |
|          | Serial letter prefix "m" |           |        |           |
| LOT 580  | Denmark                  | 50 Kroner | #M5?   | ND        |
| (1945)   | Archive Specimen         |           |        |           |
| LOT 1044 | Japan                    | 1000 Yen  | #76a   | ND (1951) |
|          | Block letters B-B        |           |        |           |
| LOT 1045 | Japan                    | 1000 Yen  | #76b   | ND        |
| (1951)   | Block letters D-D        |           |        |           |
| LOT 1046 | Japan                    | 1000 Yen  | #76b   | ND        |

The German piece is worthy of special mention. Very few with serial letter prefix are known. Recently, many people saw this piece in our display case, but initially passed it up quickly because they thought it was the readily available 100 mark! Albert Pick was aware that this piece existed, but could not offer an explanation. It is believed to have come from the late Amon Carter's vast AMC collection. Further information regarding this piece is most welcome.

We will offer an outstanding array of World War II notes from around the globe. In order to allow some time to reflect on the MPC and AMC pieces, I will write a separate Gram installment soon on these items.

Finally, a few Dallas amenities add up in a big way. The bourse is comfortable on one's feet; lodging is modestly priced and close to the airport; last year, the weather was comfortable-not too hot. Also, the cuisine is quite good.

Please contact me at grbaypa@aol.com if you have further questions. We look forward to seeing you in Dallas.

Editorial/opinion

=====

Thanks for Joel Shafer for the item on the forthcoming auction. In spite of his careful and artful attempts to keep the seller's identity secret, most of us know who it is and I believe that it has been mentioned here in the Gram. Can someone check that for me? Anyway, we will certainly mention the name again, but not today. We will call him computer man today because his initials are RAM (like computer memory). No, I will just call him Ram like a first name. I believe that Ram told me that it is OK to identify him here in the Gram, but not in the print media. That is the way that we like it here at that Gram. I also hope to have Ram as the guest of honor at the MPC barbeque. (Ram, please consider this the invitation and please RSVP so that we can include this special feature in the listings.)

Joel singles out the Allied military 100 marks note with prefix letter for special discussion above. In the printed catalog he calls it the most intriguing lot in the sale (possibly he said one of the most intriguing). He is correct about that. I can add some more information about this note. It did not come from the Amon Carter collection. RAM bought it from me. I bought it in Germany from an interesting source which even now must remain anonymous.

When I first reported this find in the Bank Note Reporter I received many comments. The most interesting was from Ken Bressett, numismatic scholar and long-time friend. Ken, along with Neil Shafer, is one of the early, serious researchers into AMC. They identified the Forbes and Stecher-Traung printer's marks on AMC and many other things. They wrote the ultimate AMC article for the Whitman Journal in the 1960s as has been discussed here before.

Anyway, Ken wrote to me that he could and did not believe that the notes with prefix were genuine, unaltered, notes. I understood his position because I had had the same thoughts. I sent him the note for examination. It was one of those Fred surprises. I just sent it.

He was surprised, but pleased to have the opportunity to examine the piece. He told me the following when we next met face to face at an ANA convention. He said that he had spent an entire day examining the notes. He had studied every aspect and done everything that he could think of to prove that it was a fantasy alteration (at best). UV light, fancy scope, touch, feel, paper, serial numbers, ink. He probably even asked the dog for an opinion, but could find nothing wrong with the note. Later Joe Boling examined the same or similar note under his fancy scope and also could not find anything wrong.

Of course, because we believe them to be genuine, original products does not mean that we can explain them. A few theories have developed, but none are convincing. Let me say right here that I do not believe that this is a Russian replacement. That was my first thought (I see replacements everywhere). If it were a replacement, we would have seen more of them and on other denominations too. The short answer is that I believe that it was an expedient repair made in the printing plant to fix some broken type on the numbering machine.

My theory above is not definitive. Far from it. Indeed, I hope that you are not convinced that this is a legitimate, if mysterious, note. I hope this because I would like to buy it!

Dear Gram,

I got the Gram for I think 3 days last week, then it stopped and has not started up again. What's happening? If possible, please get it started again, and also can I get the one back copy which discussed the MPC Replica set (which I have bought) As I'd like to find out more about it.

Thanks

JS

Dear Gram,

OK. All you people who were sad that I was not going to make Dallas, take notice. Looks like I will be around on Thursday probably for the auction, but have to leave shortly after that for the family vacation. Thursday will be the only day that I will even be in the DFW area so let me know where everyone will be so we can meet somehow. I have not been keeping track of the barbeque schedule so if it is Thursday let me know.

Started my new job with the US Government on Monday so everyone that flies the airways can rest assured that I will be making the airlines do the right thing.

Bill McNease

Dear Bill,

Thanks for the notice. I am glad that I will be driving to Dallas! Thursday will be the big day because that is when the good stuff is sold. On the other hand many Festers will not be there on Thursday. We can have a micoFest on Thursday.

2004 scholarship fund

Donations of cash and numismatic material will be gladly accepted. Generally the numismatic material is auctioned at MPCFest, but might be sold via ebay or other places. Your scholarship donations help the hobby by sending qualified individuals to the ANA summer seminar military money class. Except for unavoidable charges like ebay fees, 100% of your donation goes to scholarships.

Howard Sarg Daniel Honored

By John Wilson

As the 52nd President of the American Numismatic Association, I was honored to give President's Awards to Fred & Judy (the Boss) Schwan and Howard A. Daniels III. At MPC Fest LV I gave the award to Fred and Judy (the Boss) Schwan. I wanted to give the award to Howard at the Philippine Collectors Forum. Unfortunately, I couldn't connect with a proper time to do it at this function. BNR Editor David Harper did take a picture outside the meeting, which more than likely will appear in the next issue.

It was my great honor to present awards to these three individuals who have contributed greatly to our numismatic hobby in numerous ways. For information on past Presidential Award recipients go to:

<http://www.money.org/presawards.html> I was honored to serve as the 52nd ANA President. I want to sincerely thank all the MPC Gram participants for contributing to a great two years for the ANA and our great hobby. ANA membership is over 30,000 and we have over 500 coin clubs. Please consider joining the ANA where you not only join but you belong. Also, on behalf of the ANA thank you to the MPC Gram for your very strong support for the Association.

I know that the 53rd President of the ANA Gary Lewis, along with his board and headquarters staff headed by Executive Director Chris Cipoletti, will continue to improve the ANA. If anyone has any questions regarding ANA please contact President Lewis at: GELEWIS@aol.com or Executive Director Cipoletti at: cipoletti@money.org or Governor John Wilson at: johnnancyw@aol.com or if you want to join e-mail or call Rudy Bahr or Sandy Schultz at: membership@money.org or 1 (800) 367-9723. Thanks again for a fantastic two years and hope to see you at a show down the road

Baltimore ANA The Philippine Collectors Forum

By Ray Czahor

The Philippine Collectors Forum was a tremendous success by any measure. Approximately 75 interested collectors attended, including a number of Gramsters, including Larry Smulczenski, Gary Lewis, Howard Daniel, Mel Steinberg, Ron Waddell, and probably a few others whom I did not note. Most stayed from the beginning at 1PM until we finally broke up at about 5:15PM. I understand it was the largest educational forum at the Baltimore ANA except for the Boy Scouts who had about 100 attendees.

Neil Shafer started the program with "In the Beginning-The Thrill of Discovery." He said he was fascinated with this coinage that had United States of America on them and being stationed with the Air Force Band in Washington, D.C. in the 1950s, began to research government records and offices for information. That led to his well-known black covered book published in 1961: "United States Territorial Coinage for the Philippine Islands." From there he researched paper money under the US which lead to "A Guide Book of Philippine Paper Money" in 1964. Neil had lots of interesting stories to tell which will be covered in other articles. Of interest to WWII collectors, he mentioned that he and Guerilla Currency guru, CM Nielson of Salt Lake City may collaborate on a new book, a significant update to Neils book of 1974. We certainly encourage that effort.

Dr. Gregory Pineda was the second speaker and gave a fascinating slide show on proofs, patterns, vignettes of Philippine paper money. These showed many RARE or SCARCE pieces of his own collection and other museum pieces and was a walk in history of Philippine currency from the Spanish issues to first Central Bank issue in 1949. Many of these were first time seen for most of us Philippine collectors.

John Grost who is co-author of The Numismatic Aspects of Leprosy, presented a slide show called: Money of the Culion Leper Colony. He presented an informative history of the Culion Leper Colony and depiction of their money's used (and why they are usually in such poor condition). The presentation had strong interest to the attendees.

Ken Seymore talked at length on grading of Philippine coins, both from a practical and philosophical standpoint Those collectors of certified Philippine coins were very interested in his opinion on why certain services grade as they do, particularly that the figure side of the coin is considered the obverse and its condition carries more weight than the shield/date side.

I gave a short talk: The Challenge of Collecting Philippine Stocks & Bonds. Varieties, errors, overprints, Specimens and neat vignettes can all be collected on stocks and bonds.

John Wilson, ANA President, and his wife, Nancy, came in and welcomed everyone after the presentation. He complimented us on the intense educational program presented in conjunction with the Baltimore ANA, and he said ours was the largest group by far of all the meetings he had attended at that time. He mentioned that wanted to present the Presidential Award for helping young collectors to Howard Daniel during our forum but we were so busy doing presentations, he had to do the ceremony outside our door.

Each attendee to the PCF received the first ever Philippine wooden five centavos, a Unc 1938M or 1941M ten centavo, and a copy of the 11th edition of my Varieties List. Also at the end of the PCF 28 door prizes donated by dealers and collectors were distributed to attendees.

In addition, 3 exhibits of rare and interesting Philippine numismatic items were on display. Highlighted were an uncirculated 1906S peso, RARE paper issues and a large number of Spanish Philippine RARE and scarce patterns, counterstamps, medals, and Revolutionary issues. During the PCF a number of individuals described "unique" items they brought in for "show and tell."

Discussion centered on the future of PCF. General consensus was to hold it again, on the West Coast in the future (maybe San Jose in 2005), and at the ANA annual show in Pittsburgh, PA next year. A donation was received from a serious collector to register the PCF with ANA as a club. Also, it was suggested that Fred and the MPCGRAM may be a medium for getting the word out on future PCF activities. (I have not talked to Fred yet!)

Significantly to me, only Coin World send a publicist to cover the PCF. Other major numismatic publications were notably absent although I am sure Neil and Howard will give us some coverage in their columns. This was a great event to support and be part of.

It is obvious that the Philippine Collectors Forum was a huge success. That is wonderful to be sure. It was enough alone to make me regret not attending the convention and to consider attending next year. Furthermore, the very idea of having the event was a stroke of extraordinary initiative.

It is exactly the kind of event that the ANA convention lends itself too. It is wonderful. It is also tragic that more such innovations are made by grass roots collectors.

We are certainly pleased that we were mentioned specifically as a possible means of disseminating information about future forums. We will certainly be pleased to do that. Send us reports and we will get the word out.

should be sent to MPCGram1000@yahoo.com

Dear Editor,

To say that you added greatly to my knowledge of the AMC 100 Mark would certainly be an understatement (this one example is among many reasons why another edition of World War II Remembered is in great need).
I had never seen this note before and may well never see it again. In Memphis, it caught the attention of virtually everyone who saw it.

As stated, I will write more soon about some terrific World War II pieces offered in Dallas.

Joel Shafer

Dear Editor,

The MPCGRAM Does it again!! I've had two more sets of the 2003 Memphis mini Fest notes sell for the $25.00 donation to the ANA Military Scholarship Fund.

Thank You, Readers!!!

David

I have three of Kevin Neidy's intaglio eagle cards for the Colorado (sic) Springs minifest left; $20 donation to the Military Scholarship Fund plus $1 postage to me. I also have two of Harold Kroll's cards for the summer seminar and several of his cards for the CS minifest available, all at $10 each (those payments go to him) + $1 postage (per shipment, to me).
Joe

Dear Esteemed Editor,

During my trip out West, I visited the store where RAM assists. I can see why he is assisting because the place is huge and customers and staff can get lost in it. I wish RAM would not remain anonymous for the auction of his collection because I would very much like to see his name in print for my library.

RAM should allow Joel to have his name somehow added to the catalog with an insert or something else. OK RAM?

I will write something about the recent ANA for your readers but I still need to dig out my journal and notes to be able to do a decent job with it.

The Master Sergeant Daniel

Dear Sarg,

I believe that a large portion of Ram's material will be in the St Louis auction. That is a chance to have his name on a catalog. However, there certainly is no reason that you cannot write his name on the title page of your catalog(s).

2004 scholarship fund

Donations of cash and numismatic material will be gladly accepted. Generally the numismatic material is auctioned at MPCFest, but might be sold via ebay or other places. Your scholarship donations help the hobby by sending qualified individuals to the ANA summer seminar military money class. Except for unavoidable charges like ebay fees, 100% of your donation goes to scholarships.

Financing War

By Warner Talso

On the Confederate side of the U.S. Civil War, Secretary of the Treasury Christopher Gustavus Memminger is considered quite incompetent at conceptualizing the scale of finance required for a successful military effort. He apparently was a complete failure at raising taxes or selling long-term debt. To make u; for that, he was simply inactive when it came to finding short-run expedients to compensate. By default, inflationary finance followed, driven at first by the expansion of debt by each of the southern states and then by expansion of state bank money supply and finally by the increase of inconvertible Confederate currency (the notes issued in February 1864 in Richmond, Virginia were redeemable "Two years after the Ratification of a Treaty of Peace between the Confederate States and the United States.") This resulted in hyperinflation.

The role of foreign finance was initially more important and more successful for the Confederacy than for the Union, but as the fortunes of war turned in favor of the North, so did the weight of foreign investment in Union debt.

It is estimated that foreigners held $150 million of Northern debt in March 1864, rising to $320 million in March 1865, and it is estimated a total of $486 million was held abroad in 1867. This compares to total of interest-bearing debt of $1,816 million in 1864 and $2,681 million in 1865. Although the percentage share of foreign held debt may seem relatively small by any current standards, its weight was sufficient to bear on the Congressional decision made in 1873 to resume convertibility of the dollar on gold standard by 1879. The wisdom of this decision was debated fiercely for the next quarter-century until put to rest by the defeat of Bryan by McKinley in the Presidential election of 1896, the beginnings of gold inflation in 1897, and the passage of the Gold Standard Act in 1900.

The lessons of Civil War finance continue to be hotly debated to the present day. Each generation of economists seems able to find in the diverse experiments carried out in both the North and South something that is particularly relevant to the current monetary and financial issues of their day. Concepts, such as bonds, were the basis of WWI and WWII financing.

Much of this information came from War Finance, (3 volumes), Brookfield, VT: Edward Elgar Publishing, 1994.

Gramsters are an amazing type. A Gramster detected that an error had crept into the list of reservations for Fest V. He then did a detailed analysis of the changes that have appeared in the list. Frankly, I have no idea how some of those errors could have crept in. I have published the list that he thought was the most accurate. Please check the list if you have sent a reservation. If you have not sent it, now is the time! Send us your reservation. We are looking forward to breaking the record for new festers (12) and total Festers (40).

Dear Gram,

I was at the Baltimore show with my pay book (I have witnesses.right Leo?) I did not get any of the room and time changes and totally missed out on some pay. I ended up attending The Chop Club and I now have one more hobby to support. If I whine long and hard enough can I get credit for being there? As yet I have none of the new notes and I am pouting severely. What about it Boss Fred?

Gary (Who has Fours) Hick

Dear Gary,

You bring up several problems. First, someone who has been a Gramster as long as you have certainly should know who the boss is. Secondly, reread number one. It is particularly true in this case. Basically, I have nothing to do with mini Fests. That is part of the beauty of the mini Fest system, it is fully decentralized. Inded, I have not been at very many of the mini Fests. Finally, and this is a really big problem, you are as close as we have to a chaplain so where can I send you with a problem like this?

2004 scholarship fund

Donations of cash and numismatic material will be gladly accepted. Generally the numismatic material is auctioned at MPCFest, but might be sold via ebay or other places. Your scholarship donations help the hobby by sending qualified individuals to the ANA summer seminar military money class. Except for unavoidable charges like ebay fees, 100% of your donation goes to scholarships.

The Case of the Plates

By Jim Downey

Most collectors of military currency are aware that the United States gave the Soviets glass positives of the German AMC. The Soviets printed their own AMC and flooded the country. This issue surfaced in the anti-communist crusade of Joseph McCarthy in the 1950s. The transfer of the plates and other technical information regarding the currency to the Soviets was investigated as part of the "communist conspiracy" in the United States Government. Several Treasury employees were accused of being communists for their role in transferring the plates to the Soviets including Henry Morgenthau, Bernard Bernstein and Henry Dexter White. Eventually, all of the principals were cleared, but their reputations were forever sullied by the accusations. There are several websites that still promote the communist conspiracy theory.

The transcripts of all the McCarthy Hearings were released by the United States Senate in January 2003. Some of the hearing transcripts are available on the internet. They can be found at

This document is a large PDF file (over 900 pages) and will take a while to download. There are HTML versions available but they do not have page numbers so it is difficult to locate these passages. The testimony of the treasury officials is found at pages 3403, 3425 and 3431. It is too long to be effectively excerpted. While it does not contain any new information, it is an interesting read. There appears to have been other testimony on this matter at other hearings including testimony from Alvin Hall, the BEP director, but I have not been able to locate it on the web.

Reprints from the Gram? In spite of the fact that the Gram supports the wide distribution of information to numismatists, wide and free are not the same thing. Therefore, virtually everything that appears in the Gram is copyrighted material. It is copyrighted by the author or the Gram. Several publications have asked permission to reprint and were able to do so having received permission from the author and/or the Gram. Surprisingly, such restrictions are made to ENCOURAGE research and distribution of information! Probably we will discuss this in more depth in the future, but I thought that it should be stated clearly today because it relates to the first letter below.

letters/submissions for Gram 1000 special double issue should be sent to MPCGram1000@yahoo.com

Dear Gram,

Today I discovered that two articles I sent in to the gram are available on the web. I am embarrassed that these articles are "out there" and I will NEVER write one again. When you cherry pick, you only talk about it to close friends and not tell the world. I was nice guy and gave you material for a gram. It would much better to skip a day than subject someone to potential embarrassment.

The two articles in question are my discovery of a replacement note and how I got it from the shop owner via cherry picking and also the article about the retired military officer's wife who dumped her husband's trunk at a yard sale and I subsequently cherry picked a coin shop out of 4 replacements.

I think you are extremely remiss and irresponsible in

1. Publishing/allowing this stuff on the web.
2. Not telling us that what ever we sent in was to be found on the web. I would have disguised the material and circumstances had I known. In fact, I would not have sent in the letters.

You are responsible for immediately informing all potential contributors of the availability of gram stuff on the web. I am *****!!!!

'nuff said?

Disgruntled Gramster

Dear Sir,

I must say that I am caught off guard by this letter?on several counts. First let me point out to readers that I sanitized the letter enough to hide the identity of the sender because I was afraid that he might be ***** that I ran the letter. However, it is a great letter because it brings up many points for discussion.

In spite of the sanitization, it was clearly a candidate for publication as sent because it was sent to MPCGram. As far as I know, I have honored every request to not publish a letter, but if it comes to MPCGram, there is a high probability that it will be published. Several times I have asked senders to reconsider requests for non publication.

I was a little surprised at your report that your Gram articles have appeared somewhere on the internet. I will come back to this in a moment.

I have to disagree with you a little bit. Of course we were delighted to have the stories, but I think telling the stories to 400 Gram subscribers is spreading the story MUCH more than simply having the stories posted somewhere on the internet.

I did as you said and did a google search in the hope of finding the offending listing. I did find it and it was interesting. It was not what I expected.

What I found was a link to the article in question archived at papermoneyworld.net. The link showed up with the dealer name because that name as also in the same Gram. The fact that old Grams are archived at pmw has been mentioned in the Gram several times. The posting is done as a service to Gramsters. They are posted about two weeks late.

What does the Gram community think?

Dear Editor,

I have three of Kevin Neidy's intaglio eagle cards for the Colorado (sic) Springs minifest left; $20 donation to the Military Scholarship Fund plus $1 postage to me. I also have two of Harold Kroll's cards for the summer seminar and several of his cards for the CS minifest available, all at $10 each (those payments go to him) + $1 postage (per shipment, to me).

Dear Gram,

Your right Fred... I should have solved my own problem and not laid it upon you or the boss. As the Chaplain (and an officer) I am authorizing myself emergency pay and wish to contact that great paymaster in the sky for my Baltimore pay. I was there spiritually and thats what really matters... Thanks again for your guidance in this matter.

Dear Gram,

I will see you at the Dallas Bar B Que. I live about 4 miles from the hotel.

Covering the entire World of Military Numismatics
Series 004 - Number 989 Tuesday August 12, 2003

Some loose ends from last week:

By Joe Boling

OK, so the ANA DID award the Outstanding Government Service award - they just did not do it at the banquet, so it got by me. It went to Darryl Davis, conventions manager for the United States Mint since 1996.

The Freditor wanted to hear more about how I obtained the 8* Neil Shafer minifest note. For starters, I don't think anyone has discussed these notes yet. Apparently they were prepared for a minifest in Milwaukee, 21-23 Feb 2003, which had little publicity. The notes are Philippine JIM 10 peso notes (first series, not the Rizal Monument notes), overprinted on both sides. The back has the major inscription: Emergency Mini-Fest Certificate $10

Trade Value

$10 MILWAUKEE MINI-FEST! Participants: HAROLD KROLL, LARRY SMULCZENSKI, LEO MAY, JOEL SHAFER, NEIL SHAFER Series 031 [032]

Date: February 23-25, 2003

No. xxx

The series number was originally printed 031, then overprinted 032 (apparently since series 031 is already circulating). As it happens, the serial number on mine is 008*. When I selected it from the stack of envelopes proffered by Neil Shafer (expedient envelopes were created by wrapping an information sheet around each note and taping it shut), there was no way to distinguish the serial. My selection of this number from among about ten pieces was completely random,. Neil was shocked (or seemed so) when I opened it and noticed that I had had selected my favorite number. He explained that the star indicates a replacement, and that this number was the only one spoiled in preparation and for which a replacement was created. (Of course, if you are using make-up numbers, that is, replacing the spoiled note with one of the same serial, there is no need to use replacement indicators in conjunction with the numbers.)

The other side is even more loaded with information. THIS EMERGENCY MINI-FEST CERTIFICATE, if hand signed by the issuer, is redeemable at its face value of $10.00 in trade at the World Paper Money bourse table during the Central States Numismatic Society Convention to be held in Milwaukee, WI on May 5-9, 2004. Issued pursuant to Act No. 1, approved July 4, 2003 at Milwaukee. Authorized Signature:

Neil Shafer.

Note the discrepancy between the date of the minifest on the back and the date of the act authorizing the use of the minifest certificate as a trade chit in 2004. It would appear that left over minifest notes were converted to trade pieces some time after the original event. Since I did not attend the February 2003 event, I cannot report whether there are any notes printed on one side only, lacking the convertibility clause for the CSNS show next year. [But the information sheet, further described below, talks about the printings of both sides as being near-simultaneous - perhaps there was no pay available at the minifest in February, due to delayed production.]

As it happens, my piece is not signed. According to the information sheet that accompanied the note, unsigned pieces are considered remainders without trade value. I saw another such unsigned piece at the

ANA convention, and the holder told me that he had insisted that the issuer apply pen to paper with a signature. I neglected to make such a demand, so my 008* piece is good only for bragging.

The information sheet is loaded with other interesting tidbits about the issue, including the number of pieces that were spoiled in production and re-created without a replacement indicator (consistency does not seem to have been a part of this operation), and the fact that there are also errors that reached circulation (if any of these pieces can be considered to circulate - they seem to have the status of NCLT to me, minus the low-number-per-day redemption quota that NCLT issuers are wont to impose). A total of thirteen notes were completed and made available for issue, plus four specimens. Progressive proofs and printer's waste also are in the hands of the creator, who further notes that many undocumented minor varieties also exist.

The printer obviously considers the back of the host note to be the face of the minifest note, since there is a reference to the face as the side bearing the serial number. This will lead to unending confusion about these notes in years ahead. In the meantime, I am going to enjoy my 008* note!

Editorial/opinion

It has been a long time since we have had a hot discussion like the one created by the angry Gramster yesterday. There is a nice selection of letters on the subject below and there are some more waiting for tomorrow.

Do you remember some of the other big, heated topics? There was the matter of the challenge coins and the drunken Festers. Then there was the criminal activity in pursuit of gasoline coupons from Germany. Do not forget the crooked Fest auction! All of these were emotional discussions at the time and part of Gram lore.

Dear Esteemed Editor,

It was a complete surprise when John Wilson honored me with the ANA Presidential Award in Baltimore. I had no idea it was coming and you will likely see this in the photograph taken of us by David Harper of Krause Publications, Inc.

Much like during my time on active duty, no one could find me and/or could arrange the proper ceremony around my schedule and the presenter's. As you can imagine, John was a busy person at an ANA Convention where he was president, and then I attend many meetings and events and then sneak in and out of them to go back to man my NI/IBNS/NBS club table.

I did not know Fred and Judy Schwan also received the award until I read it in the Gram.

I am very, very happy to share the platform with Judy, but should we share it with Fred? I need to think about this. Only kidding.

I would also like to mention John and Nancy Wilson and Gary Lewis here. All three of them have been working their buns off for numismatics (and not just the ANA) ever since I have known them. John may no longer be ANA president but he is replaced by his vice, and I know Gary will do another excellent job. Have any of you known a Gramster not to do an excellent job?

The Master Sergeant Daniel

Howard A. Daniel III

Dear Gram,

Just wanted to let you know I saw a 461 series 10cent Serial # D00570769D block # 72 on display at the Strategic Air & Space Museum in Nebraska. (Nebraska chapter no.1 Korean war veterans)

Just thought you would like it for your Stat file.

Yours in MPC,
Gary Hansen

Dear Gram,

Since Who has Fours is complaining, you can pass on to him that I still have serial #4 of the Kevin Neidy intaglio card for the CS minifest - and it is an error card to boot (missing a letter of the inkjet portion of the printing and with the serial number clipped one mm at the bottom).

Joe

Gee, Mr. Editor, you asked. I always heard that there was absolutely no privacy on the internet. Now you tell me that my copywritten material is to be considered copywritten by you?

If I create the material, it is mine! If it is the policy of the Gram to openly reprint material sent to it and that is a stated policy, I send the material with that full knowledge; thus, my tacit permission to print the material is given. However, and I am no lawyer, I do not believe the act of sending the material knowing you will print it does anything to curtail my copyright (ownership)of the material.

In fairness, you have always honored my request not to print something when I have so asked. I do appreciate that. I generally have thought of the letters in the Gram as "letters to the Editor." You get to print them as you see fit. As long as it is known by all, that is the way it goes.

I do believe that courtesy alone would slow someone from just sending Gram material to another site without asking permission from the Gram and the originator of the material. Referring someone to the Gram archives is a horse of a different color and probably appropriate. Those links have become commonly acceptable in society.

I guess the safe way is to indicate that "this material is copywritten by A.E. Crawford, any reproduction without the written consent of the author is prohibited." Of course, Mr. Editor, you have my permission to use this material in the MPC Gram.

rusty

Dear Gram,

As everybody clearly knows the joy of collecting MPC replacements is finding one at the no Replacement price. You as the buyer have specialized knowledge that avails you to some well-deserved bargains every once in a while for your efforts. I would not think less of anyone who purchased Replacements far below their market value anymore than if a person were to find Money in the street. I might be a little jealous though but that is about all.

Mike In sacto

Dear Gram,

I think the articles and letters contained in the grams are great! Informative, educational and sometimes downright funny! (usually your remarks). Putting them on the web is also a great idea, not only for those of us who have had trouble getting them, but also for any gramster who has not save the grams and wants to go back to some.

If anyone writes something for inclusion in the gram that they feel should be private, semi-private or whatever, they ought to consider keeping quiet.

Don Kolkman

Back to the Basics: Identifying Replacement Notes A Sporadic Column

Sparky" Watson

?Ah ha! Another lucky star note for my collection,? I thought as I sifted through the snack bar cash box at work. What is a star note you ask? It is a note where the suffix letter at the end of the serial number is replaced with a star. The Bureau of Engraving and Printing (BEP) uses this method to designate replacement notes for the current series of Federal Reserve notes. Since replacement notes are substituted for manufacturing errors during the print run, they are usually scarce, and involve a little effort to obtain.

While collecting $1 star notes from circulation will not allow me to retire any sooner, finding unidentified Military Payment Certificates (MPC) and Allied Military Currency (AMC) notes will - if I find enough. Avidly collected by many, MPC and AMC replacement notes carry a substantial premium over their non-replacement counterparts, especially in uncirculated condition. For example, an uncirculated Series 681 $1 note will sell for around $20 to $25. That same note as a replacement will sale for $600 to $800 or higher. So, how do you identify these treasures?

MPC notes: On normal notes, the serial number consists of a prefix letter, an eight-digit number, and a suffix letter. For example, a Series 692 note could have a serial number of E08357391E. For a replacement note, the suffix letter is removed, so the serial number for a Series 692 note would read E00013435. On the strange but true side, David Seelye has a Series 611 $1 replacement note where someone added the missing suffix letter with a pen!

AM lire: Replacement notes in this series are similar to the star note described at the beginning of this article. However, instead of the suffix letter in the serial number being replaced by the star, it's the prefix letter. An example would be *00012345A.

AM franc: For this series, the printers used a method not involving the serial number. One can identify replacement francs by an X in the lower left and upper right corners areas near the serial number. There is a minor printing variety with the two different printers in this series as the BEP used an X smaller than the Xs on the notes printed by Forbes.

AM marks: The AM mark is probably the hardest to identify a replacement quickly. In general, replacement AM marks are identified by a hyphen preceding the eight-digit serial number, -012345678. However, not all notes with a leading hyphen are replacement notes. This is due to the history behind the series. At the strong request (demand) of the Soviet Union, the United States provided them with Forbes' printing plates and a set of specimen notes. As Forbes used replacement notes for the specimen notes, the Soviet Union wrongly assumed that the hyphen was an integral part of the serial number. Therefore, AM marks printed by the Soviet Union also have a leading hyphen. However, there are differences between the Soviet Union marks and Forbes printed marks. First is the physical layout of the serial number. As the Soviets did not have a nine-digit counting wheel to print the serial number, they used a three-digit and a six-digit unit in concert. This combination provides a visible misalignment, either vertically or horizontally, between the third and fourth locations in the serial number. Another method to distinguish the printings is to look for Forbes' secret mark, a monogram F, in the scrollwork on the right side. Finally, the actual serial number provides some indication of the note. Replacement notes general have low serial numbers. As the lowest serial number of the Soviet Union notes is 25 million, any serial number below that with a hyphen is a replacement note.

AM shillings: Replacement notes in this series use a similar method to the AM francs, an X in the lower left and upper right corner near the serial number. However, this only occurs on the 25 schilling note. The method used on the other notes with a serial number - the smaller denomination 50 groschen, and 1 and 2 schilling notes don't have serial numbers - is not truly known, however the working theory is that they are designated by a change in the block combination at the beginning of the serial number.

AM kroner: The method (if any) for identifying AM kroner is not known at this time. Like the AM shillings, some change in the block combination in the serial number is assumed to be the key.

AM yen: The printers used two different methods to distinguish replacement notes in this series. For the most part, a replacement note is identified the serial number starting with an H instead of the usual A, are H12345678A. This is the method used by Stecher-Traung. However, the BEP printed one issue of 1 yen notes with serial numbers starting with the letter B. For these replacements, the BEP dropped the suffix letter just like on MPC notes, for example, B00012345.

Well, that's how you identify replacement notes on MPC and the various AMC notes. At your next show, put some of this knowledge to use and you too might be able to move your retirement date up.

Well, I have a little story to tell that relates to many current Gram topics: cherry picking, replacements, and confidentially. Not too long ago, a collector called me, referred me to a listing on ebay, and asked the ubiquitous WIIW question (what is it worth). It was a well-worn but presentable fine note so I told him that I thought that it was worth $300. I noticed that the note had a bid of something like $50 so I also suggest that he should probably buy it. He uttered an excited explicative and then I noticed that he was the ebay seller. He went on to recount that he had purchased the note on ebay for a very small amount as part of a larger lot. He had hopped to get $5 for this one piece. When the note received the $50 bid mentioned above (and the supporting underbid) he wondered what was going on. He called another collector and they consulted on the note, but could determine nothing. That generated the call and WIIW to me.

To make matters worse, once he learned that it was a replacement, he decided that he wanted the piece for his own collection. I do not know the final resolution. Hm, did I record the serial number? I do not recall on that.

I also pointed out to him that replacements of this issue are identified in WWII Remembered and that I thought that possibly he should read (study) the book. I love telling people that.

I asked him if I could tell the story in the Gram? He said no. I might even have asked if I could tell it but altering identities and facts (as done above). If I asked the question that way, he also said no.

Have I violated a confidence? Possibly, but here is my justification. I believe that I have sufficiently discussed the participants and that enough time has passed to allow this to be done harmlessly. Furthermore, I think that it is a good story and particularly appropriate right now.

I should add, that I did not see anything wrong with telling the story at the time. I thought that it would be helpful and interesting for Gramsters.

letters/submissions for Gram 1000 special double issue should be sent to MPCGram1000@yahoo.com

Dear Steamed Freditior,

Joe Boling's expose of my Milwaukee Mini-Fest note was a total surprise to me, as I had not planned any publicity on this issue until distribution of the remaining pieces had taken place at the Dallas convention next week. Joe also neglected to indicate that these trade notes were not intended strictly as pay since I would not consider myself to be a paymaster in any capacity. (I am a gramster only at heart, having a most sympathetic ear but never having attended a fest- but planning to do so in 2004 since dates were changed that now allow my participation.) Therefore I have requested that each recipient present me with some note in trade, so that all we have done is trade notes and these are then not considered to be pay in the strict sense. (HINT: I can use a number of other Fest issues, some of which I have never even seen.) There are only five or so released, those being at the ANA and going ONLY to those not planning on attending the Dallas event. The rest will be released in Dallas. A Specimen and an issued note will also be given to Marcus for the donation auction.

Joe correctly surmised that there was no pay at the Milwaukee event; all such pieces are in fact $10 trade notes if signed. The only ones not printed on both sides are those made in preparation for final production. Each note comes with the data sheet, and that provides all necessary and unnecessary information. See you in Dallas!

Neil S.

Dear Neil,

You expected to issue a note to a Fest/Gramster and for the matter to be kept secret? Your name is on the Festlist.

Editor

Dear Gram,

I feel properly admonished as I have on rare occasion taken a story from the Gram and included it in the weekly ANA publication Your Newsletter to publicize the Gram to our many new collectors. I will not take such liberties in the future. However, at the time, it seemed to me that with proper credit and contact information for the Gram, it was good to re-tell an especially good story about an ANA event or publish again something written by a YN.

If I asked for a copy to be sent to YourNewsletter@Money.org (since that's how you determine what is OK for you to publish in the Gram) - would it then be OK?

I often see something from YN included in E-sylum and visa-versa. Seems to me that once it is sent via email, it's no longer private or privileged.

I print every copy of the Gram to forward to a friend who does not have email. Is that also a no-no?

Gail Baker

Dear Gail,

You bring up several interesting points. First, the ANA may reprint any staff-written item from the Gram. Items with byline require the permission of the author in addition to our permission which you now have. In all cases with credit of course.

It seems to me that printing a copy of the Gram for a non email receiving, but otherwise eligible person is satisfactory. Printing a copy and selling it (if you could find a buyer) would not be satisfactory it seems to me.

I am sorry, but I do not understand the question in your second paragraph.

96 Inch Plasma TV?See Doug

Did you notice that Doug?MPCWizzard?aka the Wiz and probably many other things as well was selling large screen televisions on ebay? They were at great prices too. Even on ebay, if it looks to good to be true it probably is. This was a fraud, a scam. It was not by Doug! It was done to him.

Yes, Doug?s ebay account was hacked and someone fraudulently placed these items for sale!

The same thing happened to MPCWorld (Schwan), but I am not sure what was offered for sale. The first that I knew of the fraud was when I tried to log into ebay and was denied. I went a little crazy, but eventually found the answer in my regular email box. Ebay had sent me a courtesy notice that I had changed my password. Since I had not changed it, I knew that something was wrong and responded to that mail. In an only slightly convoluted way ebay allowed me to actually change my password.

Ebay also informed me that fraudulent items had been posted for sale on ebay under my identity and that they had killed those auctions. Then Doug had this same thing happen. I believe that Mike Cummings described a similar things several months ago.

Later Doug an email from ebay that requested that Doug respond and include his password. As you can guess in this context, that was a fake message.

Doug contacted ebay about this message and received the response below. It is interesting that ebay chooses to call these messages spoof. A stronger word seems appropriate.

Thank you for contacting eBay's Trust & Safety Department about an email you received from an address that includes '@ebay.com' but that may not be an authentic email from eBay. We will investigate this situation immediately. Please be advised that there have been cases where people have attempted to gain access to an eBay member's personal information by sending "spoof" emails. Spoof emails intentionally give the false impression that they have been sent by eBay to solicit people to transmit their account information. Based on your inquiry to eBay's Trust and Safety Department, the email you received was likely a spoof. eBay is very concerned about spoof email and is taking prompt action to address the issue. If you think you may have entered personal information into a spoof site, we advise you to review the information at the web address below, which contains more detailed information about the following steps:

1. Change your eBay password and email account password Periodically changing your password is one of the most effective ways to maintain security on any Web site. If you think there is a possibility of a breach in your account security, we strongly suggest that you begin by changing your password.

2. Forward the email to Spoof@ebay.com If you haven't already done so, please forward a copy of the email, (which will include the full header), to spoof@ebay.com . Forwarding the email will help us investigate this matter more quickly. Please do not forward the email as an attachment or alter the subject line in any way. For more information on how to identify a header, please visit:

<http://pages.ebay.com/help/basics/information.html>

3. Protect your identity If you entered information such as your social security number or credit card numbers into a web site that you were directed to via a spoofed email, you need to take immediate action to protect your identity. The following web sites have valuable information on the steps you should take to protect yourself: eBay Help:

<http://pages.ebay.com/help/confidence/problems-identity-theft.html>
U.S. Government ID Theft Site:
<http://www.consumer.gov/idtheft/victim.htm> BBB ID Theft Site:
<http://www.newyork.bbb.org/identitytheft/newscams.html>
As we move forward with our investigation, we will contact you if we need further information. In order to dedicate resources to investigating this type of situation, please submit any other questions or concerns through our Help System, which can be accessed by clicking on the Help button at the top of any eBay page. *Please do not respond to this email as your reply will not be received. If you need to contact us again, please use the eBay Help system. We appreciate your efforts in helping keep eBay a safe online marketplace. Regards, eBay Trust & Safety Team

MFC Update

By Al Glaser

Since Fest IV we have had no fewer than 4 mini-Fests, an annual ANA Military Money Seminar, and in the next week our third Tex-Fest. This has created over 200 varieties of new MFC. While this is exciting for those who collect and compile research on MFC, it has become increasingly more difficult to keep track of and to receive the data on serial numbers and varieties since many first timers are attending mini-Fests.

Our thanks should go out to Dick and Loretta Freyser for organizing the Baltimore mini-Fest as well as Russ Walsh for surprising everyone in attendance on Saturday with a fabulous set of Emergency Military Fest Certificates in four denominations. I was not able to make Baltimore, so I still have not seen the notes in person. I would especially like to see the serial number 7 notes from the Saturday mini-Fest...did I mention I collect serial number 7 MFC notes?

I know it is the summer and free time seems to be at a premium, so I must apologize to the Gram staff for not sending in more articles. You spend put in a lot of time and effort getting this newsletter out for our entertainment, the readership needs to support your efforts. I also need the support of those who attend the Fests, mini-Fests and the Seminars. Military Fest Certificates have become a very entertaining aspect of these get-togethers. In fact, I know a number of you out there will attend a show that was not originally on your schedule, once you hear there will be a mini-Fest. My enthusiasm for MFC prompted me to begin researching MFC and put it into book form. With the incredible help from a few Festers we have been able to document the majority of varieties of MFC and record the serial and position numbers of thousands of notes. The ability to obtain this information was easier when there were only two to three events a year with most of the same faces attending. Now with so many events, so many new faces, the ability to document all the serial numbers and varieties cannot be done by the few. I NEED YOUR HELP! I really don't think I'm asking for much. A couple minutes of your time. You make it a point to show up for your pay...you should make it a point to be a part of this project. Anyone interested in being a part of this project can send serial and position number information to the following email address: thetrader.2@cox.net .

I will be attending the barbeque in Dallas, thanks again Doug for getting things organized, let me know if there is anything I can do to help. I am hoping to have update pages for the MFC book from Fest IV through Baltimore available (if I can get examples of the notes from those in attendance to scan) at the barbeque. Since these updates are not for sale, please make sure you have some MFC trading material...did I mention I collect 7's?

See the letters section below for commentary about how Gram 991 got out of order.

As you can imagine, the experience with ebay above was frustrating at best. It was also dangerous. The danger lies mostly with ebay. As wildly successful as ebay has been, this sort of activity could bring it down. It is with good cause that ebay calls the section in charge of fixing these problems Trust & Safety Team.

You might know that it is virtually impossible to find a phone number to call someone at ebay (rumor has it that ebay has three workers, Meg (chair) and two geeks). By digging deep in the ebay help menus, Doug (Wiz) was able to find a place for live chat with a problem solver. I asked him for the link to this chat function. He reported that there is not even a link to it, but it is still worth remembering that such a place does exist.

On another subject. If you are going to be at the Dallas MPC barbeque, and want to be paid, be sure to take a show ?n tell item.

letters/submissions for Gram 1000 special double issue should be sent to MPCGram1000@yahoo.com

Dear Gram,

So, did the power storm take Gram 991 with it as well?

Sparky

Dear Gram,

Please resend Gram 991. I only received 990 and 992.

Don

Dear Editor,

Gram 991 is MIA.

Wiz

Dear Gramsters,

As you know, I have tried before to inflate our numbers by cheating you out of a Gram or two. You would think that I would learn that I cannot get it past you, so here is your 991. We have had skips before. Possibly there have been duplicates, and there certainly have been fractional numbers, but I think that this is the first number to be issued out of order. Of course someone will tell me if this is not correct.

Often when I complete a Gram, I start on the next one. Then the next day I can insert breaking news and send it out. Without going into detail, when the power came back on, I saw that the last Gram was 991 so I created 992. The problem was that the 991 that I saw was the started, but unfinished/mailed 991.

Editor

My Dear Freditor,

Joe wrote about his having traded me a $5 Series 031 for my unsigned remainder $10.- but I'll be very happy to sign his note anytime, and it is immediately valid for $10 in trade at my table during CSNS next year here in Milwaukee- so it is technically an unsigned remainder right now (or is it? see below paragraph) but that situation is very easily remedied.

I do not want Joe to feel I got the better of him on that deal- he got a $10- and I got only a $5.

I will also say that he very generously offered me my choice of a $1, $5 or $10 of that series, and I took the $5 as I liked its design- but I still need the other two (hint).

By the way, can you have an "unsigned remainder" from a group of notes prepared for issue that has not yet had their time of issue? Isn't a remainder something left over AFTER the issue is done with? All the Milwaukee notes are thus potentially totally alive until after the CSNS in 2004. Just to clarify the situation a bit (or muddy it up more, depending on your assessment).

Neil S.

Dear Neil,

I like your scheme. If I had done it, the notes would have been redeemable at the 2224 for at least the 2024 CSNS show. Regarding the hint, if Joe offered you a $1 and a $10 in trade, you know where some are available. Other Festers may have some too.

WWII Neutral (?) Sweden

By Warner Talso

Serendipity. Every once in a while events conspire to provide a deeper explanation of issues than one ever expected. Such has just happened to me. First, recall that I wrote about WWII Soviet-Swedish bonds the MPC Gram of 11 Jul 2003. Second, I attended an International System Safety Conference in Ottawa, Canada, last week. Third, I took along my newly acquired copy of "Neither Friend Nor Foe,?" by Jerrold M. Packard. A very readable, and eye-opening, book about the five neutral European nations in WWII. And, fourth, I discussed Sweden's role in WWII with a very good Swedish friend at the conference, Ragnar Ekholm. The details are fascinating, and since this is my column, I get to tell the story.

The Soviet-Swedish Bonds were first discussed in Gram Number 292 of March 27, 2001 by Gramster Mikhail Istomin of Kharkov, Ukraine. These were for loans given by the Swedish government to the USSR in 1941-42 according to a credit agreement between Sweden and the USSR in September 1940. The bonds surfaced in Russia about four years ago. Speculation was that Sweden wanted to balance their close trade links with the nazi Germany. It remains unclear why these were not provided in a standard way by funds transfer through banks. There are two possible explanations: 1) Sweden and the USSR wanted to keep the loans confidential. And this was the easiest way to keep the secret. 2) Sweden was in doubt as for repayment and this seemed to be the best way to have some evidence to present in courts.

Sweden, like all the neutrals, was not truly neutral. More accurately they were "non-belligerents.?" They bowed to pressure, depending on the pressure and who was perceived as winning. Their sole goal was to stay out of the war. Sweden has some of the worlds most pure iron ore in the North at Kiruna. Germany had long been a trading partner. Nazi Germany insisted on maintaining this relationship after the outbreak of WWII hostilities. This ore was shipped through the northern Norwegian town of Narvik to the sea and hence by ship to Germany. Nazi Germany then occupied Norway. Shipment by sea was no longer safe since the British Royal Navy controlled the North Sea. Norway had no land transportation links with the far north. Germany prevailed on Sweden to ship the ore through Sweden to the Baltic Sea, which was now controlled by the Germans. OK, so far. Then Germany wanted to use Swedish rail to ship troops to establish a garrison at Narvik. Once, then twice, then weekly. A slippery slope. Each time, Sweden balked, then acquiesced to pressure. This is the "transit" issue that was the overriding moral dilemma of "neural" Sweden. At one point, King Gustav V considered abdicating rather than appear to support this violation of neutrality.

Now consider Sweden's relationship with Finland. They have never been at war with each other and for a short time, were a single nation. There is a great deal of empathy and solidarity between the two countries. Russia invaded Finland on 30 Nov 1939 in what is called the Winter War. Finland's Army of 135,000 troops withstood the Russian Army of about 1,000,000 for 105 days. Sweden allowed 8,000 volunteers to join the Finns and provided significant materiel to their brothers. The world sympathized, but did little. Finland was forced to give up 22,000 square miles or 12% of its land.

Then Germany invaded Russia. Finland, a long time democracy, had little love for Nazi Germany, but they saw an opportunity to regain their lost land. On 25 Jun 1941, Finland declared themselves a co-belligerent of Germany-not an ally, and attacked Russia with the objective of regaining lost territory. In support of this effort Germany forced Sweden to allow a complete Wehrmacht division (Engelbrecht Division) to transit Sweden. Fifteen thousand troops and all their materiel traversed the neutral kingdom at the rate of 4 trainloads per day for 2 weeks. Sweden was now deeply linked to the invasion of Russia. It was at this time that Sweden offered to loan Russia highly desired hard currency.

I submit that this history, only briefly outlined here, provides the basis for a third reason for these Soviet-Swedish bonds. That is as a bribe (I cannot think of a better word) to counterbalance the implied support of the Finnish/German invasion of Russia. Bonds would then be a vehicle by which to prove Swedish support of Russia, should proof of such support be needed in the future.

Gram headquarters was down for only a few hours from the power outage. It was sufficient reason to miss yesterday's Gram. I lost about 35 phone messages to the outage. These were unheard message. Of course most of them were probably from long-distance salesmen, but some may have been opportunities lost. These 35 are on top of 30+ that were lost a week ago to a thunderstorm last week. That is sufficient time to have lost two messages from the same person. I am sorry.

Dear Gram,

I first want to point out that here has been no re-publication (at least intentional) of any of the Grams. PMW is simply the location of the Gram archive. Of course we could locate that archive anywhere: say the ANA Library or the Port Clinton Black Hole (heaven forbid), but who would it be accessible to? I was under the impression that the Gram was all about the exchange of information? That notion appears to be going to hell in a hand basket now.

Doug Bell has put a lot of work into the Gram archive over the past few years and has really transformed it into a great research tool. This is something that Doug and rest of us should be really proud of (not angry about).

It is very disturbing to hear that Gail Baker (Educational Director of the ANA) shying away from utilizing Gram articles in her activities. Although I only speak for myself, I have never written an article for the MPCGram for the great pay. I will bet that the vast majority of any of the other writers for the Gram would agree. For the record Gail, the ANA is welcome to reprint any of the articles that I authored in the Gram.

Sorry folks, I just don't see the downside. Fred, you don't get paid enough to put up with the incessant whining...

Marcus Turner

Dear Marcus,

Thank you for your support. You might be surprised to realize that the purpose of copyright protection is to encourage the distribution of information! It does that by protecting the creators of ideas. I am tempted to discuss this matter much more, but will resist pending indication of more interest on the subject.

Dear Gram,

Neil brings up a feature of the Milwaukee trade notes that I had forgotten. Yes, I did trade him a note for the one that I obtained in Baltimore - as I recall, it was a $5 series 031 SEMINAR III note. Since the piece I received from him is merely an unsigned remainder, it looks like he got the better end of the deal. No, I won't trade it for $5 in current fest notes.

Gram Charity

by Fred Schwan and Trung Nguyen

A few weeks ago I received a list of MPC for sale by Trung Nguyen. I refused to run this list! This is the story.

Along with the list Nguyen wrote that he was selling his collection to raise money for the Thuan An, Vietnam orphans. The entire proceeds were to go to that cause.

I wrote to him that I thought that was a very bad idea. I believe that there is a better way and that Gramsters will want to help. I suggested that Nguyen agree to be a coordinator of our efforts and that we (he and I) propose the membership (so to speak) that we make these orphans our favorite charity.

Nguyen was hesitant, but I encouraged him. He wrote the following letter.

Thanks for your support and encouragement. Only those who had seen the plight of the poorest of the poor can relate to the issue. While not starving to death by any measures, the deaf orphans of Thuan An Viet Nam are living on the charity of some nuns. Whatever little aid available from all sources can only amount to a substandard living for the children and the nuns; and it is a Vietnamese standard, which is considerably lower than most of us here have ever experienced.

During my last trip to the homeland I saw their supply of daily stable. Even rice, the most basic item on their diet, was of the lowest grade available. Their supplemental items such as fish and meat - if ever available to them - were the rejected from the local market. Treats of any type and however insignificant are rare. There are probably a lot more orphanages in Viet Nam, but I can only be connected to one. You can figure that. Supporting one orphanage is a tremendous joy, but it is already a financial burden.

I was blessed with meeting the orphans of Thuan An in the summer of 2001. Their first Christmas celebration ever was arranged in the same year. In 2002 I bought a summer mountain vacation for 50 kids (Da Lat) and again the Christmas dinner. There was a lot of dipping into saving etc in addition to the selling of quite a few items. This year I am trying every way possible to keep at least the Christmas tradition alive.

I am hoping that all the items [in the collection list NOT run in the Gram--Ed] will find a taker. Please add to the printing that I am willing to take any reasonable offer. The orphans much rather have a smaller dinner than no dinner at all.

Right now I am focusing on the immediate needs of the orphans. Your recommendation is wonderful. The problem is that I do not have the knowledge or skill to start such a grand-scheme project. You may have noticed that I am in nuclear power business and that's all I have learned so far in life. Your idea is terrific, but it will take some time to materialize - and I do not have any idea how the community will receive the concept of charity on the gram. Any way, there is already a scholarship.

Thanks for the thoughts. For the time being I just have to sell off things.

I will talk to you some times.

Best regards

Trung Nguyen

Here is an extract from the next letter from Nguyen:

Here in the states I have a friend who farms a thousand acres. He can easily give me tons of beans. I only wish there was some miracle that allows me to transport the soybeans to them. Sister Marie Mai-Anh told me that in early 2002 some charity gave them a load of soybeans; within weeks the kids showed the results of the extra protein in their diet. What we take for granted here, freedom for one, basic food for another, seems to be life's struggling elsewhere.

Yes, Mr. Fred, I would love nothing more than some sort of long-term charity for the deaf orphans of Thuan An. I have been doing it all by myself, mostly by dumping all kinds of collection. All the sudden I came to realize that the orphans need and deserve nutrition and a bit of comfort more than I deserved my collection. My financial situation, like any one with a fixed income, allows very limited assistance to the children. To add to the burden I have friends and close family members back home who need financial assistance. They too make quite a ding in my pocket.

If your idea can materialize, it will mean the world to the orphans. I sure do not know how to even start. I have never done any grand-scale project of that caliber, but what made me hesitate was the fact that our gram already ran a charity involving the scholarship. I sure do not place an undue burden on the gramsters. Once I wrote to Mr. 691 asking for help. I offered to buy a set of 691 at a reasonable price, the amount of dollar I already put aside to give to children this summer. You see, the kids were taken to a summer trip, nothing too costly or fancy, just a short trip to another orphanage couple hundreds of kilometers away. The children were going to be provided with room and board at the other orphanage, but I thought it would be nice if they were provided with a special meal in town. Plus each one should be given some kind of spending money amount to about US $2. I was thinking if Mr. 691 would sell me a set of 691 for the amount, I would sell it and send them the whole amount. Beside food, the money could also be used for the kitchen, which can use a bit of repair and refurbishment. I did not even receive a ?no.? It was quite embarrassing and thus I shied away from looking for help outside my own means. None of the children of the Thuan An Center are orphans of the Vietnam war, and, rightly so, folks in the US are not concerned. I am connected to them because I am a Vietnamese. I was only fortunate enough to not become an orphan. After all it was a war; millions parents died and their children simply became orphans.

I did send all the money allocated for the 2002 summer trip - without any help from any one. The money did not pay for the trip, just a meal or two and spending money.

My next project will be an ice maker. You sure can remember the heat there. The children does not have even a fan to cool themselves, they sure can use an ice maker. If they can have an ice maker or a freezer I am sure their quality of life will improve tremendously.

Thanks again, and I will love to summon your help to do some thing for the kids on the long-term basis. Not every one I speak to share the same view, not even my siblings except one. Two friends at work, however, have always added to the fund whenever I decided or became able to send help. The kids there don't know who we are. They only see me whenever I show up and the nuns had already informed them of my promise to provide a Christmas meal.

Nguyen has agreed to the project and will act as the coordinator, but work will be required of everyone--if we decide to take on the project. I hope that Howard Daniel and/or possibly his wife will cochair this project (this is the first that the master sergeant has heard of the project).

If we agree to make these orphans our favorite charity or at least a Gram charity, I have several fund raising ideas in mind (bet you are surprised about that!).

Obviously we will just accept donations of money or material. Material donations will be treated just as we treat the scholarship donations now. They will be sold via the Gram, Fest auction, ebay, whatever.

I will take on the task of creating souvenir/receipt notes to be given to donors. The idea came from the winterhilfswerk and bonde solidaritate issues from World War II. Initially, I imagine overprinting actual MPC from the Vietnam era with an appropriate message. These items will be given to donors.

=====
Editorial/opinion

As you can tell, I strongly support the Gram charity proposal. I hope that you do to, but even if you do not, I would like to have your opinions for the Gram.

A few more issues/details need to be addressed. I see 2.5 objections to the idea. First, that these donations might somehow detract from the scholarship fund raising. While this is a possibility, I think that it is worth the risk. Partially to offset this, while I create the orphan notes, I will also create souvenirs for scholarship donors. Secondly, some might have an objection to Nguyen choice of Christmas dinner. I have this feeling somewhat myself, but to me it is overridden by two other factors. Basically, if Nguyen is doing the work, we should let him manage it. Later, if we generate significant money over several years (which I think we can), then some committee might get involved in distribution decisions.

The one half objection is that some accountability will be necessary. I think that this is also a little premature, but certainly we will want to keep this in mind as we work on this project (if we decide to).

Neither Nguyen nor Howard Daniel have seen this so I hope that I have not stepped on their toes in any way. Please let us hear from you.

Dear Esteemed Editor,

It is Sunday morning on the Middle Atlantic region of the Right Coast and my news is telling me that the 2003 Blackout was caused by something and/or someone in Ohio! Ohio? Do we have a Gramster Post Engineer who might start looking around Port Clinton for the source of the blackout?

As for eBay, I regularly receive emails that appear to be from them. I forward ALL of them to cshelp@ebay.com so they will see what is going on. They have put people on them to trace them back to the sources and have been successful at nailing some of these guys (and gals?) who are trying to get private information out of us.

The Master Sergeant Daniel

Dear Gram,

I do not know if this appropriate for the gram, but here goes.

I get "official" looking emails all the time asking to update my account, asking for my email address and password, as well as my eBay user ID and password! Naturally I immediately trash them, but sometimes forward them to the real eBay.

And yes, within the past few months my eBay account was taken over not once, but TWICE by fraudulent operators.

The first time it happened I was having lunch at an Applebee's in Lakeland. My cell phone rang since I had call forwarded the office number to it. When I answered, the guy on the other end identified himself from eBay and wanted to know if I had listed any high-powered dollar items on eBay that morning. When I asked, like what, he said electronic items and I responded definitely not. He said, just as we thought, we'll cancel them immediately. Then he said that they (the scumbags) had changed my password, email address, etc. Changing your email address is most important as that is how they advise the "buyer" to send them money.

What a mess, but I got it all cleared up in a day and talked on the phone a couple times with the guy who had called me. I thought all was OK.

Shortly afterwards, say within a month it happened AGAIN! I was very upset. Actually I was on a trip overseas to Japan and Korea. When I was checking my lots one morning very very early in a PC Room (which is very popular and cheap here) I noticed that there were several high-dollar items from $3000.00 to $7000.00 running under my account. TV's, etc.

I was furious and I thought, I'll show them. I used an old eBay user ID of mine and I bid or BOUGHT IT NOW all the fraudulent lots for very high prices. If it was listed for $5000.00, I bid $10,000. If it was BUY IT NOW for $7000, I bought it! Then for good measure I emailed them telling what scumbags they were.

I felt good. Real good. I had defeated them, I thought.

All was well until a couple months later for some reason I checked my eBay MY SITE which I seldom do. I clicked on the LEAVE FEEDBACK FOR MEMBERS and there were 7 lots I needed to leave feedback on. The seven fraudulent lots which I had bought with my old eBay user ID. Well, a few months had passed and I had forgot that I had bid on them myself, but still angry, I gave EVERY LOT a negative feedback saying "BEWARE, SCAM ARTIST"

Well, what I had did unknowingly, was leave myself 7 NEGATIVE FEEDBACKS. To make matters worse, I did not realize it until very recently as I seldom if ever check my old account. But when I did, there were the 7 NEGATIVES.....someone emailed me and asked, what gives?

All is well now, I emailed eBay and explained the whole situation and they removed all the negatives.

Anyway, what gramsters should know is that they should change their password frequently. I used to use the same password for all my different accounts. That is real FOOLISH, especially for things like PayPal.....I just changed that password today. Also after this happened I changed all my passwords and put them into Japanese. Then I learned it does not matter what language they are in, if they can observe your keystrokes they could be in any language.

Anyway, a word to the wise.....do not answer emails from someone who says they are eBay. EBAY will NEVER ask you sensitive information in an email.

Dear Gram,
Dear Editor,
In response to the question that you asked in Gram #991.

Your suspicion is correct (again). Gram #991 is the first Gram, that has been mailed out of numerical sequence. You have however, sent...

Gram #520 & #520-2
Gram #525 & #525-2
There are a few more.
Ed

Dear Ed,
Since yesterday was Gram 991, I nearly numbered this one 992. Only your letter stopped/saved me! Thanks.

Comments on Most Things

by Robert Drew

I think we have all been frustrated by eBay at one time or another, and it is hard to contact them. I bought a Beginner's Guide to eBay and in it, are two telephone number's to reach eBay. (800-322-9266 or 408-369-4830). Sometimes it's easier to call and explain the problem than to type for a half hour.

I am all for supporting a worthy cause, I like many of you helped Joe with his ride for MS. I may be feeling a little suspicious lately, because for the past two months, I get a couple of emails a week, asking me to help in one of the infamous Nigerian scams. If this request to help the orphanage could be verified than I would not mind helping, I just would not want to have us all spend time and money, if it's not for real. One thing the orphanage needs to do is get a new activities director. If I was a child in a orphanage and got to take a trip 200 kilometers away, I would want to visit something else besides another orphanage. Once its verified that it is a legitimate I will be the first (maybe the first) to give $20.00. If all the gramsters give a little, we can probably buy enough food for a year. We may be able to set up a tax deductible foundation to give the money to.

I know it is been two weeks since the ANA convention but I was not able to get into my email for a few days. This was my first major ANA convention and all I can say is WOW!! Even though I am not a collector of those shiny round metallic things, seeing all 5 of the 1913 Liberty Head nickels was quite a sight. There were so many tables set up for the exhibitors it was the size of a local coin show itself. I would rate most of the exhibits amazing to unbelievable. I would second Joe's review of John Whitney's exhibit on Ways to Collect Paper Money. I do not think you would be able to see that many scarce to rare notes in almost all Unc condition in any one place ever again. If you are a paper money collector or even if you collect those round things, there are two things you need to do if you are serious about your hobby. One is to attend a summer seminar in Colorado Springs, the other is to attend a ANA convention. Both will increase your enthusiasm about your hobby 1000% as well as increase your knowledge. At Baltimore not counting the United States they were 18 foreign mints & government agencies and they were at least 400 + dealers, suppliers, grading services, publication company's and even our current favorite topic, eBay had a table as well. They were also 20 + clubs with information tables as well. The only one that I noticed was not there was the editor of the world famous gram. He only missed the most exciting event in numismatic history, second only to the Port Clinton Fest.

The next events to get ready for are MPC Fest V Mar 5-7, the ANA National Money Show in Portland OR Mar 26-28, (The Money Show is held in the spring and is about 1/2 the size of the Aug convention) ANA Summer Seminar June 26-July 2 and July 3 - July 9th, then the 113th ANA National Convention held in Pittsburgh. Start saving now, sell of your extra's from your collection, have a yard sale, get a second job, do whatever it takes to make one or more of these events. You will have a great time, increase your knowledge, make new friends and did I mention have a great time.

=====

We have an interesting situation on which I need your advice. A Gramster wrote me about a lot on ebay. Here is a link to the item:

<http://cgi.ebay.com/ws/eBayISAPI.dll?ViewItem&item=3039859708&category=3434&rd=1>

Here is the text of the item.

1942 GERMANY WW II GERMAN MPC & ALLIED CFTS
AUXILIARY PAYMENT CERTIFICATES, GERMAN ARMED FORCES.
INTENDED AS LEGAL TENDER WITHIN THE SERVICES DURING WORLD WAR II. THE NOTES WERE WORTH 10 TIMES THE FACE VALUE IF SPENT IN MILITARY CHANNELS.
THIS GROUP INCLUDES PICK M-32 - 1 REICHSPFENNIG, M-34
- 10 REICHSPFENNIG AND THE SCARCE M37 - 2 REICHMARK.
THE NOTES AT RIGHT ARE GENUINE NOTES AND THE ONES ON THE LEFT ARE ALLIED (U.S., BRITISH) COUNTERFEITS.
AN UNUSUAL GROUP WITH LOTS OF HISTORY AND QUITE SCARCE
TO FIND TOGETHER.
ALL NOTES ARE CRISP UNCIRCULATED.

The Gramster said that he had never heard of Allied counterfeits of these notes. I replied that these fakes are almost certainly modern, well, fakes. We have no information on Allied counterfeits, and these fakes have been seen commonly. Initially the 1 rpf was seen, then the others.

I wrote to the seller (twice, possibly three times) using the ask the seller a question function at ebay. He finally wrote back that the consignor insisted that they are as described and that he had had them since WWII or some similar story.

I intended to write this story before the auction ended, but forgot/procrastinated (fire away). I was going to get insistent with the seller, but it is a bit late for that. One idea was that if we did not get cooperation to get 400 Gramsters to write inquiries.

Now that the auction is finished, the situation is slightly different, but not completely. I am confident that this was a deceptive, possibly fraudulent auction. Can and/or should we do something about it to protect the integrity of our hobby? Even if we should do something, what should it be?

Those are the questions that I ask you. Help please.

2004 scholarship fund

Donations of cash and numismatic material will be gladly accepted. Generally the numismatic material is auctioned at MPCFest, but might be sold via ebay or other places. Your scholarship donations help the hobby by sending qualified individuals to the ANA summer seminar military money class. Except for unavoidable charges like ebay fees, 100% of your donation goes to scholarships.

Those Fakes

by Joe Boling

Let's talk about the eBay lot with the so-called Allied counterfeits of the Behelfzahlungsmittel notes, the subject of the editorial in gram 994. I have a reprint/fake/replica of the 2RM note, which I obtained in 1999. The dealer I got it from had evidently had for quite a while before that, in his personal collection. It is one color, dull pink, pretty close to the one in the eBay lot. It is printed on low-grade wove paper (mottled but not watermarked when held to the light), by line lithography, and is definitely not made using "modern" technology. However, even though the illustrations on the eBay page are pretty small, it does not appear to be the same production as the one offered there - that one is brighter and has better contrast across its length. The portions that are dark blue on the original are practically invisible on mine, but not so on the eBay piece. So it appears that those are replicas from a different source than the one I have.

The 50 rpfg propaganda piece that I have (discussed in gram 844) is not on the same paper as my replica 2RM note. Recall that the propaganda piece is watermarked. It is also on wove paper, but the paper is more uniform and more dense than the 2RM replica.

Naturally, I would love to examine the pieces that were sold on eBay. If any reader knows the winning bidder (tizzian500), please put him/her in touch with me (joeboling@aol.com). If any of you have examples of these replicas (or other replicas of these notes), please let me examine them also.

As for the issue of warning buyers about the potential for such lots being modern productions, my understanding is that eBay applies stiff sanctions to registered eBay users who communicate with bidders outside the auction process. I suppose someone who is not a user could do so without much risk, but if you intend to continue to use eBay, you have to be careful about who you offend. Stamp collectors have this problem continually; I see articles in Linn's about philatelic fakes on eBay about once a month.

I have not forgotten about my promise to talk about the new exhibit format for ANA spring conventions, but I have not written the material for ANA yet. Have patience.

More on Those Fakes

Jim Downey

I also wrote to the seller of these items to ask what his source was that the copies were contemporary counterfeits. He failed to respond. I have seen the copy of the 2RM piece on a number of occasions. They first surfaced in the 1990s.

Even though I can offer no proof otherwise, I do not believe the items were made by the Allies. Why would they have counterfeited military notes that had a limited circulation? I could see making copies with propaganda messages, but that would be about it.

I have made it a practice of notifying sellers when they have incorrect information in their listings or if they suggest the notes are more valuable than they are. Usually, they are receptive because they know little about the material in the first place. A recent example involved a listing that indicated that BAFSV were used in the Falklands. Like the present case, the seller indicated that it was what he had been told. He did correct the listing. I have also received a few negative responses from sellers such as a gentleman who insisted that the notes he had listed, including two pieces of AMC yen, were taken from a dead Japanese soldier in the Philippines.

There is a fine line between sales puffery and fraud. Fraud requires that the seller know that their representation was false. The seller of this item may very well have been told the copies were contemporary counterfeits rather than modern fakes. Once their authenticity is questioned, however, the seller has an obligation to find out the truth and correct their representations if they are indeed false.

There is little that can be done about these matters. Ebay is not likely to be very aggressive where sellers only "repeat what they were told." It would be next to impossible to keep track of sellers and their listings to determine whether a seller makes it a habit of doing this.

May I brag a little bit? I bought an item on ebay that I really like and want to share with you. The easiest way to show it to you is to give you the link to the ebay auction. Have a look at it before you read my comments.

<http://cgi.ebay.com/ws/eBayISAPI.dll?ViewItem&item=3039833940&category=376&rd=1>

First, it came in yesterday and I like it more than I thought that I would it is very nice. You know why I was/am interested, right?

I just love the EA Wright Bank Note Company. It is one of those many obscure little bank note companies that operated from about 1850 to 1950. Of particular interest to us is the fact that EAW printed 21 different notes for six French colonies during World War II. They are some of the most distinctive notes of the war period.

I have been very interested in the company since 1972. In 1977 I was fortunate to get to interview EA Wright III who was the final Wright to operate the company and who supervised its sale.

That interview became the basis of a pamphlet The Paper Money of the E. A. Wright Bank Note Company. If you want to know more of the story, try to find a copy of the pamphlet. Otherwise, wait and I will probably get around to telling more of the story here.

letters/submissions for Gram 1000 special double issue should be sent to MPCGram1000@yahoo.com

Hi Philippine Numismatists,

Just a note that the current Mailbid Sale ends in less than two weeks on Sunday, 31 August. If per chance you did not receive a list through the mail, please let me know quickly as there is still time to mail one to you. Or you can check my web page: <http://mywebpages.comcast.net/cjcpi> and email me your bids. I have just posted both sections of the mailbid sale and it contains the current high bids I have received through 17 August. I plan to post high bids one more time probably on the 28th or 29th of August. There are many lots that have not received a minimum bid yet.

Those of you that were able to attend the Philippine Collectors Forum (PCF) had a great time according to all reports I have received. A summary of what went on is contained on my web page. Also, check page 71 of the latest edition of Coin World (Aug 25th) as they had a staff writer there to document the great meeting. If I can find collectors interested in doing presentations, we will plan another session at the ANA show in Pittsburgh next July and San Jose in 2005. Let me know your interest.

At the end of the talks at PCF, I gave each presenter a just produced copy of the "Report of the Special Mission To the Philippines" printed at the Manila Bureau of Printing in 1921. I recently purchased a very fragile copy of this little known historical report which details the people, economy, and banking system as of the early 1920s and outlines the country's problems. I had a limited number of copies made. Within the report was an interesting color map showing how the Mission members traveled the length of the country by auto, boat, horse, carabao, etc. The document is legal size and 27 pages long. (I have a few extra copies available at $15 plus postage.)

Look forward to hearing from you on any topic of interest.

Dear Gram,
As for the problem of getting the Gram - As I reported several times before I left for ANA, I was getting TWO copies every day. I thought that might be solved by the time I got back from the big show BUT noooooo!! Up through today I am still getting 2 a day and that added to the 879 e-mails I had waiting for me when I got back. And you know I just had to read BOTH copies to be sure I had not missed something. Think we can fix it now? My eyes are almost burned out. You are still doing a good job. Best wishes from -

Leo (eye strained) May

Dear PM,
In addition to a flip comment about not charging for the extra Gram, I must say that the staff is not very motivated to try to fix your problem. If you were not using AOL, we might try. Your duplicate came about when the same staff worked very hard to defeat AOLs difficult spam policies. Given the nature of that problem (especiallay at AOL) we just cannot see trying to fix this problem then have you drop to zero one of these days so that we have to try to unfix it.
Give the extra Gram to charity?

Editor

Dear Esteemed Editor,
I am staring at a stack of paper money and related items donated to the IBNS by several people at the recent ANA Convention in Baltimore. I am not as bad as you at forgetting things, but I must be getting closer.
My forgetting concerns one packet of military pieces donated by a Gramster for the IBNS Bank Note Program where I give a free piece of financial paper to school-age children who attend ANA Shows and Conventions. I can remember he is a Gramster but for some reason I cannot remember his name. I really want to know because I always like to send a thank you email and/or letter, but maybe he wanted to be anonymous and this will be thank you enough. Thank you sir.
The Master Sergeant Daniel

P.S. I gave pieces to 285 school-age children, and one to a good-looking woman who I had to thank for putting up with me with a free bank note.

Dear Howard,

WestFest I

By Al Glaser

WestFEST I We will be organizing a Mini-FEST at the Long Beach Coin, Stamp and Collectible Expo. Long Beach Convention center September 19th and 20th. I know we have a great many MPC enthusiasts hailing from California and surrounding states who attend the Long Beach show. Only a few have made the long journey east to attend a Fest or mini-Fest. Here is your chance to see up close and personal what some of the MPC/MFC crazies out there are constantly talking about in the Gram. Help and ideas are welcome, we can do a Friday and Saturday event or one or the other. A show and tell item or a MPC/MFC story is a must in order to receive pay. YES...BRING YOUR PAYBOOKS. Those without paybooks will receive hazard pay for being able to negotiate the traffic and construction zones enroute to the show and attending the mini-Fest. Your comments are welcome at thetrader.2@cox.net. Please let the Gram know if you are able to attend. More info to follow when we have some!

=====

=====

It is uncanny. I tossed a few comments back at Leo because he was complaining about receiving two Grams. Part of my point was that the computer operations have been fairly stable over the past few months. Well, that very Gram gave me trouble! Indeed, it is possible that some of you did not receive 995 (especially if you are an AOL user, let me know).

Activities have started in Dallas. Reports are in that lot viewing was heavy on Wednesday.

Lyn Knight and Joel Shafer were awarded challenge coins for their service to the hobby. For those of you who will be in Dallas, you know what that means! Challenge early, challenge often.

I think that it is wonderful that Al is stepping forward to hold a CalFest. When he first mentioned this, I thought that he could use the meeting as a political rally if he could get his fee submitted in time to be on the California ballot. I am confident that if all California MPC collectors could be gathered behind one candidate (Al), we could have our first MPC governor.

We will try to have a Gram after the auction on Thursday. It might be the Thursday Gram, or it might be an extra, but we will try.

letters/submissions for Gram 1000 special double issue should be sent to MPCGram1000@yahoo.com

Dear Gram,

As long as we are discussing upcoming events, please do not forget the IBNS London Congress on October 4 and 5 at the Trade Union Congress hall, two blocks from the British Museum. This is a relatively small event compared to Memphis or Maastricht, but in the past there has been no shortage of WWII items on the floor. It is definitely a fun event. Besides, do you need a better excuse to visit London in October? It is not too late to expedite a passport or get a decent airfare within the 21-day advance period.

If you have a paybook, bring it along and you shall be paid. If you do not have a paybook, find a challenge coin. Anyone who presents their (own, personal, not someone else's) challenge coin shall qualify for partial pay. If you do not have a challenge coin, get one now! They should not be difficult to find.

Marcus Turner

Dear Gram,

I can and do attest that "Who Has Fours" was at ANA. I looked over my table to see all 4 of his eyes looking back at me. (I had my glasses off at the time.) I was also at ANA but did not get any of the 'monies' that all the others got because I had to man my General Quarters station when those events were taking place. I would hope that some kind of arrangement could be made for us that would love to attend the events but are prevented from doing so by the press of 'business'. After all, it is my General Quarters station that Festers come to dig out some of the goodies they go home with. By the way, I will have some interesting new Philippine (some notes I have now seen before) and concentration camp stuff with me on my next trip. (We leave here on Monday headed to a show in Ohio.) That's right, Fred, I am headed your way. By the way, Fred, have you recovered from the blackout yet? Have to get back to work.

Best wishes - Paymaster

Dear Marcus,

Is this a mini Fest?

Editor

Dear Esteemed Editor,

Several people a month request I look at a particular eBay numismatic or exonumia item and tell them if it is authentic. Sometimes I can see whether it is a copy, counterfeit or authentic and I give them my opinion. When I cannot tell from the picture/description, I send an email to the owner and request the weight or something else to assist me. Nine out of ten owners favorably respond to me and the rest just ignore me. When I can give my opinion, I give it to the requester and the owner. Most of my opinions have produced some excellent comments and results, but there are a few that could burn the print off your computer's screen. In my field of Southeast Asia, there are a goodly number of copies made to sell to collectors (and the greedy). Many of them eventually come onto the U.S. and European numismatic markets. When I identify them at a show or convention, the good and bad responses are about the same as I receive on eBay, so eBay is not much different (for me) than the real world. But I have found that the non-dealer owners of militaria are much, much more likely to send me a very favorable reply to my correction and/or comment about their SE Asia special operations, intelligence, psywar and related items. In a good number of cases, they have withdrawn the item and kept it for their collections, when I told them it was authentic and scarce to rare. I agree with the writer that the eBay marketplace is there for eBay to lose. Ebay needs to allocate much more money from their substantial profits to fix their problems, and they are fixable. If they do not get a handle on them, there will appear another eBay-lookalike to take their business away from them. Is not capitalism and a free market wonderful?

The Master Sergeant Daniel

Dear Gram,

I was unable to use the link for the EA Wright story. Any other way to see what you bought?
Paymaster

Dear PM,

Well, I am very tempted to blame your problem on AOL, but it does not really matter what the problem was. I suppose I can scan it and post it at PMW. That will have to wait at least a week however. The good news is I guess that I can use that as an excuse to talk about EA Wright again!

Covering the entire World of Military Numismatics
Series 004 - Number 1001 Tuesday September 2, 2003

A milestone (Not more kiloGram)

by Joe Boling

Last week I completed the first series in my quest to collect the MPC basic 90-note set in position 8. For quite a while I have had only one note missing from each of six series, and also one note missing from two denomination sets. This piece was not on an intersection, a note that would fill both a series and a denomination, but at least now I have one row filled.

A 611 quarter did the trick. Who'd 'ave thunk that 611 would be the first series filled? I was expecting to fill series 481 or 641 first, both of which I used, once upon a decade.

I was at Bill Henderson's place, looking for notes to use as stage props in a play set in 19th century Germany, and was going through his junk boxes. This VG note was in his $5 box (that's right - junk boxes aren't what they used to be).

I now have 67 of the ninety basic notes (fortunately, no position 8 in the 651 fractionals is known to me). The toughest series for me has been 661 (another series I used), with four notes missing. The toughest denominations have been 25c (a surprise) and 50c (not a surprise). The cost of the first 67 notes has been $5449.03 (almost half of that, $2505.50, was for one note - the 541 $5 in VF+).

I am now looking for the following to complete my position 8 set: 461 $10; 471 5c, 25c, 50c; 472 50c; 481 50c (no preference as to printing, for any series); 521 $5; 541 50c, $1, $10; 591 10c, $1; 641 25c; 651 $5, $10; 661 25c, 50c, $10, $20; 681 25c, $20; 692 25c, $10. I have a token replacement, and an example of an evidence note. All I need in the way of special pieces is a counterfeit in position 8. If a reader has a position 8 that I need, I offer to replace it with an equivalent piece from one of the several dealers who support our obsession.

I guess that I must have gotten a little smug with kiloGram, because right after publishing that, Gram plans started to fall apart. This Gram was mostly prepared last Friday to be published on Saturday morning before I went out of town on a social event. I figured that I would miss Sunday, but put out a Monday Gram when I got home late on Monday. So here we are on Tuesday sending out what should have been the Saturday Gram. Computer time was the biggest problem, but other factors got in the way too.

The worst part of all is that Joe Bolings column for last Tuesday was delayed till Saturday because of the kiloGram brouhaha then until today. That means that Joe feels (I assume) that he can skip his column for this week. Drat.

I am working hard on solving the wi-fi nut so that the Gram can be delivered from most anywhere. Are there any wi-fi expert Gramsters? If so please hold my hand!

=====

Dear Gram,

After Joe Boling graciously got me going on the MPCGrams, I thought it time that I contribute once instead of just reading and digesting all the interesting info that each gram brings.

In 1949, my wife and I landed in Yokohama, Japan to begin what would be 40 years of missionary work in the Tokyo-Yokohama-Yokosuka area (with a 9-month stint in Korea giving out Scripture portions to American and Korean soldiers all across the front lines just after the hostilities ceased). (As a further aside, in Scripture distribution at MacArthur's request in Japan in the 50s, I worked side by side on one occasion with none other than the converted-to-Christianity Mitsuo Fuchida, leader of the attack on Pearl Harbor - I have a photo as proof) I had just come out of what was then the "Organized Reserve" of the navy. But till 1960 I was inactive, when I got the word, "Get active or get out." So I started meeting with a navy reserve unit in, I think, Tokyo. I also started taking my annual two weeks training duty, and remember getting paid with lots of nice fresh MPC. How I wish I had saved some! I also remembering jumping out of my car to pick up a bill that was blowing around just inside the gate of the Yokosuka Navy Base. It was a $5.00 MPC note. Could it have been the series 591 $5.00? I will never know, because (sigh!) I spent it!

But this letter is really about the years of shopping we did at the "OSS (Overseas Supply Store?) on what was then Ginza Street near Y Avenue. As foreigners we were given permission to use FTPC (see WWII Remembered, pgs 326 ff). Many were the books that we bought for our food shopping there, and I can not believe now that of all the books we bought I spent every chit. My recollection is that there were also $25.00 books of the stuff; but I am probably more likely to be wrong than Freditor. Before leaving Japan I recall having learned the value of those chits and books; so I went back to that very building in hopes that they could find me an old chit book buried in the archives. I still wonder today if offering them a 1964 Olympic silver 1000 yen coin might have helped me attain my goal. Oh well, at least I know that a lot of great collector stuff passed through my hands. That is it for now; but maybe more will follow if desired, and if I get around to it.

Just call me "Vic"

Dear Gram,

I read that Fred won the Dallas poker games. Can that be right?

Notwithstanding the amazing feats in Ripleys Believe it or Not, this report is not credible. The editor should not be allowed to publish such self serving comments. Please give use the correct results.

Most of you know that Fred likes books. A copy of Poker for Kids was seen in his car. I think that better indicates his level of skill, or if the report was correct, the level of the competition.

Cuneyd

FOR SALE

I have a few duplicates from the R. A. Median collection auctioned by Lyn Knight at Dallas last weekend:
20 yen A series 100, this is the series used as trial
MPC. This is a classic VF note (most would call EF, some AU, but I did not check to see what the auction called it). It has a modest stain on the right side. A nice, pleasing note: $150
1 yen B REPLACEMENT SN H00186518A F-VF, no edge
damage, it looks real nice, in demand [sold]
1 yen B AU-CU, A16316923A. There is no justification to include this note in such a listing, EXCEPT that it is from the Medina collection and therefore of interest. $4
1000 AM marks, Soviet printing. This is an average uncirculated example but is particularly desirable for two reasons 1) it is from the Medina collection 2) the first three characters (-31) of the serial number are offset UP in addition to laterally (a diagnostic of the Soviet printings). [sold]
100 AM marks, Soviet printing. A routine unc note, but once again from the Medina collection: [sold].

Houston Holocaust Museum Opening

by Larry "Ski" Smulczenski

After spending a couple of exciting days in Dallas at the Lyn Knight Auction and Bourse, I decided to let the wife spend a few more days with the grandkids so that we could attend the unveiling of the Charlton Meyer collection at the Houston Holocaust Museum. Charlton has spent the last twenty some years putting together a premier collection of scrip from concentration camps, ghettos, work camps, civilian internment camps and POW camps. He has decided to donate it in its entirety to the Houston Holocaust Museum so that it may be exhibited as part of their remembrances of the atrocities committed by the Nazi's during WWII. The Museum is a lovely building located very near the Medical center district of Houston. As soon as we walked in the front door we were greeted by Rachael Feller. Steve was busy with some of the museum staff, but came running over as soon as he finished his business. We were also introduced to Steve's lovely wife, Barbara and to a number of the Museum staff. Steve insisted on giving us a personal tour of the notes that were on exhibit for the dedication. Only about 20 percent of the notes of the Charlton Meyer collection were on exhibit at this time. The staff had done a wonderful job of exhibiting the notes in deep shadowbox frames in which they were attractively featured and explained. Some on exhibit were what we consider the common Lodz Ghetto and Theresienstadt notes, but also featured were coupons from the Lodz Ghetto that I had previous not seen such as meal tickets, postal chits, pharmacy coupons and coupons for a bath. This was of course only the beginning. Then came the exceedingly rare notes from the Sokolka Ghetto of Poland, the transit camp of Herzogenbusch in the Netherlands, the concentration camps of Dachau and Buchenwald (including many of the subcamps of Buchenwald), the extermination camp at Auschwitz, the labor camp at Mauthausen and the female prisoners camp at Ravensbruck. Some of these notes I had never even seen pictures of before. I remember seeing Charlton's collection many years ago but he had added a lot of great stuff since that time. Of course the most important piece was the note from Natzweiler which is believed to be unique. Natzweiler was a small concentration camp in the French Alsace built in a granite quarry so prisoners could supply stone for German construction projects. It was also the camp where medical experiments were conducted by the Nazis on Jewish and Gypsy prisoners. Charlton spotted us as we were drooling over the exhibits and we spent some time talking about a lot of the notes. He then asked if we wanted to look at the rest of the collection that was currently not on display. I couldn't get a "yes" or "of course" out of my mouth fast enough. A box containing three hundred plus notes was brought out and placed on the table while Steve and I rubbed our hands together in anticipation. It has always been a common expression for many of us, to say that we are "meeting old friends" when we see notes in a collection that we recognize from somewhere in the past. Believe me there were a lot of old friends in that collection. Steve had personally owned some of the notes especially those from the Isle of Man. I saw quite a few that came from auction lots over the past five years. Many of you will remember the huge group of Indian POW camp notes that were in the Lyn Knight CPMX auction this year. We all marveled at the number and variety of that selection. Well, they were all there including the Camp "B" Ramgarh Town Cash Coupon that no one had ever seen before and was listed as " a once in a lifetime opportunity". A couple years ago Smythe had an auction that had a number of notes with pieces of Scotch tape at the three and nine o'clock positions. Included were a group of Canadian POW chits. They too were all there including the Scotch tape. World War II Remembered has a sketch of a Metropole (Isle of Man) cardboard token that I remember seeing in an auction within the last year or so. I believe it was in a Lyn Knight auction, but I couldn't find that one as I wrote this report. Well, there were two values in Charlton Meyer's collection. I also made some new "friends" as I was introduced to some Australian Defence Canteen Eastern Command Camp 7 notes. The only one I had previously seen was the one penny note pictured in WWII Remembered. I didn't think to check the serial number, but that may have been one of the four values that we saw. There were also the Camp Hay notes that feature the kangaroo and ostrich (emu?) on them and some other notes from Camp Hay. I could go on and on, but there was just too much in this fantastic collection. You should go see it for yourself.

I was encouraged to come back for the seven o'clock presentation of the collection to the public and where Steve Feller was going to be the guest speaker. I really wanted to, but I realized that everyone was going to be dressed up in coat and tie. Now-a-days, I usually only wear a coat and tie to weddings and funerals. Since I hadn't anticipated going to either of these when I started this trip, there was no coat or tie in my luggage. After assurances from the museum staff that there would be many people attending in casual attire we agreed to come back for the festivities.

Prudy and I rushed back to the Holiday Inn to shower and change clothes. Do any of you remember the Johnny Cash song--"Sunday Morning Coming Down"? There is a line in that song that goes something like--"fumbled through my clothes and found my cleanest, dirty shirt."

That is exactly what I did and Prudy did a great job with the motel supplied iron. Our fears were not justified as we did not feel out of place since a number of the locals came casual. The neat part was that there were a couple of Holocaust survivors in the audience that we got to talk with while others were the descendents of concentration camp prisoners. The president of the Holocaust Museum thanked those responsible for putting together the exhibit and Charlton for his significant donation. Charlton then told why he wanted to contribute his collection to the museum. Steve Feller then did a great job of explaining the significance of the notes and stressed the rarity of many of the items. After Steve finished his presentation with an invitation to the audience to view the specific points that he emphasized in his talk, a gentleman in a wheel chair rushed to Steve's side. He told Steve that he handled the notes while he was a prisoner at Sachsenhausen. As a matter of fact, he said that he arranged brothel visits for high ranking non-Jewish political prisoners and collected the fees in scrip. Very few prisoners had these privileges. The gentleman was Dr Marcus D. Leuchter, a survivor of the Holocaust who dedicated a wing of the Museum to his wife Sophie who was interned at Ravensbruck, also survived but has since passed away. This wing of the Museum pictures life in the women's camp of Ravensbruck and the subcamps where these women built parts for V-2 rockets and sewed uniforms for German soldiers.

I was really impressed with the Houston Holocaust Museum and would encourage any of you that are traveling through Houston to take the time to visit this Museum and see the Charlton Meyer collection. I guarantee you that there are notes there that you have never seen before and without a doubt will only see here under one roof.

West Fest Update

by Al Glaser

The mini-FEST in Long Beach California will be Saturday Sept. 20 at 5:00 PM in one of the rooms adjoining the show. We will try to post the name of the room soon. We will probably have pizza and soft drinks available before and during the show and tell session. Remember, in order to receive your travel pay, you must have a show and tell item or story for the troops. The WestFEST Currency Board is in hopes of breaking even on the refreshments, therefore, please be prepared to pay a token sum to help us accomplish that goal. Please make a note of the date and time since we have LOST the listing in the calendar section of the Gram (HINT-HINT-NUDGE-NUDGE). [I am pleased to see that my technique worked. Dropping the listing prompted a Gram submission--ed]

Editorial/opinion

That the history of WWII is endless--and fascinating--is obvious. Of course the numismatic history is the most fascinating of all, even if it is less available in the general media.

In reading Military Trader (newspaper of military collectibles) I found a fascinating, if brief, account of the sinking of a German submarine by a Cuban ship! I had never heard nor even thought of offensive military action by Cuba during the war. (OK, sinking a sub in one's own waters might be defensive rather than offensive. I guess that I had not thought of Cuba taking part in combat operations at all.)

Of course my next thought was what numismatic issues might exist for Cuba relating to the war. Hidden away in the coin appendix of WWII Remembered are some listings for Cuban coinage (see coin appendix, page 813). These coinage changes were the result of shortages, the kind common throughout the war and around the world. In my own copy of the book, I have a notation to consider the 1944 Republic of Cuba issues. Before the war the US BEP had printed notes for Cuba. This 1944 issue by the ABNC might well be considered to be an emergency change of printer even without any additional information.

Now I wonder if any military decorations were issued specifically for this sinking or for the greater war effort. Other issues are possible too. Does anyone have any info in this area?

MAIL CALL

Dear Gram,

Continuing the poker theme of the letter that I sent a few days ago. I believe that we should start the Fest Poker Tour--FPT. It seems that it has started anyway: Fest-Colorado Springs-Dallas.

Cuneyd

Dear Editor:

At Bond Blast One there was much discussion regarding the Armed Forces Leave Bonds (AFLB) issued at the end of WWII. I talked to my Brother-In-Law and learned several things that, while not contributing directly to knowledge of the Bonds, may help in understanding the general situation. My BIL served aboard the Battleship USS Indiana for 3 years and 9 months and was discharged on 23Nov45. He accrued leave at the rate of 30 days per year - just the same as today. He could accrue a maximum of 60 days leave - the same as today. He took two leaves of 21 days each in his entire time of service. These coincided with overhaul periods for the ship. Keep in mind that Battleships were the premier ship of WWII and were kept busy all the time. He lost leave every year. Additionally, he drew an average of $5 pay per month and left the rest on the books. There was little to spend money on aboard ship. So when he mustered out, he was paid a sizable amount of pay and accrued leave. He did not receive an AFLB. The term is unfamiliar to him. I believe he was separated from the Service before the Bonds came into being. But this also demonstrates the purpose of the Bonds, which was to keep money out of circulation and help control inflation. I suspect his situation was similar to that of many discharged Service personnel.

Warner

Dear Gram,

If you like the idea of helping what would it take to make a real difference over the course of a year. I have lots of ideas and lending a helping hand with a couple would be neat. See what it would take to provide something for these children on an ongoing basis and then we can find an idea big enough to help. That is just my two cents worth.

FOR SALE

I have a few duplicates from the R. A. Median collection auctioned by Lyn Knight at Dallas last weekend:
20 yen A series 100, this is the series used as trial MPC. This is a classic VF note (most would call EF, some AU, but I did not check to see what the auction called it). It has a modest stain on the right side. A nice, pleasing note: $150
1 yen B REAPLCEMENT SN H00186518A F-VF, no edge damage, it looks real nice, in demand [sold]
1 yen B AU-CU, A16316923A. There is no justification to include this note in such a listing, EXCEPT that it is from the Medina collection and therefore of interest. $4
1000 AM marks, Soviet printing. This is an average uncirculated example but is particularly desirable for two reasons 1) it is from the Medina collection 2) the first three characters (-31) of the serial number are offset UP in addition to laterally (a diagnostic of the Soviet printings). [sold]
100 AM marks, Soviet printing. A routine unc note, but once again from the Medina collection: [sold].
Contact fred@papermoneyworld.net or fredschwan@yahoo.com WANTED SECTION:
Collectors may submit lists of items wanted for their collections for listing here.
Dealers and collectors who have these items, are then encouraged to list them for sale in the above section as a reply.

Series 004 - Number 1003 Saturday September 6, 2003

Financing the War

by Warner Talso

World War I provided many new opportunities and lessons for financing war. These ideas were not lost on the planners at the outbreak of World War II. However, the desperate predicaments imposed by the outcomes of attacks, battles, and invasions in the rapid uncontrolled widening theaters of war overrode all calm, rational policy making, and any efforts to draw judiciously upon the lessons of the past. One thing about financing war, it seems never to be fully under control.

Every nation seemed to have a different approach. However, there was one constant. Price and wage controls were imposed in all the belligerent nations. These were effectively enforced thanks to total mobilization of the economy for the war effort and the control of products available to consumers through control over imports - a topic we discussed last week.

In exploring the divergence nature of war finance among the belligerents, let us start with Nazi Germany. According to SB, the war was financed primarily through direct taxation and it is noteworthy that Germany did not issue war bonds or similar instruments through popular subscription. We know they have a very structured national lottery system, which is a kind of "voluntary taxation." Another strategy seemed to resort to domestic loans placed with the Reichsbank, which was controlled by the Nazi party since 1938. (Note, there were some bonds sold to United States citizens through Dillon, Read, & Co, a New York firm.) The potential for domestic inflation was dealt with through elaborate and stringent price and wage controls through the Reichskreditkasse (Reich's Credit Treasury Bank). No Reichmarks could be exported from Germany. The prices set by the time war began in September 1939 became so solidified in the structure of the Germany economy that they were still the basis for East German prices in 1989. Further, Nazi monetary practice, with an occupation tax levied upon the central bank and rigidly enforced price and wage controls, was extended in each country occupied and integrated into the "New Order" imposed upon unified Nazi Europe. This left a legacy readily adapted by Communist regimes in Central and Eastern Europe to maintain their economies, and was only painfully undone by democratic regimes in Western Europe.

It seems that I am constantly complaining about computer problems. Sorry about that. Yahoo seems to have introduced a new mail interface and my connection speed has just about died. I am patient, but five mins to open an e-mail (routinely) is just too much. I am sure that you feel very sorry for me, but the point is that it makes it very difficult to put out a Gram! I suppose that it was the gloating about kiloGram!

=====

Dear Gram,
Warner's columns on financing the war have been terrific.

Harbons

Dear Harbons,

Yes indeed. I expect (and hope) that the vocal minority that supports the Nazi domestic bonds as war bonds will take the challenge and speak up! Now is your chance (Wendell).

Editor

Dear Gram,

I urgently need to identify a bidder in the recently concluded Mailbid V sale. On Monday evening, in the midst of entering many bids into the sale, I was contacted by a bidder who wanted to expand his bidding list to paper money starting at lot 965 plus 16 more bids. I thought I knew the name and recognized the voice but didn't write it down. When I went to followup on some of the bids on 2 Sept, I called the collector who I thought submitted the bids. It wasn't him and I am totally embarrassed.

Not to make excuses but 49 out of 150 bidders submitted bids in the last 4 days and I got behind entering bids. I found out I am not ebay!

If anyone addressed in this e-mail recognizes he was the submitter, please contact me quickly. Thanks for the help.

For everyone: The sale is closed; I am checking bids, and calculating awarded prices. The prices realized list should be on my web site on 8 Sept. It will show both highest bid and actual awarded price so you can see what bidders would pay for scarce Philippine material.
(<http://mywebpages.comcast.net/cjcpi>)

Thanks to all who participated in the sale. Next one early in 2004.

Get your consignments in by end of November.

MPC. This is a classic VF note (most would call EF,
some AU, but I did not check to see what the auction called it). It has a modest stain on the right side. A nice, pleasing note: $150
1 yen B REPLACEMENT SN H00186518A F-VF, no edge
damage, it looks real nice, in demand [sold]
1 yen B AU-CU, A16316923A. There is no justification to include this note in such a listing, EXCEPT that it is from the Medina collection and therefore of
interest. $4
1000 AM marks, Soviet printing. This is an average
uncirculated example but is particularly desirable for two reasons 1) it is from the Medina collection 2) the first three characters (-31) of the serial number are offset UP in addition to laterally (a diagnostic of the Soviet printings). [sold]
100 AM marks, Soviet printing. A routine unc note, but once again from the Medina collection: [sold].

Covering the entire World of Military Numismatics
Series 004 - Number 1004 Tuesday September 8, 2003

It has been about six months and about 110 grams since we left off my biographical stories. I was in Seattle when we last looked, about 1974-5.

Somewhere in there, at one of those monthly Seattle Center coin shows that I mentioned previously, I picked a military yen note with two Canton stamps out of a junk box (SB2011b1). It was (still is) burned along the bottom edge. Some months later, in Portland, I picked up another Canton note with identical burn marks. Makes you wonder that kind of story they have to tell.

That same day in Portland I also bought a Central Reserve Bank pale blue 10 yuan note with branch bank overprint (SB1217b). It is a real woofer - probably grades a weak fair (separated in the center and repaired with paper tape). Until 1998 it was the only one I had been able to acquire. At the Tokyo International that year I finally got a second one (different branch character, only slightly better grade). The first one cost me fifty cents; the second one $162.55. One thing about looking for varieties from early in a note's life cycle - you are likely to find them in low grades, because they were the first ones on the street, and being in low grades they are likely to be in junk boxes - thus cheap (and unappreciated). Incidentally, the SB listing was "only [the character] wa known." The second one bears the character ti (or chi).

Probably that same day in Portland, but in a different store this time, I bought an Oceania 1 shilling with green blocks. In all other respects the note looks fine - no discoloration, fading, ink color shifts, or anything at all to explain the green (instead of red) blocks. I can't think of any treatment of red ink that will result in forest green. Since then I have seen one more with a similar color shift. Anyone know how to turn red into green? I have to assume that it is a color changeling, not a rare variety.

As several of you have pointed out, we have missed a few days. Thanks. I have a good excuse. Well, sort of. Mark Freehill from Sydney, Australia is here visiting. Mark is an old friend, and paper money legend. We have been chatting, looking, swapping, and otherwise enjoying our hobby. Yesterday we spent the day at Allen's coin shop in Westerville, Ohio. Today we have some plans and tomorrow too. I hope to write more about his visit (this one and previous too) in the days to come. Possibly, I can get him to make his first direct Gram submission too.

Mark is a non internet user, so also a nonGramster. You can be sure that I am trying to fix that. He does however know the Gram. He says that Trver Wilkin and Tony James and some others in Australia keep him somewhat informed.

For the many tales that he has shared in the past few days, he now has a challenge coin so you can (should) challenge him when you next see him. He does not quite appreciate the embarrassment (and cost) of failing such a challenge!

Dear Gram,

hile there is no smoking gun for German War Bonds (eg., a "Kriegs Bond") It seems to defy logic that every belligerent nation EXCEPT Germany had to resort to bonds to finance the war. I understand that plunder made up for some of this, but the entire war effort??? Doesn't wash with me...the arguments vary and have been knocked down as they have been presented..."No Low Denomination Bonds...all sold to investors" - I have several 100 RM bonds issued during the war that clearly shoot that one down..."No organized effort to sell "war" bonds" - clearly little or no bond drive memorabilia is known to exist from Germany. I don't know enough to know whether I buy that argument or not. I am unaware of any research which has been done to understand why various bonds were issued. With the sacking of Berlin by the Russians and destruction wrought by allied bombing, perhaps this is not surprising. "It was all done through direct taxation" - How do we know that? It would seem that taxing for both the war AND domestic purposes would be really draconian and unsustainable. My personal believe is that, unlike the US and (I think) Japan, bonds were only part (and perhaps a minor part) of the solution, but they nonetheless played a part.

Packaging of AM Yen

by Howard A. (The Master Sergeant) Daniel III

At the Charlotte ANA National Money Show on March 23 (the last day), a man walks up to my NI/NBS/IBNS club table. He asked me if I knew anything about American dollar notes for Japan after World War II. I get some wild questions at the table and this one was starting off to be the best for this show. I started questioning the man by what he meant by dollars for Japan, and I quickly figured out he was talking about Allied Military Currency (AMC), but he insisted they were dollars.

But as I questioned him further, he started to become a little irritated with me. Most of you know me as of diplomat quality, so I could not see why he was getting upset with me. So I stopped telling him they were not dollars and asked him why he was asking me about these notes. He said his father, Albert Nelson Dale Jr. an US Army T2 (Corporal) was on the Army detail packing this paper money at the San Francisco Mint during WWII, and that prisoners were being used as the packers while prison guards closely guarded the whole thing. Wow! This was getting interesting, but I could see he was not into my interrogation, so I asked him if he was interested in purchasing any of the pieces for himself. He replied in the affirmative, so I gave him directions to Leo May.

After about ten minutes, I walked to Leo's table and the man was going through AMC and JIM notes with him. I sat down and decided to start my interrogation again. This time, he was not so upset and was really happy. I guess Leo put him in the right mood. I asked him if he remembered any of the details about what his father said about packing the money. He repeated the location, using prisoners with a small Army detail, and lots of prison guards. Then he added that 10,000 notes were placed in each wooden crate, the wooden lids were pre-holed for screws and they were screw down onto the crates when the packing was completed. Then the top of each screw had plastic seals put over them. This was very interesting but he knew no more about the seals. Do you think they were some form of wax and stamped with seals to easily show that anyone had played with them? Then he said each crate was wrapped in several metal bands.

He could not remember anything else, but his father must have participated in getting the crates to a ship(s) or plane(s). Maybe Fred, Joe or one of you can start corresponding with him and find out more about his father's association with Japan AMC. His name is Albert N. Dale III, and he lives at 9029 Victory Trail, Union Mills, NC 28167, and his father might have left him many WWII photographs and other "stuff", so it would be very worthwhile to contact this man. But please handle him gently and not like my old Master Sergeant ways. Good luck!

AmAus microFest one is coming to a close. Mark Freehill is leaving in the morning to continue his North American adventures. Over the past two days, he has passed every Fest coin challenge that I have made so I think that he will be ready for future events.

We have had a great time. He has expressed his intention of writing some stories about the event to insure that his side will be told. If we could just get him on email, we should get lots of submissions.

We finished this evening (well, started Friday morning) by going through WWII Remembered figuring out some enhancements that he can make for the next edition. They will all be great.

Dear John,

Well, you have done it. First from Texas, first from anywhere. I suspect that Leo will be mad at you since for the past two years he has been the first to register for the Fest by registering for the next Fest at the close of the first Fest.

Festers and Gramsters never cease to amaze me! Nevertheless, thanks for the check. We are delighted to accept it and add a new listing to the calendar for 2005!

Financing War

by Warner Talso

I have just reviewed pictures of Marcus Turner's exhibit on "The USSR in World War II." It is outstanding. If you have not seen it, you must make an effort to do so next time he shows it. Marcus has graciously allowed me to use some of the material for a discussion of Russian war financing. This presentation is to be in two parts: the first, a discussion of financing strategy, and the second, a review of financial instruments.

An aspect of this was touched on when discussing the Soviet-Swedish bonds. This will not be repeated, but there seems to be a thread developing. Several economists have alluded to the fact that nations at war, or planning for war, include foreign investments as a specific element in financing war. Interesting concept. We will have to develop this further for future discussion.

For the USSR, the financing of World War II required unusual measures even for a totalitarian regime already structured to exercise complete control over the economy. Keep in mind that the Soviet system had been a work-in-progress since the Bolshevik Revolution in 1917. Workers were forced to accept payments in inconvertible rubles and pay state determined prices for whatever goods were allotted to the civilian sector by the state. This started long before the war. So when it became necessary to finance the "Great Patriotic War," the state immediately increased its revenues by raising prices and keeping wages low. However, the increased state revenues and the increasing allocation of them toward the military budget, proved inadequate. In 1942, the issuance of bonds (sometimes called loans, but not really, in the conventional sense) and lottery tickets to the Soviet public accounted for almost 20% of the total war budget in that year. This was the highest point reached by non-financial sources of funds. The average over the entire war was 12.5% and in 1946 the Soviet government reduced new debt to only 1.2% of total expenditures. Unlike the other belligerents, whose wartime financial practices left permanent effects upon their financial sector and future monetary policy, the Soviets rapidly reverted to their prewar budgetary practices. Perhaps this was because Stalin was the only wartime leader to continue in power in the peace that followed.

Note the lack of conventional loans in the war finances of the Soviet Union. This implies that the burdens of the war were met, more than in any other country, by the current generation. Indeed, this financial burden, plus gross inefficiencies of the Soviet system, combined with the devastation wrought by Nazi armies inflicted very heavy losses upon the Russian people.

Can it be? Say it is not so. The Fredster seems to be out of topics to talk about! Naw, cannot be. My desk overflows with ideas, discoveries, half finished and unstarted projects.

After receiving John Cheney's reservation for Fest VI, today we received the reservation of Dan Freeland for Fest V. Welcome Dan! The running total of reservations for Fest V is developing about as usual I think and the same with the new Fester reservations. The next new Fester will get us to double digits for new Festers for Fest V. The goal for new Festers is 12. We had eleven Festers at Fest one so we like to beat that each year! If you are thinking about coming to the Fest, please speak up!

Dear Sir,

Welcome! Daivd always does a great service promoting the Gram and the Fest (and MPC etc in general). I hope that we see you at a Fest soon!

Editor

Dear Editor:

I was delighted to see Wendell's response to my Gram article on German financing of WWII (GRAM 1004). The war bond argument is one we have discussed before. Again, it depends on how you want to define a "war bond." The observation that Nazi Germany financed the war primarily by direct taxation was taken from WWII Remembered. Perhaps we could ask the authors to justify that statement. On several points I found directly contradictory statements among several sources. I finessed these points by avoiding them. I emphatically agree that there is plenty of room for more research.

Warner

Dear Gram,

Just a friendly reminder, the IBNS London Congress will be held on October 4 and 5 at the Trade Union Congress hall, two blocks from the British Museum. This is a relatively small event compared to Memphis or Maastricht, but in the past there has been no shortage of WWII items on the floor. It is definitely a fun event.

If you have a paybook, bring it along and you shall be paid. If you do not have a paybook, find a challenge coin. Anyone who presents their (own, personal, not someone else's) challenge coin shall qualify for partial pay. If you do not have a challenge coin, get one now! They should not be difficult to find.

Marcus Turner

Dear Gram,

I would like to make a reservation for MPCfest V.
When is payment due?

Thanks,

Dan Freeland

Dear Dan,

Basically the deadline for payment is Dec 31, so you have some time to raise some dough. We look forward to seeing you!

ANA Honors Collectors

The American Numismatic Association has announced monetary awards to Doug Bell and Bill McNease for assistance in the arrest of Phil Goldstein in the theft of MPC and other military notes.

The ANA maintains a program for rewarding collectors and dealers who assist in recovering stolen material.

FINANCING THE GERMAN WAR EFFORT

Harold Kroll

In the past few months there has been some rather rigorous discussions about the bonds issued by Germany during WWII for financing. After being somewhat shot down several times for inclusion in WWII Remembered and some thought that maybe I am wrong about how Germany was able to finance its huge war machine. With all the confiscated wealth from the Jewish sector and others along with heavy taxation on the German people they were able to do this with no problems? Well, if you believe all this, I have some nice high dry land for sale in the Florida Everglades, contact me.

This may not be the "SMOKING GUNS" that Wendell was looking for, but come on people, the war effort was a huge money eating machine. The costs was in the millions and millions of marks and could not have been funded solely by taxation and confiscated property. With Hitler's rise to power the issuance of bonds to raise funds for his mad mans idea started and the amount issued grew at a rapid pace to keep the war effort supplied with everything they needed, food, clothing, ammunition, guns armament, fuel and whatever their needs were. How do you think this material was transported to the to the troops and fronts of the war? Before all this can start you have to be able to get the raw product to the destination for processing. Railroads were a major factor in the transporting of all goods, the railroads were built with sales of bonds to raise the funds. Oh my, what about the trucks to transport these goods from the railroad yards to wherever needed, railroad engines, cars, railroad tracks, cross ties. Gosh, I bet this took factories and foundries to produce all the required items to make all of these items. Again bonds were sold to raise these funds to carry out these operations. With all these factories you have to have people to perform all the functions, now comes infrastructure bonds to fund water, sewer, roads, bridges, electricity, here come the bond sales again. Bonds were issued to raise funds to pay for all these costs and many more not mentioned here.

In the Germany section of Remembered many items are listed that do not have a better connection to war finance. I speak specifically about the ships money, good for tax certificates (steuregutsheine), and winterhilfswerk notes. What about the lottery tickets?

It is unthinkable that Germany was able to fund the war without the use of all the bonds that were issued for all this period of time. Every other country had some kind of bond program in effect to subsidize the costs of the war efforts and most are in WWII Remembered. What is it going to take to get these included?

Editorial/opinion

=====

Sorry about the missing Grams. After being out of town for two days (non numismatic event) then I was sick today. Nothing serious (apparently), but I sure was sick while it lasted.

I must say that I was pleased to learn today that Doug Bell and Bill McNease are being honored by the American Numismatic Association for their part in the investigation of the theft of materials. The pleasure is at multiple levels. Beside the obvious self interest in this case, I am pleased and even proud as a long-term ANA member. Many people criticize the ANA for perceived (and often imagined) faults. This is one of the many cases where the association does great work.

MAIL CALL

Dear Ed Fred,

Please do not increase my subscription by two issues do er, due to not giving Joe, the actor, his byline credit. Two more issue after my subscription expires is excessive.

Bill M.

Dear Esteemed Editor,

If you go to www.SaigonWarrior.com, you can find a picture of the Free Military Forces (FMF) Headquarters in Saigon during the Vietnam War. There are quite a few flags flying at its entrance and I could not clearly see all of them, so I asked Jim Finnigan, a former CMAC Signal Officer if he could see which flags are in the picture. He wrote that one of them was the Netherlands and he remembers they had a communications team there. If so, are they in THE MPC catalog because all of the FMF had PX privileges and had to have spent MPC in them.

I was recently visiting a collector and he had a picture of the front of the FMF Headquarters sign with all of the country names and flags on it! He is making a copy for me and I will forward it to the editor after I receive it. It will definitely add countries to the list who operated in Viet Nam during the war!!!

The Master Sergeant Daniel

Theater Anyone?

by Joe Boling

When Bill M referred to me as an actor, I do not think he realized that I have a one-man show opening this Friday and running seven performances over ten days in the Seattle Fringe Theatre Festival. The theater company that is producing the show has been running email quizzes today offering free tickets to people who can answer their questions - one being, who is the first US president to appear on a silver dollar, with an extra ticket if you can include the year. Only one person has provided the correct response (besides me - I replied as if I were an ordinary reader of the message when it arrived). If any reader is going to be in the area between 19-28 September, email me at joeboling@aol.com and I will provide the performance schedule. My guest room will be available for some days during the run - I already have some reservations for it. This is the same show I did at the ANA summer seminar, spiffed up with additional material based on feedback from viewers there, and with music, and the hat that I bought at the YN auction has been integrated.

Remember that visit to Bill Henderson a few weeks ago that resulted in my completing my first series of MPC in a quest for the 90-note set in position #8? Another item I picked up that day is a presumably British parody of a German RM10 note, P180 (22 Jan 1929). Accompanying it was a copy of part of an article describing it, with no citation to show where the article appeared originally. In going through the long list of articles about propaganda notes published by Herb Friedman in the IBNS Journal, I found one cited that seemed to be this note's home. Sure enough, the fragmentary explanation in the note holder is lifted from Herb's article on British-prepared propaganda notes in IBNS Journal 24:3. Unfortunately, he says that we know relatively little about this piece, and it seems we still know only a little about it. One problem with researching items like this is that the IBNS Journal index runs through volume 30; we are now in volume 42. Herb, if you are reading, has any more information about this piece surfaced since your article almost twenty years ago?

It is on most interesting paper. It is soft green paper, possibly 24 pound stock or heavier (not quite index card thickness), with a pronounced laid pattern resembling burlap, very coarse. The paper does not feel nearly as rough as the laid pattern (looking like a watermark) suggests, but it does not look or feel like it would hold up at all in circulation. The note lacks a serial number, even in the reproduced bill (it was removed from the photographic source of the image, which appears in dull green on the green paper). It also lacks the underprinted light gray letters that this series had for most of its life. The message on the back is in seven lines of pica type in black, and talks about the 10,000 year Reich having lasted merely ten years.

It is a nice addition to my WWII note-based propaganda pieces.

Howdy, Freditor!

I'm glad to hear you are feeling better. My letter is prompted by four comments in 'Gram #1007 about the 'skips' in issues.

First, you must know that I very much appreciate your efforts and the efforts of all contributors to the 'Gram. This diffusion of knowledge, freely given, is at the core of what makes this such an enjoyable pass-time.

However, (isn't there always a "However") we humans have an unfortunate trait. We always want MORE!! I include myself in that statement. Thus, when we get a steady input about our hobby, we grinch and gripe at interruptions.

I, for one, am grateful for what I have received so far and do want more. But, I can not see that it would do to 'kill the Golden Goose' by working you to death. I personally would not be offended if the 'Gram was cut back to two or three issues a week.

I know many will squawk over that last comment, let'em. Do what is necessary to keep the 'Gram coming, even if the publication schedule has to be changed.

Just my 2-cents worth...

Jay in Garrison, T

P. S. Edit this and/or publish as you see fit...

Dear Readers,

I am sorry that I complained in the editorial of 1007. Perhaps I was feeling a little sorry for myself. I also was having a little bit of a keyboard cramp and could not think of anything to write about (rare, I know). I am sorry to have to inform you that you are stuck with the Gram. It may change, and will certainly evolve, but it is here to stay.

Editor

Dear Gram,

Per the editor's request, here is the schedule for Joe Boling's performances in the Seattle Fringe Theatre Festival is:

9/19 - 9pm

9/20 - 2:30 pm

9/21 - 10:30pm

9/22 - 7pm

9/26 - 6pm

9/27 - 3:30pm

9/28 - 8pm

I plan on attending the performance on 9/28. Can we make it a miniFest?

Gail Baker

Dear Gram,

I will be in London on Sat Oct 4th. at the IBNS. Any special place or person to report to with my paybook?

Gary (Who has Fours) Hicks

Dear Esteemed Editor,

On July 5, I bought an issue of The Washington Times because The Washington Post was sold out at my usual source, so I could solve my daily crossword puzzle addiction.

There was an article in it on page E3; "Aussie's efforts honor Death Railway POWs by Denis D. Gray of the Associated Press. Rod Beattie has built the Thailand-Burma Railway Centre to gather together in one place all of the information and names associated with this WWII tragedy. I tried to find an email address and/or website for him and/or his centre but I could not anything. So I started looking around and found "Never Forgotten", The Newsletter of the Taiwan P.O.W. Camps Memorial Society describing Rod's work. Their website is at <http://www.powtaiwan.org/sprgsummer01/page8.htm> . But they also had a complete address for Rod's museum and an email address as follows;

The Thailand-Burma Railway Centre

65/6 Moo Ban Jirakan

Kanchanaburi, 71000, Thailand

Tel. 034 620050 Fax. 034 622975

Email: railway@access.inet.co.th I have photographs in my files of POW scrip that I found in the British Museum made by British officers in one of their camps and maybe this Centre has some too. So both of these places could be of much interest to Gramsters who collect POW "stuff" and I hope this is useful to them.

FOR SALE

I have a few items from AmAus MicroFest. These items were purchased from Mark Freehill after hours (days) of negotiating. Australian Army Pay Corps training note. This note has the following text: Royal Australian Army Pay Corps/Facsimile Currency for Training Purposes Only. The denomination is 10 (units?). The notes are lithographed on bank note paper with heavy threads. AU $35.

I also bought some tokens after the negotiations were complete on the training notes above. One of the cool things about the tokens is that they are in two by two envelopes on which Mark and I commemorated the AmAus MicroFest with the date, title and signatures so you get a souvenir along with the token.

BCOF [Brithish Commonwealth Occupation Force] 1 unit, alumnium S/B 916 on page 316 typical EF/AU $27.50.

ADFC [Australian Defence Forces Canteen (probably)] oval token w/ADFC and NSW (New South Wales) on one side. On the other side is BOTTLE TOKEN 1D [meaning pence]. Of course the question is what the heck is this? We (Mark and I) only have guesses. It may or may not be from the WWII period, but I liked and bought them.

bronze AU $30

alumnium EF $28

French IndoChina 100 piastres, S/B 1265 (page 132) fine with typical rusty pinholes at left: $9.50.

Travel Plans

by Howard Daniel

Here it is September already and I repacked my convention boxes from the ANA in Baltimore to have them ready for the ANA in Portland. The twice a year ANAs come around faster than I can sometimes arrange everything on time for them, so I try to start early. The Portland, Oregon, ANA is March 26-28 and it is sponsored by the Willamette Coin Club with Larry Gaye as the show chairman. I will be manning a NI/NBS/IBNS club table at this show, and moderating meetings for NI and IBNS. As always, Gramsters are welcome at the NI and IBNS meetings and at the club table.

I am trying to line up a Vietnamese collector/researcher who lives in Salem, Oregon to be the NI speaker about Vietnamese coins but I have not yet learned from Marcus Turner who will speak at the IBNS meeting. If he does not have anyone, I will speak about Vietnamese paper (Can some MPC be considered as Vietnamese paper?) or find another Vietnamese collector/researcher to give one.

I will be driving out to the West (left) Coast and plan to visit people on the way out and back to the East (right) Coast. I also plan to visit up and down the West Coast and will be in Joe Boling's place just before the ANA so we can drive down together and help them with their setup. I have been thinking (only thinking) about coming to the Fest in early March but it depends on the weather and my return date from a possible trip to Southeast Asia.

By the way, my next trip to Southeast Asia is in October and I will not be back until late November or early December, but I can be accessed via email. I thought about giving out my Saigon townhouse telephone number but I do not want all those calls from Gramsters sobbing about how much they wish they could be there too. Besides Saigon, I will also be in Singapore, but I am trying to arrange Vientiane and Bangkok too.

Speaking of Singapore, did you know there is a U.S. Navy base there?

Maybe I should try to get on it and see what they have of interest to numismatists. But then, it is a Navy base and Marvin Mericle has warned me to never go on one.

That is all for now. Please update your Calendar of Events with this next ANA Show and note that I will be there for any Gramster who wants to rest for awhile or stash a bag or case.

Editorial/opinion

Joe (Boling) called this morning to coordinate some time here in Ohio in December in conjunction with visiting family members in this part of the country (wonder if I can book a performance of his play). The plan is to have some concentrated work on the second edition of World War II Remembered. That is of course exciting (if also a lot of work), but it makes me think of something else today. It reminds me of the time in 1994 and 95 when we were working on the first edition full time. Looking back it was a hoot! There are some great stories just about working on the book! Joe stayed here for a few weeks at a time several times. To be honest, he is a slave driver! I have told many of the stories many times and a few of the stories only a few times. I expect that while we are working here I will retell most of those stories again now that we have a new medium. I am also certain that we will create many new stories of their own and you will no doubt experience those with us. Stay tuned.

Dear Gram,

This is in response to Gail Baker's suggestion about a 9/28 miniFest in conjunction with Joe's show. I would fully support such an event. How many gramsters / festers / seminarians are there in the Northwest that we could coax out of the closet?

Tom Koch

Ed asked me to send this in again as you might of missed it the first time.

The listing of events at the Long Beach show can be found at: <http://www.longbeachexpo.com/events.HTM> The West Fest is down the list, and will be in Room 102-C.

Dear Esteemed Editor,

A collection of Bengal Presidency notes were stolen on June 24, 2003 in Mumbai, India. Many of the notes are in Chapter 1, pages 15-27 of the excellent reference, "Indian Paper Money." Details about the robbery and who to contact are at <http://www.indianpapermoney.com/stolen> . I am hoping a Gramster can assist in finding this collection!

FOR SALE

I have a few items from AmAus MicroFest. These items were purchased from Mark Freehill after hours (days) of negotiating. Australian Army Pay Corps training note. This note has the following test: Royal Australian Army Pay Corps/Facsimile Currency for Training Purposes Only. The denomination is 10 (units?). The notes are lithographed on bank note paper with heavy threads. AU $35.

I also bought some tokens after the negotiations were complete on the training notes above. One of the cool things about the tokens is that they are in two by two envelopes on which Mark and I commemorated the AmAus MicroFest with the date, title and signatures so you get a souvenir along with the token.

BCOF [Brithish Commonwealth Occupation Force] 1 unit, alumnium S/B 916 on page 316 typical EF/AU $27.50.

ADFC [Australian Defence Forces Canteen (probably)] oval token w/ADFC and NSW (New South Wales) on one side. On the other side is BOTTLE TOKEN 1D [meaning pence]. Of course the question is what the heck is this? We (Mark and I) only have guesses. It may or may not be from the WWII period, but I liked and bought them.

bronze AU $30

French IndoChina 100 piastres, S/B 1265 (page 132)fine with typical rusty pinholes at left: $9.50.

Charges Dismissed

At a preliminary hearing in the case against Philip Goldstein in Ottawa County, Ohio on September 19 the charges were dismissed. The dismissal came after it was found that some (about six) of the items listed as stolen (about 60 items) had not been stolen but were still in the custody of the person who had made the larger complaint (Fred Schwan).

=====
=====

Boy is this a hard Gram, and especially this editorial, to prepare. What I thought was a minor embarrassment turned out to be the basis for the dismissal of the charges. With the authorities I had always maintained that there was a significant chance that the list of stolen items was both incomplete and probably contained errors. I did not expect to find the items that were found and especially not as easily as they were found, but I certainly did not think that finding them would jeopardize the case. The exact result of this turn of events is uncertain at this time. Updates will be published here, but I must point out as a part to the events I cannot always report information that I may have.

Hello Gramsters.... Well I went to my first MPC event at the LongBeach show! I met, Al Glaser!, Kevin Neidy, Steve Swoish, Sparky Watson and son!
And a few more!!!! Ed Beaman again second time, Two nice people from the ANA, my poor hearing, don't want to chance misspelling their names, and IT WAS GREAT! Reminded me of the coin clubs of the 1960's! Old school, friendship, wow, been a while since I've experienced that! Al is an amazing guy! AND he has my favorite note too!!!! Well, got paid! heard great stories. Most interesting to me was a pair of notes Ed Beaman shared!
With shrapnel holes through a pair of MPC through a wallet of a friend he knew! AMazing unique, and priceless!!!!!!!!!!!! Well that's all for the moment Thanks Everyone and anyone I forgot to mention! Guy Araby!
P.S.
Ask Kevin Neidy about the new "SUPER" lights, A MUST for the truth on grading!

Dear Guy,

Thanks for you for your letter. I needed a boost at this very moment. Of course thanks also to Al for holding the event. We look forward to a more detailed report of the event.

Guy, does this mean that you are going to commit to coming to THE Fest?

Editor

Dear Editor,

If Grams 1007 and 1008 exist and were sent, I did not receive them. I did get Gram 1009. Can I get back copies?

Roger Urce

Dear Roger,

Well, it serves me right of feeling a little better. Your cold water should bring me back to reality. Delivery problems again? I certainly hope not.

Past Grams are archived at papermoneyworld.net.

FOR SALE

I have a few items from AmAus MicroFest. These items were purchased from Mark Freehill after hours (days) of negotiating. Australian Army Pay Corps training note. This note has the following text: Royal Australian Army Pay Corps/Facsimile Currency for Training Purposes Only. The denomination is 10 (units?). The notes are lithographed on bank note paper with heavy threads. AU $35.

I also bought some tokens after the negotiations were complete on the training notes above. One of the cool things about the tokens is that they are in two by two envelopes on which Mark and I commemorated the AmAus MicroFest with the date, title and signatures so you get a souvenir along with the token.

BCOF [Brithish Commonwealth Occupation Force] 1 unit, aluminium S/B 916 on page 316 typical EF/AU $27.50.

ADFC [Australian Defence Forces Canteen (probably)] oval token w/ADFC and NSW (New South Wales) on one side. On the other side is BOTTLE TOKEN 1D [meaning pence]. Of course the question is what the heck is this? We (Mark and I) only have guesses. It may or may not be from the WWII period, but I liked and bought them.

bronze AU $30

aluminium EF $28

French IndoChina 100 piastres, S/B 1265 (page 132) fine with typical rusty pinholes at left: $9.50.

West Fest Report

by Al Glaser

The first mini-fest west of the Pecos has come and gone. Twelve brave individuals battled Southern California traffic, parking problems and a bourse floor flood which caused a 3 1/2 delay in opening the show on Saturday to take part in the first WestFEST. All who came had a wonderful show and tell item or story for the group. At the close of show and tell there was a call to pay. British Military Authority Lire which were used in the Tripolitania area of North Africa were overprinted by the WestFEST Currency Board for use in California. Each attendee was paid 168 lire for their participation. The 1, 2, 5, 10, 50 and 100 Lire denominations were distributed. Serial numbers were random in each envelope which immediately began the hunt for specific numbers. While searching for numbers, varieties were being discovered. Replacements, inverts, uniface, missing printings, second printings and double denominations were found. A special 1 pound presentation piece commemorating the event was observed with the overprint "LONG BEACH." This note looks remarkably similar to the BMA 1 pound note overprinted with "BULGARIA," "GREECE" and "FRANCE" SB 306c-e. A small guerilla group formed at the end of the proceedings and met for chow.

Colonel Mark Watson managed to sneak his son Corporal Chris Watson into the mess hall alongside the rest of the salty lot. It became apparent Chris was not there for the camaraderie, he had in his possession a 1 Lire note with serial number 1, and he wanted to deal. After a heated exchange with prices being barked back and forth across the table, the anonymous buyer (Kevin Neidy) hit $50.00 when the shrewd Corporal Chris decided to accept (Kevin was begging by this time). After the gavel fell, a smile from ear to ear was noticed on Steve Swoish's face as he is the holder of the serial #1 100 lire replacement note! A fabulous souvenir card for the event was prepared by Ed Beaman, these were just incredible! Ya shouda been there!!! Maybe WestFEST II.

The Portland, Oregon, ANA is March 26-28 and it is sponsored by the Willamette Coin Club with Larry Gaye as the show chairman. Howard Sarg Daniel will be manning a NI/NBS/IBNS club table at this show, and moderating meetings for NI and IBNS. As always, Gramsters are welcome at the NI and IBNS meetings and at the club table.

Good Reviews

by Joe Boling

I received my Toy Horse currency crate from ANA on Monday. I had forgotten to bring my bicycle helmet home from the theater last night (it is a prop in my one-man show), and I could not ride to the PO today. Good thing - the crate would have been too large to bring home on the bike. I wonder what the postal people thought about the magic marker TOY HORSE markings on the cardboard wrapper?

Tom Koch suggested a minifest in conjunction with my show in the Seattle Fringe Theatre Festival. That would be delightful, but there is little time to organize it. There are three more performances:

Friday-Sat-Sunday 26-28 September, at 1800, 1530, and 2000 hours respectively. A lot of the Theater Schmeater regulars (that is the producing company) are planning to come on closing night, the 28th, so I suggest Friday night or Saturday afternoon if Tom wants to put this together. On Saturday there will be at least two festers there - me and Gail Baker (she arrives Saturday in time for the 1530 show).

So far (first four performances) audiences have been light - 12-15 per night. That seems to be common across the Fringe Festival this year, at least for this first weekend. We are all hoping for better houses on closing weekend. I have had three numismatists attend that I know of - Steve Cox (president of the Seattle Numismatic Society) and his wife (she is also a collector - of sewing machines) came opening night. His review (and four more by theater people) can be found at http://www.seattlefringe.org/cgi/shows\_view.cgi?Show=What%20Does%20it%20Mean%20to%20be%20Joe%20Boling?#review. Larry and Kathy Rowe of Vancouver, Washington, came Sunday night after working a shift at the Puyallup Fair for the PNNA [Pacific NW Numismatic Association--Ed.]. Other reviews can be found at www.theatreseattle.com and http://seattlepi.nwsource.com/theater/140739\_fringe22.html. My own comments about the opening night experience are at <http://www.tpsonline.org/discus/index.html> (click on <What is it Like to be Joe Boling (reconstituted thread)>).

There was a server corruption on that board Sunday, and the original thread with my show name was lost. When restored, it had only test messages appended to it.

So, if any of you readers think you might drop by for a show this weekend, let's set a day and make sure that you get tickets (available online from that same Fringe Festival web page I cited above where the Steve Cox review is).

And as for pay - - - Tom, do you have something in mind? I am sure we could scare something up from Bill Henderson that could be overprinted in a hurry.

=====

Well, I found a new way to get behind on the Gram. Basically, this Gram has been finishes since Tue., but I had a problem. Joe mentions his Toy Horse box in his column. I could not send out the Gram without getting into this and just could not get around to it. He is talking about the replica wooden boxes used in the ANA WWII numismatics exhibition. These crates simulated those used to ship the various Allied military currency issues to the respective theaters.

Larry Lee of the ANA museum has arranged that we collectors can have some of these boxes at nominal fees. That is GREAT, but I could not just let it go at that. I figured that I could make a good thing better and in trying to do that I have delayed everything. Basically, I figured that we might be able to have all or most of the boxes shipped to Fest headquarters at a savings over individual shipping charges. Festers could then take them home. Of course the added twist would be that we could pile them up in the Fest room for photos etc. Well, I still have not called Larry to talk about this. (Larry, are you there?) I really will try to get that coordination done on Fri. I guess that there is a silver lining in that now I should be able to fill two editorials on the same subject!

Dear Gram,

You should check out the reviews on Joe's play! Go to www.seattlefringe.org and click on "Write a Review." Then scroll down to "What Does It Mean to be Joe Boling" and click to read the reviews.

)

You might want to reprint one or two in the Gram -- or just list the link. I am looking forward to seeing the play again this weekend.

BTW, the WestFest at Long Beach was great. I enjoyed meeting some of the people whose names I see in the Gram.

Gail

Dear Gail,

Yes, I agree, the reviews are a hoot. Did you do any recruiting for the military seminar at the Fest? Want to sell your pay?

FOR SALE

I have a few items from AmAus MicroFest. These items were purchased from Mark Freehill after hours (days) of negotiating. Australian Army Pay Corps training note. This note has the following text: Royal Australian Army Pay Corps/Facsimile Currency for Training Purposes Only. The denomination is 10 (units?). The notes are lithographed on bank note paper with heavy threads. AU $35.

I also bought some tokens after the negotiations were complete on the training notes above. One of the cool things about the tokens is that they are in two by two envelopes on which Mark and I commemorated the AmAus MicroFest with the date, title and signatures so you get a souvenir along with the token.

BCOF [Brithish Commonwealth Occupation Force] 1 unit, alumnium S/B 916 on page 316 typical EF/AU $27.50.

ADFC [Australian Defence Forces Canteen (probably)] oval token w/ADFC and NSW (New South Wales) on one side. On the other side is BOTTLE TOKEN 1D [meaning pence]. Of course the question is what the heck is this? We (Mark and I) only have guesses. It may or may not be from the WWII period, but I liked and bought them.

HE IS DOING OK

by Harold Kroll

A great friend and fellow collector, Larry Smulczenski had major surgery for prostate problems Tuesday morning. Surgery started at 8:00 AM and he came out of the operating room at 3:00 PM. Seven hours of surgery needed as they found more problems once it was started. Larry's wife called and stated he was doing well but needed a lot of rest from the operation. For now she would like to keep updates coming in the gram and not by phone as she will not be available. I will try to keep updates sent in. He could use a lot of prayers right now, take a few for Larry.

More West Fest

Steve Swoish

West Fest I My feelings about this event, rank up there with a major fest event! Al & committee, did a fabulous job, with tremendous MFC Certificates that were issued to all in attendance, along with the BEAUTIFUL Fest card, made by Ed Beaman. Ed is a true artist, he also made & shared with us West Fester's a plaque, which I should say no more of, other than to say that Guy Araby want's his apartment done in Ed's mosaic's! It is my belief, that many of you all, should have braved the L.A. traffic for this event. This was a West Coast 1st, & should not have been missed, as the show & tell was very informative, on many numismatic themes, heart felt, (Ed's MPC display), & lighter sides of collecting memorabilia? Corporal Chris took the show at the post fest dinner though. Sparky's son, had us all in a lather, as he was in possession of a had to get note, the Serial # 00000001 1 lire replacement. After MANY bids, & retractions, the Jr. infantryman came out with a whopping $50.00 for his troubles, but refused to pay the dinner tab, stating that he only had a burger, not the $17.00 beers, (each) consumed by Ed & yours truly! We really missed a lot of you folks, but do not miss this next year, as this was only the beginning of a beautiful relationship! Once again, my hat is off to Al Glaser & crew, they did a marvelous job!

West Fest illustrations provided by Ed Beaman and posted by Doug Bell.

When a friend like Larry faces surgery, it helps put things into perspective. As important as our notes are they cannot compare to family and friendship. We look forward to many more collecting adventures with you, Larry. Take care. We will update his condition as we receive it.

Other comments cannot compare to the above, but make sure that you look at the notes issued at WestFest. They are wonderful. I am extremely jealous that the West Fest Currency Board was able to prevail upon authorities to get the use of the British Military Authority one pound notes. This is a brilliant continuation of the overprints from the 1940s. Warner's now twice delayed column will appear tomorrow.

=====

Dear Gram,
Yes, I am indeed lurking out here.

Great idea! We'll ship them all at the same time to whatever address you tell me. They are all prepackaged and ready to go. Tim Scudder has got this project totally under control; just give me an address.

Larry [Lee ANA Curator]

Dear Gram,
I received four (4) copies of #1007. I gave three away as free samples, so they were not wasted. But four is a little excessive.

Changes at Lyn Knight Auctions

According to reports in Numismatic News, and the financial news, Lyn Knight Auctions has been purchased from Collectors Universe by Lyn Knight. Both the seller and buyer state that this sale/purchase/reversion was to their advantage.

Lyn Knight (and his firm) are well known to Gramsters. Lyn is a Gramster and occasional letter writer [Lyn, we would like more]. Even more importantly, the auction firm has taken a leadership position in selling military money in the past few years. In 2002 it sold the Leo May collection of military payment certificates. In 2003 it started selling the RAM collection of military money. Any effect on the next sale and the RAM collection is not known at this time.

It is significant to Gramsters that in the various stories published Knight specifically mentions the expansion of his auctions into MPC as having been made possible during the time that the company was under the Collectors Universe umbrella.

Financing War

by Warner Talso

This is the second of a discussion of Russian war financing. This will include financial instruments mentioned in SB and Marcus Turner's exhibit. Recall from the previous discussion, that the burdens of the war were largely met by the current generation. This meant an emphasis on bonds (also called loans) and lotteries. State military loans were repaid by lottery.

Beginning in 1942, the USSR began selling military loans by subscription. The terms "selling" and "subscription" are used very loosely in this context. At this time the Soviet State was a one-employer economy. When military loans were offered, they became part of the individual's pay and there was no alternative. There were two types. The first type were officially known as the "Playings Issue" and were commonly called "Lottery Bonds". These were issued between 1942 and 1945 in multiples of 100 rubles. There were four wartime lotteries. They were printed by Gosnak, the Soviet State printer. There were biannual or quarterly drawings (depending on the bonds) resulting in winners being awarded prizes equaling four percent annually, based on the bonds value. By design of the lottery, one third of the bonds were drawn and redeemed. The remaining bonds were redeemed following the end of the loan period.

The second type were simple military loans with shares or coupons attached. These were commonly called "Coupon Bonds." These were issued between 1942 and 1945 in denominations of 100, 500, and 1000 rubles. There is little known about these Coupon Bonds. To date only 24 examples of Soviet Coupon Bonds of World War II have been verified worldwide. It is speculated that they were not intended for the general public, but perhaps for the tiny non-state sector of the Soviet economy known as coops (co-ops?).

Lottery tickets had been sold in the USSR since 1922. It was easy to direct this fund raising process to aid the war effort. The proceeds of ticket sales were used for support aspects of the war such as food, general goods, and administration rather than direct financing of combat activities.

Bonds are striking in the use of extremely patriotic vignettes. All denominations of an issue have the same vignette.

In addition to the two major fund-raising tools, above, there are several other lesser efforts. Between 1939 and 1941, when the USSR was engaged in the Finno-Russian "Winter War" and occupied the Baltic States, Osoviakhim Tickets were issued. Osoviakhim was a society dealing with the training of civilians for the purpose of providing civil defense and "is the base of peaceful labor and defense of the USSR."

Beginning in 1941, the Peoples Commissariat of Finances of the USSR began issuing lottery tickets. This issue was termed a "Money and Goods Lottery" to support the war effort.

There were 15 Republics within the USSR, plus "Administrative Districts" and "Autonomous Regions." Lottery bonds are known to have been sold in all the Republics. However, there is the question of individual entities of the USSR creating their own financial instruments. For example, the war bonds of Tannu Tuva (SB, p. 370). The Tuvinian Peoples Republic was semiautonomous and under the "heavy influence" of the USSR. Could others have done the same? This suggests other interesting opportunities for investigation.

=====

The resale of Lyn Knight auctions certainly came as a surprise. Possibly indicators were there, but I did not see them. When Collectors Universe bought the Knight firm, only a few changes were obvious to us--the customers. Some of the changes were good. Several were bad. I will share my favorite bad one because it is fun. With the centralized help in creating auction catalogs, the critical aspects of notes were often obscured in auction catalogs. Specifically, replacement serial numbers were frequently covered by a note of much less significance. Heck, we like to see all serial numbers! I suspect that with more direct supervision by Lyn we will see less of that particular problem.

Obviously, we wish all parties well and look forward to future collaboration.

Dear Esteemed Editor,

I recently found a book about US bonds and mailed it to Larry. After he received it, he contacted me about payment. I replied that a cup of coffee at the FUN Show in January in Orlando, Florida would be payment enough. He mentioned he was going into the hospital but not the reason. I am not a praying person (except when during and after someone has been shooting at me) so I will just have to threaten him with wanting a signed IOU for a lot of money for that bond book instead of the cup of coffee. That should get him working on being healthy again!

The Master Sergeant Daniel

Gramsters,

As Fred said, things like Larry's surgery bring us up short and remind us to keep our priorities straight. Sometimes we get so wrapped up in "things of the day" we forget what the really important things are. All GRAM readers and most serious MPC collectors know Larry for his well deserved reputation as an expert in military currency, related subjects and more. Those of us lucky enough to know Larry personally, know him as a first class human being, a good man to have as a friend, a fellow with his head screwed on right and as a just all around good guy. Take care, Larry, and get well soon.

Larry, if this reaches you, I'm sure you know many of your friends are reading this and all of them join in thoughts and prayers for your quick recovery. Count me in their company.

Bill Murray

Dear Bill,

I can give a slight update since Harolds in 1012. I called Larry in his hospital bed on the third day (I think) after the operation. He was feeling much better. Here is a dilemma. Apparently he was not feeling good enough to comment on the attractiveness of the nursing staff, but he was very interested in some research discoveries that I shared with him. I do not know for sure what to make of these observations.

Fringe Fest Report

by Joe Boling

Well, I guess I had better get started on this, though I'd much rather go to bed. A succession of nights with 3-5 hours sleep is catching up with me.

Sunday night was the closing performance of my one-man show (titled What is it Like to be Joe Boling?) in the USO tour of the Seattle Fringe Theatre Festival. Those of you who attended the summer seminar saw an earlier version of it. This was the night that fester Tom Koch proposed should be a minifest (called playFest in the gram calendar). For someone so keen to have a pay event, he sure did leave his fest-wits at home, arriving without a challenge coin or a show-and-tell item (he pleaded his grandkids as the reason for his lack of attention to detail). Gail Baker and I (the only other festers at the event) decided he should get extra duty, so he was made paymaster.

Fringe Fest Certificates prepared by the PlayFest Currency Board in dollar denominations were issued. Lacking a graphic arts detachment or color presses, the board had to adapt existing notes to the Fringe Fest requirement. Fortunately, a supply of British Armed Forces Special Vouchers was available in the property disposal yard in Puyallup. These are 50 new pence notes of series 6, printed by BWCo. They were overprinted on the face as follows, with bars obliterating the original issuing authority statements between the large Xs (which covered the counters in the corners):

AUTHORIZED FOR USE AT THEATER SCHMEATER FRINGE
FEST CERTIFICATE TWO DOLLARS PLAYFEST CURRENCY BOARD

The backs bear the following text: This Fringe Fest certificate is exchangeable in trade for the value overprinted on the face hereof at the Theater Schmeater canteen during the dates 19â€"28 September 2003, or on extended dates as may be promulgated by the PlayFest Currency Board.

R. West R. Haney

Director Manager

Additional certificates in denominations of fifty cents, one dollar, and five dollars were prepared for pay purposes; each fester received pay of $15 consisting of one complete set and one set short the $2 note. This is because each person arriving in the theater received a $2 note. The Fringe Festival HQ had misprinted the landing fee in the master Festival program ($12 instead of $10), so each person arriving received a $2 refund in the form of a coupon valid for use at the canteen. Earlier arrivers (19-27 September) had received small blue cards with appropriate text (which did not identify the issuer as the PlayFest Currency Board). The newly overprinted notes were completed just in time for the final day's troops (work finished only hours before their arrival).

One pack of 100 notes was overprinted, bearing serials B/2 410001 through 410100. Numbers 1-80 were prepared as $2 notes, anticipating the arrivals that day at about 75 troops (numbers 1, 2, 6, 7, and 8 being retained for archival purposes). The remaining twenty notes were overprinted as follows: fifty cents, numbers 81, 85, 88, 91, 94, 98. $1, numbers 82, 86, 89, 92, 95, 99. $2, numbers 83, 96. $5, numbers 84, 87, 90, 93, 97, 100. Actual distribution of $2 notes by the terminal management unit was as follows: 3,4,5,9-47,75-80. Notes 48-74 were not claimed by the troops authorized to receive them (there were indeed just about 75 processed through the terminal unit), and were turned over to Currency Board officials at the conclusion of the day. These were deemed to be remainders, since the dates of validity had expired and no extension had been proposed. They were subsequently punched with a single hole in the lower right portion (as seen from the face) of the note.

During production of the overprints, some notes were observed to feed through the press at an angle, resulting in a skewed overprint on the face. Notes numbers 10-12 were particularly badly printed, but were left in the group delivered to the terminal management unit because the number of available notes was anticipated to be almost exactly the capacity of the port on that day. Those notes thus entered circulation.

Notes redeemed by the canteen were subsequently bought by the three festers present. Approximately half of the issued notes were so recovered, including at least two of the error overprint notes. Thirteen circulated notes (plus one that was converted to a short snorter) are in the possession of this writer, together with the stock of cancelled remainders. The numbers of circulated notes recovered by Mr. Koch and Ms. Baker are not known to me. There is a radar note out there someplace (410014).

I will offer pairs of issued and cancelled notes as follows, as far as the supply allows: $2 face for the issued note, $0.20 production cost for the cancelled note, $0.37 postage per order, not to exceed two pairs per respondent. Thus $2.57 for one pair, $4.77 for two pairs.

This should be all the information Al Glaser needs for his research. I doubt any production by GLBNC has been so thoroughly documented. [GLBNC treats all information as confidential.--Ed]

Fringe Fest sounds like it was a real hoot. I particularly lik the way that the notes were used at the concession stand. This is something of a first.

=====

Dear Editor-

First and foremost, our thoughts are with good friend Larry Smulczenski. We wish him a speedy recovery.

Second, we want to thank the Gram (and you personally) for its constant and enthusiastic support of our auctions. Speaking for Lyn and myself, both of us have enjoyed writing articles in the Gram as well as participating in events such as the Dallas Fest.

In reading your assessment of changes at Lyn Knight Currency Auctions, I would like to take this opportunity to respond as follows:

1) I would definitely agree that our firm "has taken a leadership position in selling military money in the past few years." The Leo May and current World War II collections were cited. As is well known, we also handled the Marvin Mericle collection earlier this year in Chicago. Finally, we have also sold important individual pieces. In short, the material offered, percentage of pieces sold, and prices realized all speak for themselves.

2) As far as this change goes in relation to the current World War II collection as well as all other holdings, current/future auctions will NOT be affected.

3) As far as Lyn's forays into MPC, it is important to remember that Lyn sold a variety of paper money PRIOR TO his involvement with Collectors Universe. Again, there will be no effect as far as the quantity and quality of material sold, whether it is MPC or anything else.

4) Collectors Universe did an admirable job in facilitating Lyn Knight auctions and sales. We expect to do at least as well, if not better, in continuing our catalogs and on-line product. We definitely appreciate your comment regarding serial numbers; this is something that can be addressed in future catalogs.

5) Finally, we expect changes to be minimal for customers. The biggest effect may well be the absence of sales tax issues for collectors NOT living in Kansas that get auction notes mailed to them. Sales tax will only be an issue for Kansas residents and individuals who want to pick notes up at the events or live in the state that the event takes place (unless that state does not tax our hobby).

We look forward to seeing everyone in Saint Louis. As usual, I will be writing an article(s) regarding highlights in that sale.

Sincerely,

Joel Shafer-Managing Director, World Bank Note
Division
Lyn Knight Currency Auctions

Dear Editor,

Please have Harold pass on our best wishes to Larry.

All Downunder wish him a speedy recovery.

Cheers,

Trevor

War Bond Auction Results

by Mark "Sparky" Watson

Last Friday, 26 Sep 03, Currency Auctions of America (CAA) had a sale in Cincinnati. In addition to some Military Payment Certificates (MPCs), CAA had four lots of U.S. bonds associated with World War II. The following is a summary of the bonds offered along with the prices realized which include the buyer's premium.

All of the bonds were issued to Andrew Owens of Mount Dora, Florida. They also are not redeemed or cancelled. This probably means that Owens (or his heirs) was deprived of the value of the bonds—but not absolutely. It is also possible that these are bonds that had been lost by the rightful owner and replaced making these simply the collectors items that they are represented to be in the auction. Obviously they came to the market as a group. This is a routine occurrence.

The first bond auctioned off was lot 522, a $25 Large Size Series E War Savings Bond (Schwan-Boling [SB] number 226), issued Nov 1942. The bond had a vertical fold down the middle along with staining on the bottom two corners. CAA graded the bond as About New with an estimate of $200 to $300; SB has a price of $75. The item sold for $322, rather high in my opinion considering I have seen similar bonds, in better condition, go for lower amounts.

In the next lot, CAA put up for bid a $1000 Series E Defense Savings Bond (SB 225) issued March 1943. The bond was in a similar condition as the previous lot with a vertical fold and staining in the bottom two corners – obviously stored in the same place. CAA again graded the bond as About New with an estimate of $900 to $1400; SB lists it at a rather low $450. The bond sold for $1495, a good buy according to the MPCGram editor.

The third item, lot 524, was a $50 Reduced Size Series E War Savings Bond (SB 233) with a fold horizontally about 1/3 up from the bottom. CAA graded the bond Extremely Fine with a high estimate of $250 to $350; SB lists it at $95. Like the $25 bond, the bond sold high at $345 as examples with no folds are available at lower prices.

In lot 526, CAA offered a $100 Series F Defense Savings Bond issued March 1943. This bond is mentioned in SB and would be SB 252, but SB did not list the Series F and G bonds but just reserved a block of numbers for them. Coming from the same location as the first two items, and in like condition with a vertical fold and staining in the lower corners, CAA graded it as extremely fine with an estimate of $400 to $700. The bond sold well over the estimate and closed at $2415. I have never seen this bond before (a similar comment was made by the cataloger)

This seems to be an important research for WWIIRemembered2 as it confirms that Series F (and Series G?) were issued as defense (and probably war) bonds.

=====

Editorial/opinion

=====

Mark Watson is certainly correct that the $100 Series F bond is significant for research. Possibly you have not paid attention to the US World War II bonds. Take a look at page 291-3 in Remembered. We had some good information on the Series E bonds, but really knew nothing about the Series F and G issues. I feel lucky that we at least mentioned them, speculated about the war relationship, and even saved catalog numbers for them. We are very interested in hearing of other F and G bonds in collections.

I must also comment that the prices realized (and other observations) support the idea that the bonds are catching on as the important historic artifacts that they are. On the other hand, the wide range of prices realized (in the CAA auction and elsewhere as indicated by Sparky) also indicate that the market is immature at best and crazy at worst.

=====

Dear Gram,

I have been getting email on the new grading lights just a note that anyone who knows about MPC knows the rules! Rule #1 Buy the Book! Rule #2 Buy the book! Rule #3 READ YOUR BOOK! Now for a new rule #4 Buy the light! and the reasons as Guy Araby noted earlier that this light is magnificent! It shows every little flaw in every note! It shows hidden corner folds, hidden center folds and even note doctoring! This light is not just for Grading and buying notes it is good to 150 ft deep of water and is used in many many other applications in every day life but it is a must for the MPC buyer for many reasons, as our notes get increasingly more valuable more and more people that you wouldn't suspect are doing things like pressing and doctoring notes! This light exposes them when used right every time! It takes the guess work out of is it a fold or is it a crease all the time, every time by showing you in great detail the flaws of the note. It shows you more then 50% of what a natural light can expose and will save you time and money. Every one has that story of I did not see it when I bought it scenario! This is your defense and insurance policy against those that want to take advantage of you by selling you a processed or pressed note that could cost you thousands of dollars, and yes it has happened to me? This light is a compact LED light source that has 5 individual bulbs that aluminates a very intense ray of high tech, optically delivered intense light source and for every light ordered from a gramster the Company is going to donate $5 to the scholarship fund in your name for a short period of time, you can get these and our donation by emailing me at kevin517@hotmail.com for more information. It will pay for itself mine has.

Sincerely Kevin

Dear Gram,

The first WestFest has come and gone, and a fine time it was. Al put on a great meeting, and the pay currency was exceptional. Likewise, Ed's souvenir card was a keeper as well. As reported by Guy Araby, the meeting consisted of show and tell followed by a pay call. After that, there was a voluntary report to the mess hall over in the marina where Steve S, Kevin N, Al G, Ed B, my son, and myself all had some dinner. My son, Chris "Make him pay till he bleeds" Watson made the deal of the evening by selling one of his Fest notes to Kevin N for $50. The next day, Chris promptly spent the money by buying a Gameboy cartridge and a Bionicle DVD. Also, certain serial numbered Fest notes are headed to Joe B and David S for future trades.

Cheers,
Sparky

Dear Sparky,

Thanks for the report. You and your family must have been everywhere. I saw your pictures in Numismatic News.

Series 004 - Number 1016 Friday October 3, 2003

LOCAL SHOW

By Harold Kroll

The Gulf Coast Numismatic Association is holding its third annual coin show this coming weekend, October 6th and 7th, 2003, Mobile, Alabama. If you are in the area, please come visit us, the show has been a great success in past years and we should have doubled our table availability as we turned away about the same number of dealers as we could accept for this years show. Plans are in the mill for a larger facility for next year.

There is a souvenir card available depicting a Mobile note but I am not sure what the note is at this time, if you have an interest in a card let me know. Proceeds help fund the clubs activities. We are also passing out uncirculated Alabama quarters with a sticker on one side with club information to all who attend this event.

Y'All come on down and enjoy a great show.
[Harold, we look forward to a show report! Be sure to take your challenge coin because you are certain to be surprised by someone.]

More What Is it like to Be Joe

Boling

Gail Baker

I just returned from a couple of whirlwind days in Seattle attending a portion of the Seattle Fringe Theatre Festival which included two performances of the play by Joe Boling What is it Like to be Joe Boling? and PlayFest.

The Seattle Fringe Theatre Festival runs over a two week period with 89 different shows scattered around in the many small theaters in the Capitol Hill area.

Joe picked me up at the airport on Saturday at 12:00 p.m. and we headed to the first of the ten shows we would attend over the next two days, Dance of the Calusari, a symbolic reenactment of Romanian rituals in dance and song, followed by a matinee performance of What is it Like to be Joe Boling?, an excellent Seattle Children's Theatre production of The True Confessions of Charlotte Doyle, then back to the Fringe with Death and the Maiden; and, Cat Fight! the true story of the divine feud between Bette Davis and Joan Crawford, and our last show for the day at 11:30 p.m., a lively and fun piece by Macha Monkey Productions, GameGirl.

We arrived at Joe's well past midnight and he still needed to prepare the notes for the following nights Fest. We discussed the wording, settling on "Fringe Fest" instead of "Play Fest" as that would have meaning for both groups receiving the MFC, the play attendees and the Festers. Since I'd been up since 3:00 a.m., I confess that I didn't stay up to help Joe with the project. Apparently he often works through the night and regularly gets only 5 hours and 14 minutes of sleep. I require more, so deserted him around 3:00 a.m. His guest suite is large and comfortable; the art work is wonderful.

The next day we headed back to Capitol Hill to see Fourteen, In Love, and Heartbroken, the story of "Kyle," an effeminate looking teenage boy with his first crush. The big question was whether the subject of his affection was male or female. Not your typical after school special. Then we were off to the Seattle Shakespeare Company and the fabulous comedy, Measure for Measure. Back at the Fringe we expected to see F...king Handicapped Guy, but the solo actor, an MS victim, was delayed so we quickly substituted The Agreement, a dark drama about spousal abuse and control that was very difficult for me to sit through.

My attitude was quickly adjusted as we headed for Theatre Schmeater and the closing night performance of What Is It Like To Be Joe Boling? and Fringe Fest. We met up with fellow fester Tom Kock who was pitifully unprepared for the mini-fest and as a result, at the very least, owes Joe and me a drink. (I think his well deserved embarrassment caused him to depart quickly at the end of the show to avoid further humiliation.)

Joe appointed Tom paymaster and our pay of $15 each was dispersed and paybooks (minus one) were signed. Joe has already described the actual notes, so I'll not elaborate. Notes were also given to each attendee. These were good for $2 off at the snack bar.

Before the show, I purchased a chocolate chip cookie at the snack bar, paying the $1 with a ten-dollar bill. My change was three $2 Fest notes and three $1 bills. One of the circulated pieces was passed around the audience for signatures. (The short-snorter was presented to Joe at the end of his performance.) One of the other notes that I received in change was an error; the over-printing did not line up. Tom received another of the error notes when he purchased his ticket. The third is still in circulation. Tom talked the snack bar worker into selling him 7 of the redeemed notes at face just before the start of the program. Another 12 were rescued for Joe after the show.

Joe's play was the best part of the weekend. First let me tell you that Joe is universally loved by all of the theatre community. Everywhere we went it was "Hey Joe," handshakes, smiles, hugs and kisses. I felt like I was with a celebrity. The nearly sold-out audience for Joe's closing night performance was electric with anticipation. When there was a slight delay before the show caused by a lighting problem, the audience stomped and chanted "Joe, Joe, Joe..." He received a standing ovation just for walking out on stage. I was literally and figuratively seeing Joe in a whole new light!

Joe's play is about his life -- which is extraordinary. I have seen the play four times (so far) and laughed, clapped, and hooted more each time. Do yourself a favor and make a point of seeing this production when he presents it in Portland as a Numismatic Theatre. You will be both entertained and amazed.

After the show, Joe stayed on stage for the after-show discussion. Almost everyone stayed and he was assaulted with questions and commentary. Everyone knows Joe because he supports and attends so many theatre productions (over 400 in a single year!). He appreciates the talent and passion of Capitol Hill; and in return they also support him. It is a beautiful exchange of affection.

After everyone finally left, we loaded the boxes of props into Joe's car and headed for the Fringe closing party and awards announcements. Hot and crowded -- but wild with excitement. Another late night before heading back to Federal Way.

Joe's home is decorated with memories; each item has a story which he happily shares. It is neat and organized -- so organized that even the piles that cover the dinning room table are labeled. (Fred, take note!) Everything has a place -- but he's running out of places.

On Monday morning before taking me to the airport, Joe shared parts of his collections with me. Joe is a natural teacher so he instructed as he shared. I had a ball.

My flight departed Seattle for the return trip to Colorado Springs at 2:00 p.m. I slept the whole way home -- exhausted, but in high spirits. Thanks, Joe for a great visit!

Editorial/opinion
=====

Could someone else play the lead in What is it Like to be Joe Boling? Of course it seems like it would be impossible or at least anticlimactic, but on the other hand... I also wonder if another version could be created that gives other views. Possibly a Good Joe and a Bad Joe. Then there is the possibility of adding another character or two. At the summer seminar Joe and I have recreated some scenes from our collecting lives. I am sure that some more could be remembered (and even embellished—gad).

Dear Gram,

I have finally felt well enough to attack all the chaff in my mail box and cull out your good wishes and the other good emails. But gosh guys, you humble me. All those kind words are embarrassing but your thoughts and prayers were appreciated. I told Prudy that my mail box in the sky where all those prayers go must have been on overload. They sure did the job though and believe me, I didn't care if they were addressed to the Lord, Buddha, Mohamed, Jehovah, or whoever else you pray to, they all worked and helped me through a pretty tough couple of days. That 3-4 hour surgery that took 7 hours, and those four pints of blood, where much more than what was expected. However, as of today, I was back to the surgeon to get the stitches out of the incision, and review the pathology report. The prostate was cancerous on both sides, but the cancer was fully contained within the organ with clear margins and no infected lymph nodes. So as the word goes, "All's well that ends well." I will continue to recuperate for the next five weeks, but that simply means no cutting grass or raking pine straw.

Now to clear up one of Fred's statements --"Apparently he was not feeling good enough to comment on the attractiveness of the nursing staff," That's an easy one to answer. Many of you know that I was operated on at Eglin Air Force Base Hospital and there I had four nurses in the four days I was in the hospital. Three of them were male and the fourth was on duty the day I was discharged. All of them were tremendous individuals and I can't speak highly enough of their professionalism or the compassionate services they provided, but as far as attractiveness of the nursing staff. Sorry Fred, I just don't swing that way. Of course there were a lot of young female technicians (corpsmen) running around, but it is really shocking to realize that my youngest daughter is 5 to 10 years older than any of these young folks. I will however say that I came away with a new appreciation for the fine shape our country is in. These young folks have their heads screwed on straight and you and I are in good hands with these young soldiers and airmen.

During my four days in the hospital, I had three roommates. The second was the most interesting in that this elderly gentlemen came into the Emergency Room with a suspected heart attack. After the problem was alleviated, they put him in my room for overnight monitoring. I quickly found out that he served in World War II, Korea and Viet Nam. He flew B-26's out of England and France during WWII and RC-121's in Nam. Korea was a staff job. You've got to know what my next question was. Your right. Did he remember using scrip and did he bring back any of it? Well the answers were yes and yes. He couldn't remember exactly what he was paid in during WWII, but did remember using MPC in Korea. Said he knew he had some stashed away in an envelope somewhere and promised that we could get together sometime in the near future to take a look at it.

Finally, I was sitting by my bed on Friday morning reading a Coin World when one of the young technicians came in to take my vital signs. He asked if I collected coins and I had to give him the whole pitch about MPC, and occupational currency. He seemed fascinated and said that he had brought home a Saddam note and a propaganda piece from his tour in Kuwait. True to his word, he brought them in the next day to show me. The Iraqi note was the crude 25 dinar printed by the Saddam regime and the propaganda piece was one that was similar to ones that I had seen from Gulf War I. The interesting part was that he made three or four more visits to my room to chat about collecting banknotes and Viet Nam in general. Maybe there is a budding collector here.

Again, thanks for your thoughts and prayers. It's wonderful to know that I had your support during these tough days. --Larry "Ski" Smulczenski

MPC Internet Auction

By Frank Clark

It was my pleasure to catalog a large collection of nice MPC for Heritage Coins/Currency Auctions of America for the current internet auction. The sale can be found at www.heritagecoin.com and closes on Wednesday, October 15. There are 92 lots of MPC with all but a handful being from one consignor. There were not any replacements, but many keys were included in various circulated grades. I'm sure the consignor spent many happy hours with his collection and was very proud of it. I myself had much fun cataloging it while getting paid! Hopefully, there will be some notes that you can use for your collections. Here are some of the lots, Series 471 $5, $10; 472 $5, $10; 481 $5; 521 $10; 541 $5, $10; 591 $10; 661 $20; 681 $20; and 692 $10. I am sure I missed a few other better notes. There are also group lots, but their was very little duplication in the collection. I hope I have whetted your appetite!

IBNS London Report

By Marcus Turner

Put day one of the IBNS London Congress in the books. So far it has been a great show with many of the personalities present that I expected to see. As it turns out my big purchase was the set of three Beligan Whiterhulp notes. These are the same ones that Harold features on the ANA summer seminar card this past year. It had been rumored that two sets sold, one in the Cortrie auction. I searched for that set but only heard that Ian had bought it. Ian Marshall or Ian Gradon? I checked with both but both denied having it. Ironically both Ians are at this show. As it turned out Ian Marshall had bought the set and forgot about it. I am taking all three pieces in the set home with me!

As expected Pam Wests is always very busy at this show. This year she is selling the new (improved, updated) version of Theo van Elmpt's book on BASFVs. This new book is approximately twice as thick as the old version. I have not yet had time to go over it in detail but expect it to be great (reading material for the fight home). Neil Shafer asked me to pick up a copy for him. I am also bring home two extras if anyone is interested @ £35.

I also spent some time with Ian Gradon who is now a full time dealer. I bought a Nazi ration receipt for cut lumber from him. It was a very interesting piece that I had never seen before. It took a little bit of effort to get translated thought. I first tried Michael Turner but he could not read the old text. As surprise visitor, Jack Lippincott also showed today. He could not translate the old text either. Finally Jos Esijermans cracked the code and revealed it was for cut lumber.

Other personalities in attendance were Tom Warburton, Mel & Jeromy Stienberg, John Pettit, Trevor Wilkin. Another surprise visitor was Clyde Reedy from Atlanta.

Pay operations have gone well with Ian Marshall, Tom Warburton and Jack Lippincott presenting paybooks. Missing in action is Gary "who has fours" Hicks. None of us have seen him here at all??? Several honorary souvenir sets have been given thus far. Overall it has been a great show thus far.

=====

Of course I am pleased, excited even, that Theo van Elmpst has a new edition of his BAFSV book. I can hardly wait to learn what new things he has uncovered. Simultaneously, I am amazed, stunned even, that neither Theo, Pam or other UK Gramsters had sent a notice, review, advertisement (all free) or other communication to the Gram about this new book. I took unfair advantage of my position as editor to claim one of the copies from Marcus and I am sure that the other will go fast. In the mean time, I hope that one of the above people will take the initiative to send us a review (or something). Failing that, I hope that Marcus will send one. Finally, I hope that Theo or someone will get a carton of the books headed this way (to me, Marcus, or someone) so that they can then be delivered quickly and cheaply to North American Gramsters. Please let us know.

Regarding the sale of Lyn Knight auctions, Whoopee! No extra 8+ percent buyer's premium (state tax) for California bidders!

Cheers,
Sparky

Dear Sparky,
Wow. Cool. Let me see if I have this right. You, Al, Guy, and other California Gramsters will donate 4% of all monies spent in Knight auctions to the scholarship fund (for the 25 years only)? That is a wonderful idea!

Matchmaker, matchmaker, make me a match

A matched pair has been discovered in the database again. This makes the second match found by the database and the first pictures of the matched notes in the gram. Of course such matched pairs are desirable to collectors.

<http://www.papermoneyworld.net/grams/images/MATCH%20PAR.jpg>

The notes are owned by Doug Bell and Harold Kroll.

The ability of matching serial numbers has been greatly improved by the MPC database. It has programmed in it the ability to match the numeral part of the serial number (excluding the suffix and prefix.) Doug was entering notes and matched a note Harold entered 1.5 years ago. When a match is found, the database notifies both parties (the second person interactively and the first via email.)

Doug and Harold promptly got together on the phone. Negotiations are underway.

Berlin Barter Store

By Warner Talso

I thought of you Gramsters the other night. We had friends for dinner Thursday evening. He is a retired Ordnance Corps colonel and his wife was a military brat whose father retired as an Infantry colonel. Anyway, she spent 1946-1949 in Berlin while her father was assigned there as a major. She was 10 to 12 years old. She remembers going to the barter store with her mother. They took cigarettes and food. I had not thought about the details of barter operations until this conversation. (It seems logical that there were fixed prices for routine commodities like a pack of cigarettes or a loaf of bread, but she does not remember.) It was fascinating. She also remembers her father coming home one night and announcing that they had to get all their money together because there was going to be a surprise conversion the next day. I assume that was the currency reform of 1948 (or the introduction of MPC in September 1946). She does not remember what the currency looked like and is fuzzy on the details. It was still exciting to talk to someone who had "been there."

BTW, this couple went back to Berlin last year. Their daughter and son-in-law (major, JAG) are stationed in Germany. They went to Berlin and this lady tried to find where her family had lived and the school she went to. They spent two days looking with no luck. Not surprising - it had been 45 years and a lot has changed. Then on the way to the airport to leave she shouted "stop" and "turn left." She had recognized the street they had lived on. She then found her old family quarters. Very emotional experience.

=====

The database serial number match reported above is great news. Such matches are a bonus for the people who put in the effort to enter notes in the database. Such entry provides many other benefits, but this one alone is enough to encourage the effort. This is an ideal case because the notes are otherwise unremarkable pieces. However, paired with it mate both become very desirable.

The problem comes in getting the notes into one collection. The first pair put together (to my knowledge) without access to unissued stocks (some pairs of Series 541 and 691 were put together by people with general access to the stocks) were identified at Fest I(!). In that case both pieces were replacements (Series 661 50c and $20.) From the first moment, the owner of the $20 indicated that it would be impossible to get that note away from him(on top of being a replacement, it was one of only two known second printing replacements).

The two collectors set out to make a deal and one was struck. I think that both parties felt that they had given too much so it was probably an equitable deal.

Doug Bell suggested that some sort of protocol might be introduced to help make deals possible (the first pair identified by the database has not been brought together). I do not think that it will be possible, but a discussion might be interesting or even fun and you just never know.

One concept is as with the 661s above. The priority might go to the person with the more rare basic note (disregarding the match). The idea here is that that one would be harder to replace if taken from a collection. The priority might also go to the one who entered his/her note first. Then of course, possibly the first opportunity to obtain the pairs should go to the Gram editor!

MAIL CALL

Dear All,

Quite lovely to report from London IBNS. Visited the Show on Saturday afternoon and had the opportunity to say hello to Ian Marshall, Tom Warburton and Mel Steinberg. There were approximately 60 dealers at the Bourse but I must say that most were selling modern issues and MPC was a foreign word. I do agree with the Steamed Editor and say it is a most interesting show to visit as I met again several friends from the Maastricht shows.

I did not attend the auction so cannot say anything about prices realized etc.etc. I did receive my MFC pay as I had my Pay Book along and am willing to make trades for this issue?? Marcus and Company say Hello to all. I wish I had more time to attend some of the discussion groups. London is a great city to visit!!

Cheers,

Jack Lippincott

More What Is it like to Be Joe?

by Joe Boling

Well, I have been run ragged for the past three weeks. I just tonight read grams 1016-1019 to see if there was going to be anything to comment on in tonight's column, and there was this tremendous trip report from Gail Baker. Now, if I could get her to write the commentaries on all those shows for me - I have not written them yet. No time. For one thing, I have had to be domestic for the past ten days. My plum tree bore a record or near record crop this year. I picked thirteen large plastic grocery bags full of plums (three varieties - it is a grafted tree). I have already made eight pies and two batches of jam, given three bags of plums to the PO and bank, and thrown away about three bags' worth that got too ripe (and moldy) to do anything with. I have two bags left to wash, cull, and cut up, plus enough processed plum meat for 3-4 pies. It takes about two hours to go through one bag, and I have been doing one a day. My apple tree had a record crop this year, too, but it only generated enough apples for seven pies (plus eating apples, as I am also doing with the plums). Bottom line - no time even for my mail and email, let alone any projects (like revising the ANA exhibit rules, which are now overdue at HQ). I will get to them this week.

The issued PlayFest Currency Board notes went in a hurry - I could not fill all requests received. I still have a small number of the canceled pieces (seven or so). If you want two (no more than two to a customer), email to confirm availability, then send a SASE plus one loose stamp (that is the payment - it is close to forty cents). Tom, did you get the radar note among the pieces that you bought from the till?

Today's mail brought a counterfeit series 681 $20 from Vietnam, an eBay lot that I won. It is not well preserved, and even in its heyday would have had to be passed at night without benefit of lights. But the colors are decent, especially the back, and it is printed by line lithography (at least five colors on the face, two on the back). It is position 14, SN C86801576C. It looks like the SNs were printed en bloc, not with a proper numbering machine (digits only - the digits are slightly doubled in both serials, but the blocks are put on in a separate operation and are not doubled). Does anyone else have an example of this fake with any documentation or other indication of where it was prepared and circulated? The Master Sergeant alerted me to this lot - thanks, Top.

I always wondered about the plum record. For you who have not seen Joe's play, the agricultural aspects were completely ignored.

I spent most of yesterday with Fester Cuneyd Tolek. He was in New Orleans on biz for the past few days. I picked him up at the airport. He was buzzing with excitement over his visit to the D-Day Museum in New Orleans. I have been wanting to go there for a long time. <http://www.ddaymuseum.org/>

Among other things Cuneyd demanded a copy of WWII Remembered from the museum book store. They promised to get a copy for him! Hopefully, Cuneyd will give a more detailed report. If anyone else has been there we could use your report too.

Dear Editor,

I understand that a feature in the gram credited me with a new BAFSV book. This is wonderful news as I have neither received the gram (for over a year I think) nor have I published a new BAFSV edition. I'm sorry to have to burst this bubble!

I did publish a new book on British Military Authority notes (Occupation Currency 1942-1956), however, which is probably at the heart of the confusion.

Although nothing to do with BAFSVs it might be of interest as it debunks most of what is thought to be known about these notes. It also describes a new series (as yet unknown as far as I can make out) and a few other small tidbits. It also contains some (new?) info on Yellow Seal dollars as used in Europe.

Hope nobody is too disappointed.

Theo

Dear Theo,

Wow, your letter touches on just about everything dear to an editors heart!

Instead of being disappointed, I am thrilled that your new book is on BMA notes. When last we met, you told me that you were working on it and I believe that I mentioned that exciting fact in the Gram. I can hardly wait to get my hands on a copy.

The confusion would have been greatly reduced if we could have had a news release (hint, hint) or review (Marcus, hint, hint). We would still love to have those and expect that they would be headline items and that they would also sell some books!

I am most disappointed that you have not been receiving your daily Gram. The aol addresses continue to cause problems. I have added your address to a supplemental list in the hope that the your Gram will get through. We continue to recommend to serious Gramsters that they create an additional address (yahoo or hotmail for example) to receive their Gram. We will even send a second Gram as a free bonus to your subscription (if you give us both addresses).

Editor

Dea Gram,

Just thought you should know that Theo's new book is not an updated version of his BAFSV book. It's completely new and covers the issues of the British Military Authority. It's in full colour and as you'd expect from Theo, there is a lot of new information and like his other books will probably become THE book on the subject.

Claire Lobel

Dear Claire,

Thanks. If you are selling the book, please give us details!

Editor

Dear Editor,

Saw this item on ebay that I just had to comment on.

It is one of the 691/ $ 1 notes that has been "VOID" cancelled. As offered in the GRAM just a few months ago.

Check it out @ ebay.com item # 3050226914.

Originally offered for a $ 10.00 donation, at present, it is just over $ 100.00. Just goes to show, It pays to read the Gram!!

Jack Hunter

Dear Gram,

I think that the Joe Boling play should be performed at Fest V.

Ski

Dear Ski,
Great idea. What do you think, Joe?

On the Road Again

by The Master Sergeant Daniel

Yesterday, I did not think I would get everything done on my list of things to do, and my wife's honey-do list. But somehow I completed everything and had 15 minutes to catch my breath before the taxi took me to Reagan National Airport.

It was a smooth and quick Delta Airlines flight to JFK International Airport and I checked in at Singapore Airlines. I am in the Business Class lounge for Swiss Air and just finished a nice baked chicken dinner with a great glass of Swiss red wine.

Did you know that the keyboard on a German-language PC has a different layout for some of the letters and other keys? I am going to keep this shorter than usual because it is starting to drive me nuts!

One thing I would like to mention is that I mailed a photocopy of a photograph of the main gate sign at the Free Military Forces compound in Saigon to Harold Kroll. There are MANY more countries on it than I remember and if all were given PX/Commissary privileges, there were a lot more "foreigners" using MPC! Harold can tell you about it after he receives it.

That is all for now. I am going to find a place here in the terminal where I can watch some nice looking young ladies walk by me. This lounge is full of old geezers and their mates.

Exhibit on Iowa rescuers of Jewish refugees during WWII opens November 9th on the Caspe Terrace in Des Moines, Iowa. On display until January 11th 2004 and then to tour statewide through summer 2005.

WWII Exhibit

Iowa Jewish Historical Society, Humanities Iowa and TRACES present an exhibit on the Quaker-run Scattergood Hostel at West Branch, Iowa.

Far from Hitler: The Scattergood Hostel for European Refugees, 1939-43 Iowa Jewish Historical Society Caspe Heritage Gallery The Caspe Terrace 3320 Ute Avenue, Waukee (suburban Des Moines, Iowa) November 9th 2003 through January 11th 2004

Opening – Sunday, November 9th, 2:30pm (the 64th anniversary of Kristallnacht, the Nazis' "Night of Broken Glass")

Robbie Winick, Iowa Jewish Historical Society President Michael Luick-Thrams, TRACES Executive Director Former Scattergood Hostel staff and refugees or their family members will include: Robert Berquist (staff, pending), Phil Clampitt (husband of refugee, brother of staff, son of Scattergood committee), Camilla Hewson-Flintermann (staff), Doris Peters (widow of refugee) and her daughter; others pending Governor Vilsack has been invited to attend.

From April 1939 to March 1943 about 185 refugees from Nazi-occupied Europe found an unexpected safe haven at Scattergood, a temporary hostel in what had been a Quaker boarding school near West Branch, Iowa. Among them were a large percentage of Jews, as well as political opponents of Hitler's regime, Christian religious leaders, artists and others endangered in the "New Germany." (The Quaker staff didn't note which of their "guests" were Jews and which were not. A review of the refugees' names plus information gathered during research, however, suggest that approximately 85% of those individuals seeking refuge at Scattergood were either self-identified Jews or identified as Jews by others.) With the help of the Quaker farmers and idealistic college students who took them in, the refugees (referred to as "guests" by staff) sought to overcome the trauma of their experiences in Europe, find a niche for themselves and build new lives in the New World.

Far from Hitler is sponsored by the Iowa Jewish Historical Society and TRACES and supported by a major grant from Humanities Iowa, a state-based affiliate of the National Endowment for the Humanities.

TRACES executive director Michael Luick-Thrams conceptualized the exhibit and oversaw its creation. Former refugees and staff donated documents, photographs, artifacts and interviews.

The Iowa Jewish Historical Society and TRACES will bring this story to life through artifacts and audio-visual materials. Never before has an exhibit made this little-known story accessible to the public.

Join us for the opening event on Sunday, November 9, or visit the exhibit during museum hours. For more information on the event contact the Iowa Jewish Historical Society at (515) 987-0899.

Camilla Hewson-Flintermann, staff member of Scattergood will be available for interviews in Des Moines from Friday, November 7 through Monday November 10.

For additional information on Scattergood contact www.TRACES.org

=====

Today was the release of the new US $20 notes. I tried every bank in a two county area to find just a single example. No luck. It seems to me that we should have had special consideration since MFC was the inspiration for the new designs. There just is no justice I guess. It is hard to make a clear connection of these new notes to our primary mandate of studying military money, but still, we will be happy to have reports and observations of early uses of the notes.

=====

Dear Gram,
Received 2 grams sent 36 seconds apart.
Ken Berger

Dear Gram,
Believe it or not I was in Chieveley which is outside of Newberry which is outside of Reading which was outside of London about 40 miles. The trip into London would have taken a bus and three rail connections. I instead went metal detecting and found a nice lead papal seal (medieval) and quite a few nice George the 1st II and III coins. I was truly thinking of you guys but again I just couldn't make it. My apologies and thanks for looking out for me Marcus. I am now in Berlin and I will see if there is any stray MPC still floating around. Take Care All.....

Gary( Who has Fours) Hicks

Dear Gram,
I also agree that Joe should perform his play at the Fest, and I would also like to ask that both Joe & Fred do a reenactment of the 1985 ANA auction purchase of the 651 fractionals.
How about it guys?

Dick Freyser

Dear Dick,
Hm, if Joe does his play, we can consider that for 2005. Thanks for the vote of confidence. Possibly we should not have done it at the seminar.

Editor

Dear Editor,
This is NOT FOR PUBLICATION Gram 1019 finally came in at 3:49 PM today. It was accompanied by two copies of 1020 at exactly the same time--3:49 PM. That is wierd isn't?

Name Withheld

Dear Name,

I liked your letter and thought that withholding your name was about the same as not publishing it.

Financing War-UK

By Warner Talso

Addressing the financial situation of Great Britain in WWII is a daunting task. There is so much history here, at least for those of us in the English-speaking world. Great Britain, as one of the Allies, may have been on the winning side, but was devastated economically, and as a nation, never fully recovered it's world position after the war. Plus, Great Britain's activities are closely intertwined with those of their Commonwealth, which offers the potential for greatly expanding the scope of discussion.

Great Britain's economic policy and strategy were largely based on the recommendations of John Maynard Keynes, acting as economic advisor to the Treasury. Keynes was such a force in English economic doctrine that it is worth a digression to examine him more closely. John Maynard Keynes was born 5 June 1883 in Cambridge, England and died 21 April 1946 in Sussex, England. He was an economist by education and profession. After WWI ended, Keynes represented the English Treasury at the Versailles Peace Conference, but, in June 1919, he resigned on the grounds that the proposals being put forward for German reparations were both unfair and impractical. Another important period of Keynes' career was during the 1930s. This was a period of unemployment and the depression. Conventional economics could not cope with these extraordinary events leaving traditional economic theory with no answers. Keynes made a name for himself by explaining these events. By 1937 Keynes' health began to deteriorate. He would never be fully fit again. However, his expertise was such that he was given an honorary role in the Treasury during World War II. He wrote a book in 1939 entitled "How to Pay For the War". The theme was to show that the real problem was how to release the resources available to the war effort in a way that it inflicted the least long-term hardship and minimize the impact on those least able to bear it. Keynes basically proposed forced loans from labor, repayable after the war was won, and he made rough evaluations of the domestic and foreign resources of Great Britain that could be mobilized by the central government to provide the necessary military force. His work had a major influence on English and world policy, then and in the future. For example, he is given credit for establishing the International Monetary Fund and the World Bank. His system of national accounting was adopted by the United Nations.

As a result, similar to policies of WWI, Britain again raised much of the finance by heavy domestic taxes and foreign borrowing. Only now in addition to accumulating indebtedness to the United States, it also built up a huge indebtedness in sterling balances to the Commonwealth and Empire countries. These were to be a major constraint upon British economic policy for at least two decades after the war. Finally, price and wage controls were imposed as in all the belligerent nations, and were effectively enforced thanks to total mobilization of the economy for the war effort and the control of products available to consumers through control over imports.

Sorry about missing three days. I sure hate it when that happens. I have a good excuse for one of the days (yesterday). Warner and I had a little misunderstanding. After sending me the column (above), we talked on the phone. He told me that the Albuquerque Coin club was having its local show this weekend. I suggested to him that he should alter his column to include a promotion for the local show. By this morning I had not received the alteration. By chance Warner called a few minutes ago and we discussed it again. No matter what message that I thought that I had transmitted, the message that he had received was that he should send an after action report.

So, I learned, once again how fragile communications are. I also obtained the essential information to put in a last moment plug. The Albuquerque Coin Show it TODAY and tomorrow at the Mountain View Holiday Inn, Albuquerque, NM. If you are in the area, you should stop in. If nothing else you can meet a Gram columnist!

In the above conversations with Warner on the phone, he politely pointed out that the introductory material in WWII Remembered re English war savings documents was missing. By extension he was pointing out that listings and other information on this same issues was also sparse, well worse than that.

He was correct in statement and inference. We did not have much information. This was a source of frustration for me. I could not understand that we could not find any war/defence type bond items for the UK. We did have some information that they had been issued (see page 169 of Remembered).

Eventually, I developed a theory about this. We know (see page 170) that starting in 1940 securities were evacuated to Canada. It finally hit me that actual paper bonds were not issued. Instead the bonds were sold by journal entries only.

I was pleased with this theory (better late than never), but of course wanted verification. Well, we have found it. A newly found sales brochure directly points out that paper bonds were not issued. This explains why we have not been able to find any such bonds.

Now I wonder if in spite of the brochure if paper items might have been issued in small quantities. This might have happened before 1940 when the evacuation of securities began or they might have been created at least for publicity or other limited purposes.

Dear editor,

The full name of Theo's new book is BMA. Occupation currency, 1942 - 1956. Europe and North Africa.

The readers may want to know the book details so that they may order it. It is published by the ELRAN PRESS and has the ISBN of 90-801808-6-6. Published in 2003 and the author's full name is T F A van Elmpt.

I have only just received my copy so I am unable to give a detailed account of it. First impression is very encouraging.

Regards, Andrew M. Clark

Dear Gram,

Add my name to the list of those who would like to see Joe perform is play at Fest V. Perhaps something can be done with "tickets" and/or MFC for admission. As an aside, permit me to comment on a non-numismatic but military related matter.

While going through some of her late father's things (he was a bomber pilot in the Pacific in WW 2) my wife came across a card issued by "THE BENEVOLENT ORDER OF T S." Now, I would assume most of us who were in the military have heard the expression to "go see the Chaplin and get your TS card punched." Well, I for one, never knew that a real card actually existed.

The card we found is punched in two spots and is duly signed by Chaplin Maxwell.

First Full Day in Saigon

by The Master Sergeant Daniel

I flew in yesterday on Singapore Airlines flight 172 from Singapore. My seatmate was a Dutchman who works for International SOS. He made a ton of money on Wall Street a few years ago and went back home and is doing volunteer or low-pay work. Great guy and I hope to meet him and his family some day in Amsterdam. The flight landed at 11AM, but it took almost an hour to come through immigrations! There were two Vietnamese in front of me with screwed up visas and it took forever to get them out of the way. My bags were waiting for me and customs was quick because I was carrying a lot of cash and went through a "special" line. About six of my relatives were waiting for me and I was stuck in a taxi with two of my 20 and 22-year old nieces. Yes, I do have hardships once in awhile.

My townhouse is still here and looking real good. I hung out with the family for three hours then took a taxi downtown to Van Dung Shop at 15 Le Loi. Dung is my brother here in old Saigon and he is my primary numismatic and philatelic dealer here. The first news he had for me was not good. He had fewer than 6 pieces of MPC and it is not coming in like previous years. I had that strong feeling last year that the majority of the MPC here has been soaked up and sent to the USA. I will keep looking and you guys need to send me a want list via email at Howard@SEAsianTreasury.com so I buy what you are looking for. My 20 year old niece, who is also my adopted daughter, is nicknamed Tu. She is going to work with me for the month and one-half I am here to produce a Socialist Viet Nam coins and paper money book. I am also going to try to have it printed here in color. We shall see how things work out. That is all for now. I will write more when I have some numismatic news.

Well, I seem to have made my counting errors even worse by trying to fix them. I only hope that I have this one correct! I still have not seen a new US $20 note, but I heard on the news tonight that the new Iraq notes will be introduced on October 15. Has anyone heard anything about this? Seen the notes? We have discussed the matter of Iraq currency (paper money AND coins) in the past, but the subject seemed to fade away. I for one am very interested to see the notes. I assume that the printer will be obvious by examination, but possibly it will not be. Denominations and exchange rates will be interesting. Your comments before and after will certainly be welcome.

Dear Gram,

I received one copy of GRAM 1021 but when the corrected number line issue (GRAM 1022) was sent out, I received two copies 13 seconds apart. Did you send it out twice?

Ken

Dear Gram,

Even with all those grams (3 of them), you still never corrected the number in the actual Gram heading.

Sparky

Hello Gramsters,

Just thinking of something that might be fun! An MPC crossword puzzle! Although my grammer leaves something to be desired, I figured you "educated gramsters" (I.E. Joe B. or Fred or?) could "make up" a pretty cool one. I will give it a try. Believe or not, I never play crossword puzzles, but and MPC one would be FUN?? Well it is up to you fellow gramsters to start it up?? monthly? ((Doug-- the wizard! may be good at setting this up?)) Just a thought.! Guy! P.S. My best wishes and prayers to a great recovery for Larry "SKI" Smulczenski. I always enjoy his columns!

Guy!

Dear Guy,

What a great idea! I will get to it as soon as I finish with Middle East Peace and world famine. I guess this is my way of saying that this is not a project for me..., but I would not be surprised if someone can meet the challenge. Bill Murray wrote a poem for kilogram, Ed Beaman has created stunning verbal and visual MPC items, and Russ Walsh has created great MFC art. Gramsters are indeed talented. I think that there might even be software to help build cross word puzzles. If someone can create a good one, we might even put it in the next MPC book.

Thanks for the idea.

New Dinar

BAGHDAD, Oct 11 (Reuters) Iraq's central bank fired up its furnace today and consigned thousands of banknotes bearing the smiling face of Saddam Hussein to the flames ahead of a massive currency swap to start next week.

Deputy Central Bank Governor Ahmed Salman Mohammed said the central bank had already absorbed a 'good portion' of Saddam banknotes still in circulation and would carry on with the systematic destruction in coming weeks.

Iraqis have three months from October 15 to swap the estimated four trillion dinars of Saddam bank notes in circulation for new bills bearing pictures of an ancient Babylonian ruler and a 10th century Iraqi mathematician. The Iraqi dinar is worth about 2,000 to the dollar.

'I am optimistic it will go well,' Mohammed told reporters in the lobby of the Iraqi central bank where tellers counted tall dinar stacks. 'Most of it (the currency swap) could be over in one month.' The US-led administration in Iraq has ordered all images of Saddam to be removed from monuments, murals and school textbooks.

But in the months following the war it was forced to print billions of dinars of banknotes bearing the face of Saddam, to ease a shortage of low-denomination banknotes.

Several floors below the central bank lobby in a furnace room opposite the vast doors of one of the vaults, workers threw bundles of Saddam bills into the fire and raked the flaming notes deeper into the inferno.

Adnan Chalabi, the manager of the furnaces, said about half a billion to one billion dinars could be in the furnace. Currency is burned weekly by the central bank, mainly to destroy defaced and tattered notes, he said.

The layout of the new notes that will be introduced is familiar to Iraqis as they are based on the popularly called 'Swiss dinar,' which was used in Iraq before the Saddam banknotes were introduced and still circulates in northern Iraq, governed as an autonomous region by Kurds since it was wrested from Saddam's control in 1991.

The new notes are printed by the same firm that made the old 'Swiss dinar' -- Britain's De La Rue Plc.

Boxes of the new currency stood in the street outside the central bank building where several machinegun mounted US military Humvees stood in the heavily guarded banking quarter.

The Babylonian ruler Hammurabi, credited with creating the first written code of laws in human history, graces the new pink 25,000 dinar note, worth about $12. The other side shows a smiling Kurdish farm worker holding a sheaf of wheat.

Astronomer and mathematician Abu Ali al-Hasan ibn al-Haytham, born in Basra in 965 and known as Alhazen to medieval scholars in the West, is on one side of the 10,000 note, the only other human figure on the new notes.

Banknote maker De La Rue has reported a boost in profits - thanks to an order for Iraqi banknotes.

The Essex-based firm, which is the official printer of UK banknotes, said it had delivered the order for Iraqi dinars ahead of schedule.

Its shares surged more than 6% on the news, which it said would help it deliver better-than-expected first half profits.

The interim US authority placed an order for new banknotes after it was forced to take the embarrassing step of printing currency bearing the image of Saddam Hussein.

Urgent need

A spokesman for De La Rue refused to say what image would be on the notes, but said it would not be the former dictator.

New banknotes are urgently needed to plug the shortage of local currency on the streets of Iraq, where the exchange rate with the US dollar is about 0.0016.

The BBC's Shelley Thakral, in Baghdad, said the removal of Saddam Hussein's image would have great symbolic value for Iraqis.

"If you travel around Iraq, you just don't see his face any more, so not to have his face on currency is a big deal," she said.

She said speculation in Baghdad was that the new notes would feature "cultural and architectural" scenes.

De La Rue announced in July it would lead a consortium of global currency specialists to make new banknotes for Iraq.

De La Rue is one of the first British firms to benefit from the multi-billion dollar drive to rebuild the shattered country after the US-led invasion.

Its shares, which plunged in late 2002 and early 2003 on a string of profit warnings, were 6.1% higher at 306.5p in late trade on the London stock exchange.

Welcome news

Paul Jones, an analyst at Numis Securities, said early delivery of the Iraqi banknotes did not change the value of the contract, which analysts have estimated at up to £8m.

But he said it proved the firm was operating efficiently and was on track to meet his full-year profit forecast £39m.

The Iraq order came as welcome news to De La Rue shareholders, who had seen the value of their investment plunge by around two-thirds since June 2002.

The firm has been hit by weakness in its cash systems unit, which sells counting and sorting machines to banks and financial institutions.

Distribution Details

excerpt from: voanews.com submitted by David Klinger

On October 15, 240 banks throughout Iraq will begin a three-month process to swap out old Iraqi dinars for the new currency, in what has been described as a major logistical event.

Some 2,300 tons of new Iraqi currency, printed at facilities around the world, have been flown into Iraq on 27 Boeing 747 jetliners.

A week ago, banks began receiving the new currency, which comes in six denominations, and next Wednesday (15 OCT) the distribution process will begin.

Down in the Mekong Delta

by The Master Sergeant Daniel

I have received some emails from Gramsters wanting me to find some stuff for them and I will try to find it. I will also report all MPC to you here for the database and for Gramsters to tell me to buy it or not. Right now, I am down in the Mekong Delta in Cho Lach. This is my wife's hometown in Ben Tre province. It is not far from Vinh Long city, for those of you without very detail maps of Viet Nam. I bought some funeral money for Bill Etgen in Sacramento, which I do with each visit down here. If people collect MPC, I guess they can collect funeral money too! I will be returning to Ho Chi Minh City tomorrow morning and will have a day or two to walk around before my wife and I try to buy train tickets for a long weekend in Nha Trang. I have never been there. Do any Gramsters have any recommended places for me to visit? The family is yelling at me to come for lunch so I have to close this off.

=====

Boeing jetliners! Yikes. The new dinar should have been in Iraq six months (or more ) ago and should have been transported by ship. I suppose that security requirements might have trumped the cost of air delivery, but I doubt it. Do we have any experts in this area? The new dinar should have been prepared during the planning stages for the operation, not after the war. Of course, it is possible that it was and we do not know about it, but the news indicates differently. The new Iraqi dinar is (in my opinion) something like the 1948 Special Army Currency for Germany and therefore worthy of our study. As informative as all of the above news is, some of it is contradictory so it should be fun and interesting. I look forward to seeing the notes (just as I still look forward to seeing the new US $20).

Dear Editor

Thank you for the GRAM.

About 10 days ago I heard on the BBC (TV) that the new Iraqi notes were to be issued from Oct. 15. There will be 6 denominations, a pair of notes were shown and they did not bear the portrait of S. Hussein. The old notes might be exchanged during 3 months.

Best greetings from Kharkov,

Dear M,

Thank YOU for the information. If some of the notes were shown on BBC, we should be able to find some images somewhere on the internet.

Exchange Notes Issued

MPCFest 2003 Foreign Exchange notes were issued at the recently completed London IBNS paper money fair. The spectacular notes feature famous English military personnel.

The notes were used to pay Festers who attended the event. Exact information on quantities issued is not available.

Festers and others who have seen the notes have raved about the art and production quality. Photographs of the notes are available at the following links.

This n That

by Joe Boling

Well, again I have been plumb out of time all week (the plums are still being processed), so tonight I read grams 1020-24 in preparation for writing this column.

In re the suggestion that I perform "What is it Like to Be Joe Boling" at the next fest, I might be able to do that if I can get all the props into a suitcase and stay under the weight limit. One issue would be that the boxes that hold the props during the show would not be shipable; I would have to improvise something on site after I arrive. Nor would one particular prop be easily shipable, a five-foot long climbing stick (and I would not want to risk having it broken; I have seen what airlines do to long items). Otherwise, I would be pleased to do it. Gail has already informed me that it will be on the Numismatic Theater program for Portland, but I can drive there with all the props.

Further to Warner Talso's column in gram 1021/22, Britain continued to ration consumer goods into the 1950s, much longer than the US (the US, as I recall, essentially stopped rationing even before the war ended, in early 1945 - someone correct this if necessary).

OK, so who sent in the item about the Benevolent Order of TS? Which I loved, by the way.

Item received this week - lot 527 from the CAA Cincinnati sale, described as a hand-made pseudo-currency item. In addition to my interest in it as a "counterfeit," the legends on it convince me that it is actually trench art. Now, the fact that it is large-size currency dimensions means WWI. It was obviously prepared by a semi-literate person. Legends include the following (misspellings as shown on the note): face Will.Pay.to the Bearer.Five.Dollars.in.Coin.out of Fonda.Mounton.County.Bank.Montina.State No.29. UNITED STATES NATIONAL CURENCEY FONDA.N.Y.BANK.M.S.G.T.GLOARY. Bonds.Cartar FIVE.DOLLARS. 5.97.8.11.^.. back United.States.of Hollen.Gearmeny.Tearitory.A.Treasurey.Note.issued.on Gold.and Silver.Coin.^.. this Note.is A.Leagel.Tender.to.Five.Dollars

The symbol ^ represents the Greek letter delta, used twice as a spacer. The piece is hand-drawn in brown and green on bond paper with the watermark ALEXIS BOND. OK, you numerologists - what does 5.97.8.11 mean? If it is WWI, and 97 is a birth year, that puts the artist at about 21 years old. There IS a Fonda NY, a burg of 1000 on the Mohawk River between Utica and Schenectady. But there are no mountains near

- it is between the Adirondacks and the Catskills.
(There are also Fondas in Iowa and North Dakota, but not Montana.) And note the MSGT - except for the periods (which he uses all over the note as word separators), it sure looks like a common military abbreviation.

One final comment - the CAA description calls it "very fine with some splits." There is an oxymoron right off the bat - it cannot be VF with splits. But in fact, the note has been torn into two pieces (or separated along one of those "splits") and glued back together; plus, one of the other splits (extending half-way across the note) is also glue-repaired; plus, there are holes totaling over two cm in length along the internal splits. I would say the boys at CAA need to go to grading school. Forewarned is forearmed.

I still have not held (nor even seen in person) a new $20. However, I did see the first television commercial for it. The commercial was cute. A customer at check out was basically juggling a new $20 (juggling is another hobby of mine-check books and balls). The commercial was cute. I liked it, but that seems to be far from the point. Several sources (including Gramsters) have stated that there is a $30 million promotion campaign to introduce the public to the new money. A USA Today editorial blasted this expenditure. I have to agree with the criticism. I hope that we (the public institutions) can learn from this and next time spend $3000 instead of 10,000 times that.

The USA Today editorial (and others) stated that the Bureau of Engraving and printing was responsible for this promotion. This seems to be a curious choice to me. Possibly the BEP was the agent for the Federal Reserve or Treasury, or possibly the reports were wrong.

As always we invite opposing (or even supporting) views.

More on Iraqi Dinar

Submitted by David Klinger

On July 7, 2003, the Coalition Provisional Authority released the following responses to frequently asked questions regarding the transition to a new Iraqi banknote.

THE NEW IRAQI BANKNOTES -- QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
What's happening?

New Iraqi banknotes will be introduced on October 15. The normal Iraqi dinars ("print dinars") in circulation in most of Iraq, and the former national dinars ("Swiss dinars") in circulation in parts of Northern Iraq, will be exchanged for this "new Iraqi Dinar."

When is this happening?

The new notes will be ready on October 15.

What happens between now and then?

Nothing. You should continue to use existing banknotes. They continue to have the same value and the same validity. From October 15 until the exchange period ends on January 15, you can use either the current or the new banknotes.

Should I change all my money now into another currency?

No. Your normal Iraqi ("print") dinars will be exchanged directly into new Iraqi dinars at a rate of one to one. Former national ("Swiss") dinars in use in parts of Northern Iraq will be exchanged at a rate of 150 new dinars to one "Swiss" dinar. We are fixing these rates now so that you need not worry.

Where will I have to go to change my money?

To designated exchange points, which will include the branches of the Rafidain and Rasheed banks.

Will I have to change my money immediately after the exchange begins?

No. There will be three months to make the exchange. Throughout the exchange period, both normal ("print") dinars, former national ("Swiss") dinars, and new dinars will be accepted as legal tender.

Won't the value of Iraqi dinars drop between now and October 15, as measured against, say, the dollar?

There is no reason for this to happen. This will not be a new currency, but simply new banknotes.

How will I know when the new notes are ready?

They will be ready on October 15. Announcements will be made in a similar way to this announcement, i.e. by radio, television, newspaper, poster and leaflet.

You're already running out of Iraqi dinars. Won't there be a mad rush to get the new ones?

No. There will be no shortage of the new dinars. And they will be available in many more denominations than are in circulation now.

Why don't you just print more normal Iraqi ("print") dinars?

Because their quality is poor, they don't last. They are also hard to use because of the lack of different denominations. And it's time that the new unified Iraq had one set of banknotes, and notes without the head of Saddam Hussein.

Can I keep dollars if I want to?

Absolutely. In the new free Iraq, you can hold whatever currency you want. But the new dinar will be the official banknotes for the whole of Iraq, from Dohuk to Basra.

Is the coalition trying to take over the Iraqi economy?

Absolutely not. That is why we are introducing new banknotes, based on the original Iraqi dinar design.

Do I really need to change my notes? Won't the new Iraqi government change the design again anyway?

Yes, you should change all your current dinars when the time comes. After the changeover period, the normal Iraqi ("print") dinars, and former national ("Swiss") dinars will no longer be valid. Once there have been national elections, and there is a new Iraqi Government, the new Government may introduce new notes, or a new currency. But this will be further down the line.

Do I need to withdraw all my money from the bank?

No, money held in the banks will be automatically converted for you.

ANA Library Officially Dedicated in Honor of Dwight N. Manley

The American Numismatic Association Library in Colorado Springs, Colorado--the world's largest circulating numismatic library--will be dedicated October 17 in honor of Dwight N. Manley, recognizing his generous contribution to the ANA's Headquarters Renovation Fund.

Manley, a noted rare coin collector and sports agent from Newport Beach, California, contributed $250,000 to the renovation fund. He will join the ANA Board of Governors in ceremonies set for Friday, October 17. Also scheduled to attend are ANA Past Presidents Florence Schook and Q. David Bowers, who both played a role in Manley's early numismatic education.

The ANA completed a multimillion-dollar renovation of its Museum and Library in 2001, which more than doubled the Library's shelf space and provided better access to its growing collection of books, auction catalogs, periodicals and videos. The expanded, climate-controlled rare book room preserves and displays many of the Library's most important references, and a new security system protects the valuable inventory.

"We have more than 9,000 titles available, circulate more than 2,500 items a year to ANA members around the world and annually respond to nearly 2,000 research queries," says ANA Librarian Nancy Green. "As members of the Colorado Library Consortium, we also circulate material to anyone with a valid Colorado public library card, and we are seeing an increase in local circulation as more and more people discover this great resource."

When he made his donation for the Library renovation, Manley said it was his experience as a teenager at an ANA Summer Seminar--a week-long event that now draws 450 people every year--that launched his numismatic career.

"The American Numismatic Association encouraged me and then ANA Governor Florence Schook assisted me in receiving a scholarship to attend my first Summer Seminar in 1981," Manley says. "I am privileged to show my grateful appreciation to the ANA, and am honored by this recognition."

Manley, 37, began collecting coins at age 6 after finding 1909 and 1910 Lincoln cents in a coffee can. He still has the coins. A year later, he visited his first coin store and was told he needed to study numismatics before he bought more coins. Manley continued collecting and reading over the years and, at that first Summer Seminar, he met Bowers--his idol--other young numismatists and adults willing to teach and learn. A year later, Manley attended his second Summer Seminar and then attended his first ANA convention.

Although Manley is known to many as a sports agent representing Los Angeles Lakers star basketball player Karl Malone and others, he also is widely recognized as a leader in promoting numismatics. In recent years he served as managing partner of the California Gold Marketing Group (CGMG), which has been involved in a number of noteworthy numismatic events that have brought great public attention to the hobby.

Under Manley's guidance, CGMG purchased, promoted and sold the California Gold Rush treasure retrieved from the 1857 shipwreck of the S.S. Central America.

The group created a $20 million traveling exhibit of recovered gold coins, bars and nuggets for display at coin shows and museums throughout the country. The group also sponsored a television documentary about the S.S. Central America and published Bowers' 1,056-page reference book, A California Gold Rush History, featuring the sunken treasure.

In a 1998 interview Manley said, "I have been very lucky to have enjoyed all I have done. I have enjoyed rare coins and the people I met. At the same time, I enjoy the world of sports and its ever-changing scenes.

"I think the key is to collect what you enjoy. This is true with anything in life. If you buy something because you enjoy it, you will always be a winner."

The ANA Library is the custodian of the IBNS paper money library. The IBNS library and other library holdings offer important research opportunities for military money collectors.

For more information about the Dwight N. Manley Numismatic Library, contact Librarian Nancy Green at 818 N. Cascade Ave., Colorado Springs, CO 80903-3279; phone 719-632-2646; fax 719-634-4085; e-mail library@money.org; or visit the ANA at www.money.org.

This morning I was thinking about multiple printings. Specifically, I was thinking about how the concept and listings will be carried into World War II Remembered. I went into the manuscript and added the following paragraphs to the introductory material. I repeat it below for your information and (hopefully) comment.

Since the 1995 edition, multiple printings of military payment certificates have been documented and become very popular with collectors. The concept of studying (collecting) by printing is not completely new. Even within military payment certificates, multiple printings had been identified for one series many years ago. In many other cases block letter advances that were collected also represented multiple printings. A perfect example of this is with Allied military 1000 yen notes. New listings for multiple printings are included for Special Army Currency (see occupied Germany) among others.

The numbering convention for military payment certificates is being adapted here. Where a serial number or other easily observable difference exists, the difference will be listed as a letter variety. Where serial number range is the only or major criterion, a numeral suffix is added to the basic catalog number as 123/1, 123/2. In most cases the printing history will also be given.

=====

Dear Editor,

I have just read an interesting article in the October 2003 edition of 'the Currency Dealer newsletter'. The article, titled "Military payment Certificates an update..." written by Fred Schwan, a well know author on MPC, recognized as an expert in the field by many gramsters. Is it possible that the gram can get permission from the publisher to reprint that article in the Gram for the benefit of gramsters that do not subscribe to this publication?

Dick Freyser

Dear Dick,

It is probably possible to reproduce the article in a few weeks. If you think of it, please send a reminder.

Editor

Dear Editor and Joe Boling,

I guess I neglected to "sign" my Benevolent Order Of TS note. I appreciate the fact that Joe Boling liked it. As I indicated, I never knew there was an actual card. If anyone is interested, I can try to send a scan.

Roger Urce

Dear Editor:

We just completed the Albuquerque Coin Club's semi-annual Coin Show and it was a rousing success. The show was this weekend, October 11th and 12th. We had 32 dealers and 50 tables. Richard Horst was there from Colorado Springs and had some very nice Konversionkasse for sale.

Dealers I talked to seemed satisfied, the crowd was good, the Club made a little money and we promoted the hobby. What else is there? There were drawings every hour and a final drawing at the end with the grand prize of a 1922 Double Eagle.

A great deal of credit for success goes to Jason Hilligoss, Club President and Show Director. In recognition of his good work, and by the authority invested in me by Fest HQ, I awarded him a Fest challenge coin at the end of the show.

See you in April for the next show.

Warner Talso

Covering the entire World of Military Numismatics
Series 004 - Number 1028 Friday October 17, 2003

Excerpts from a DOD news briefing held today (15 Oct) in Bagdad related to the C Day in Iraq

Submitted by David Klinger

The exchange is a major logistical operation involving, among the elements, printing in six countries -- Sri Lanka, Kenya, Spain, the U.K., Malta and Germany; flying the 2,200 tons of new currency in 747s into Baghdad; three distribution hubs throughout the country; a battalion of Fijian soldiers to move the new currency to the banks and pick up the old currency; a fleet of Russian aircraft to move the currency in country; over 100 convoys that have delivered over 700 tons of currency around the country to date; over 10,000 bank staff and thousands of Iraqi police and bank guards providing security; a destruction site, where the verified notes are incinerated at a rate of up to 500 50-kilo sacks a day -- that's about 25 tons per day -- an information campaign that has distributed thousand of posters, millions of handbills, and a road show that has been to every region of the country; a major training and support program, which has trained 900 Iraqi bankers and provided counting machines, generators, ultraviolet lights and information packs to support the exchange locations.

The full briefing can be read at:
<http://www.defenselink.mil/transcripts/2003/tr20031015-0781.html>

In related news, according to JAMES ASHTON, reported The Scotsman (9/20/03) DE LA RUE told shareholders yesterday it would be in the money in the first half of the year after the world's biggest commercial printer of banknotes said it was shipping deliveries of the new Iraqi dinar ahead of schedule.

Underlying trading remains in line with earlier guidance but early deliveries to Iraq means the group expects to report interim figures "significantly ahead of expectations."

For security reasons, De La Rue does not usually disclose details of individual contracts, but its Iraq involvement was revealed in July by Paul Bremer, the US civil administrator in the country.

Finally, I think that our President put the introduction of the new Iraqi Dinars into perspective in his weekend radio address. President Bush hailed the introduction of the dinars, noting that West Germany did not have a new currency until three years after World War II.

"In Iraq, it has taken only six months," he said.

Editorial/opinion

Wow. The news reported by David Klinger above about the extent of the allied participation in the conversion is astonishing. Can the notes really have been printed (in part) in six different countries? Assuming that that is correct, was it all by De La Rue? Will we be able to identify the work of the various countries? Then topping the operation by having a battalion of Fijian soldiers deliver the notes. Truly amazing. Possibly Joe Boling should put his play writing talents to this operation!

You will recall that we compared this new issue of notes to the 1948 conversion in Germany. Then President Bush used our analysis, but I am not so sure about his statement. In 1948 a new currency unit was introduced (deutsche mark) AND all circulating reich marks were not convertible so there are distinct differences too.

Dear Editor,

My Gram question of the day is: why is the new US $20 note "series 2004" when it was issued in 2003 ?

David Klinger

Dear Gram,

The twenties are out around here I received my first on Monday evening and the found my bank had some on Tuesday, all here are Richmond and no errors yet. Personally I like them. Mike Abramson even has offered a two-digit repeater 47474747 Richmond as well.

Lyn Knight

Dear Gram,

Why is my name not on the Fest list? Well, whatever the reason, put me down.

Doug Bell

Dear Doug,

It boils down to sending in a reservation, which you did. Check the list. You are number 27. It is time for all of you Festers and potential Festers to send in your reservation.

Editor

Dear Gram,

Sorry, did not get your hint question [about getting some scans of the new dinar at least one of which is included in the bottom link-Ed] before I left the office for two days. Just got back in and read my Grams. Here is some info you might be able to use.

Financing War

By Warner Talso

A discussion of financing WWII would not be complete without mentioning the Lend Lease program (or Lease-Lend, in Great Britain). In September 1940, President Roosevelt negotiated a famous destroyer-for-bases agreement under which 50 obsolete "four-pipers" US WWI destroyers were exchanged for 99-year lease of several British bases in the Western Hemisphere. The justification was that these bases might one day become critical to US defenses. Thus, the concept of the Lend-Lease is born.

On 11th March 1941, Congress passed the Lend-Lease Act. The legislation gave President Franklin D. Roosevelt almost unlimited powers to sell, transfer, exchange, or lend food, supplies, machinery, tanks, aircraft and ammunition to any country to help it defend itself against the Axis powers in Europe. It was important that this could be done without sacrificing US neutrality at that time. A sum of $50 billion was appropriated by Congress for Lend-Lease. One of the aspects of the Lend Lease Act was SAM ships - Liberty ships lent to Britain. When the war had ended the Lend-Lease program had extended over $41 to 50 billion (depending on who does the accounting) in aid to 38 countries. Britain got the biggest share or roughly $30 billion and the Soviets about $11 billion. China got $1 billion.

Lend-Lease was the most visible sign of wartime cooperation between the United States and the Soviet Union. Lend-Lease materiel was welcomed by the Soviet Union, and President Roosevelt attached the highest priority to using it to keep the Soviet Union in the war against Germany. The program started 3 months after the German invasion of USSR in June 1941. About seventy percent of the aid reached the Soviet Union via the Persian Gulf through Iran; the remainder went across the Pacific to Vladivostok and across the North Atlantic to Murmansk. Lend- Lease to the Soviet Union officially ended in September 1945. Joseph Stalin never revealed to his own people the full contributions of Lend-Lease to their country's survival.

On Aug. 21, 1945, President Truman announced the end of lend-lease aid. Arrangements were made, notably with Great Britain and China, to continue shipments, on a cash or credit basis, of goods earmarked for them under lend-lease appropriations. Within 15 years after the termination of lend-lease, settlements were made with most of the countries that had received aid, although a settlement with the USSR was not reached until 1972. Less than $10 billion of that aid was ever repaid, making this appear more like the donation it really was. The British government repaid $650 million of their share.

=====

Paul Walters letter below is obviously of interest because of what Paul has to say. To me his letter had a bigger message. The Gram is an amazing medium. I do not know Paul (at least I do not think that I do, Paul, please tell me). I do not know when or how he started receiving the Gram. I do not think that he has ever written to the Gram before. Out of the blue we get this interesting letter/article from him! Sometimes here at HQ, it seems that there is no one out there or at least that no one is reading the Gram. Then a letter like Paul's comes in to prove the power of the Gram. Thank you Paul. Thanks to all of you.

Dear Gram,

I can make any kind of crossword puzzle needed using existing software.

I would like for everyone to send in suggestions for words to use and the clues for those words. I can then incorporate all of that into any number of puzzles.

Bill

Dear Gram,

Regarding my recent comments about the new $20FRN, I was reacting to the moment and the realization that my Credit Union goals are not the same as the public or Treasury goals.

You state that "the new $20 was not asking for any significant change in behavior as was the dollar coin". I would note that there is some change in attitude required because the American public has a very strong attachment to it's "greenbacks". Polls say we do not like or want colored notes. Although the public will have no choice, I suspect the Treasury is sensitive to adverse publicity - perhaps $30 million worth - and does not want people writing their congressional representative.

BTW, went to another bank yesterday where we keep a Society account and picked up my first new $20 notes. Also asked for $2 bills and Sac dollars. The teller made some comment to a co-worker about not keeping curiosities around because they are too much trouble. More of the same, but I am no longer surprised.

Warner

Dear Editor,

Let me give a report on the new US $20.00 notes from here in Spartanburg, S.C. Yesterday, October 15th, just six days after release of the new notes, I went on a quest to locate them in our area. I began my search at my local bank after making a bi-weekly deposit for our office.

This was the first time that I had inquired and to my disappointment, no new notes. One teller overheard my request, and said that she had one that came in with a deposit the day before. I immediately gave her a twenty from my deposit and kept the note to examine. I then began a hunt that lasted for about three hours as I knew that at least one bank in town must have them.

I did not realize how many banks there were in our area. I made a visit to eight banks and was about to give up when I stopped in at a branch of my bank on another side of town. Again, no new notes. The teller suggested that I visit a bank who orders their money directly from the feds, instead of a clearing house where it is next to impossible to get uncirculated notes.

The only two banks that she was aware of were Wachovia and Bank of America. I had already visited the main offices of these two banks, so I was resigning myself that I would have to wait several more days or weeks before the new notes reached our town. The teller then said that I might try a branch of Wachovia located near the shopping mall since they were a very busy bank that supplied alot of merchants. To my luck, no new notes.

Well, it was now almost noon, I spotted the ever glaring fast food place and stopped for a bite. I then decided to go back home and start the yard work. As I was driving home, I noticed a Bank of America. I said that they probably did not have any new notes but I would stop and make it an even ten banks that I visited.

To my surprise, the head teller said that she did have the new notes as she had just received $40,000.00 dollars worth from the feds. (This bank is also near a busy mall area that supplies many merchants). I asked very politely if I could have $500.00 worth. No problem, she then pulled a fresh pack of $2000.00 and started to count them with the automatic counter.

There was a problem with the machine, and she counted them by hand! Wonderful, since most of these notes are going to my collector friends in Europe, Canada, etc. Here is a little pearl of wisdom--- Never give-up on your quests for banknotes!!!!

Now, about the new notes themselves. I love them!!! At first glance, they didn't appear that much different. But, when you compare them to the 2001 series, there is quite a big difference. ( By the way, all of the banks I visited had info available for the public on the new notes. Of course, I picked up many brochures to share with collectors.) I personally like the fact that the portrait is not enclosed with the oval and concentric lines. Also, if you look closely at the background colors of peach and green, you can see a geometric style pattern. A very different look than just plain white paper as before.

I think this will be a big plus for the collecting fraternity. The $50.00's will be out in 2004 and the $100.00 will be out in 2005. The info that is being published by the feds is that these notes will have different background colors for each denomination. The notes also have two symbols of freedom. For the twenty, it is the eagle in blue and a smaller metallic green eagle above the series year. The feds say that each denomination will have different symbols of freedom.

I hope you collectors enjoy this change as much as I do. I have just mailed two new notes to a collector in Cologne, Germany. I will wager he will be the first or close to the first collector in Europe to get them. Now, I can't wait to see the new designs for the $50.00 and $100.00.

The notes that I received the notes with the (C3) federal reserve from Philadelphia. Interesting since in my area of the country we receive notes mostly from Richmond or Atlanta districts.

Happy Collecting,

Paul Walters
Landrum, S.C.

Dear Gram,

All the new $20s out here are block ED - A (Cleveland). Hmmm - ultraviolet lights as part of he Iraqi conversion operation. Destruction of "verified" notes. What are the UV lamps being used for?

Joe

Joe, Tell Us what You Really Think

By Joe Boling

I examined a new $20 at the Seattle Numismatic Society meeting Thursday night (several members had brought them in, responding to a contest announced by the society president). As I already reported, all were block ED-A.

What I confirmed (and had already discussed with BEP folks in Baltimore) is that there is no see-through registration element in the lithographed design, even though we now have the presses needed to print that kind of security feature. Maybe the later notes will finally take advantage of the technology that we have been so late in acquiring.

I also found that the lithographed underprint severely interferes with the watermark - the watermark is very hard to make out through all the underprint colors (face AND back have lithography over the watermark). Why did they not leave a window? For starters, applying lithography over a watermark is a chancy operation, because the surface of the paper is disrupted by the watermark and the litho blanket wants a smooth surface to print on. Second, what is the point of having a security feature (the watermark) that nobody can discern? Just who is coordinating these design changes? It does not seem to be anyone who actually knows something about note printing and security.

Dr. Paul D Walters of Landrum SC is an IBNS director.

New PC in My Townhouse

by The Master Sergeant Daniel

This is my first email out of Viet Nam that was not done in an Internet cafe. I now have a new Toshiba Satellite notebook in my townhouse that is better and faster than my IBM ThinkPad notebook, and it better be because it cost more than the IBM!

With the computer in the house, I can now go to my bank account and pay my bills online. This means I can stay overseas forever with direct deposit of my incoming monies. Isn't technology wonderful? Well, every once in awhile it is.

My wife is still here with me so we have been doing "her" things rather than mine, so I cannot yet report anything good to you guys, but I did see a sign yesterday that might bring back some memories for some of you. It had "Vietnam Tea Company," and then "Saigon Tea Company" as its sub-company here in Ho Chi Minh City. I wonder if they know what "Saigon Tea" means to some of us?

That is all for now from across the Big Pond. Hang in there for awhile longer and I will start reporting my finds over here.

=====

Well, I finally received a new $20 (thanks to Sam Feeback). I like it a lot—not that that matters much. I may be imagining things (probably am), but the itaglio printing seems sharper than we had been accustomed to. Now, I am most anxious for reports of stars. This reminds me of a cute little Fred story. When the current $100 came out, I was very interested in finding some stars. A few days before I departed for Memphis I found one. I took it along and was showing it off to anyone who would look. Of course at Memphis is was not such a novelty, but still many collectors had not yet seen a star.

During the course of the show, I stuck the note in a copy of Doug Murrays book on large size star notes (I guess I figured that a star hundred was a large size star note. Afterall, it was the largest denomination star available). Anyway, I was having fun with it. In a bit of a busy time at the table, I sold the Murray book for the full retail price of $25. I tried to remember who had bought it and Mike Crabb even made an announcement about the large size star note, but it did not show up. Someone got a real bonus! Without question, it was my fault. At least I got a story out of my stupidity.

Dear Gram,

Received a new $20 here in my store on 10/14. It is also Richmond FRB.

Don't know if this is a flaw, but the color shifting ink on the #20 in the lower right on the face doesn't seem to shift. It appears to be copper colored from all angles, no green.

Dear Gram;

Please put me down for MPCFest V in Ohio for March 5-7. In a single room, but might come down where a day early, like I did last year because of the weather. I will drive down there from northeastern Wisconsin.

Also I learned a lot last time and brought six notes in Hawaii and North African notes and they tried to sell them all as CCU. Three of them were a good AU. and send them back for replacements and two of them where sent back to me in Gem to keep my business.

Also I would like to thank nowhere it was about telling people on the Gram about Heritage internet auction. I won six MPC notes in that auction and two of them I been waiting two years or longer to buy.

thank you

Bob Olson

Another View of Lend Lease

By Mikhail M.Istomin

I would like to comment on the lend lease program for the USSR.

We practically did not know about lend lease up to 1989 -1990. This was not politically expedient to disclose such information. Due to glasnost we found out the enormous amount of the US material aid of which we did not suspect!

In Soviet time there were only known few episodes connected somehow to land lease. E.g. two soldiers are hungry at the front (in the trenches) - one of them says - let us open the second front - meaning simultaneously - a can with American meat and the fact that the second front was opened much later than expected.

And one more episode - as the ships with aid were escorted by the English ships moving to Murmasnk in the North on half way they were met by the Soviet protection ships. There were some women on the Soviet ships - if somebody fell thru this or that reason into the cold water - there was only one way of saving the life - the heat of woman's body.

There was also one known fact here - when the US government asked for the repayment of the land lease Stalin answered - we have paid with our blood.

New Iraqi Dinar

By David Klinger

Here is a summary of the primary vignettes used on the new Iraqi currency.

They are virtually the same as those used on the older "Swiss dinars," with the exception of the 25000 note. I suppose that is why De La Rue was able to produce & deliver so quickly.

50 Dinar Note

FACE

The grain silo at Basrah. Working at full capacity the facility can off-load and process 60,000 tonnes of grain per hour.

BACK

Date palms. Iraq used to be the world's largest producer and exporter of dates. Over 600 varieties are grown in-country.

250 Dinar Note

FACE

The astrolabe. One of the earliest scientific instruments - able to measure the time of day or night and altitude and latitude - conceived by the Greeks it was further developed by medieval Arab astronomers, who used it to help determine the time for fasting during the month of Ramadan.

BACK

The Spiral Minaret in Samarra, built 848-849 A.D. Samarra was then the Abbasid Empire's capital city.

1000 Dinar Note

FACE

A gold dinar coin, used in this region until superseded by more modern coins and notes.

BACK

Al-Mustansirya University, Baghdad. Built in the mid-thirteenth century it was the most prominent university in the Islamic world in the Middle Ages.

5000 Dinar Note
FACE
Gully Ali Beg and its 800m waterfall. The 10km gully passes between Mount Kork and Mount Nwathnin, some 60km away from Shaqlawa.
BACK
The second century desert fortress of Al-Ukhether, Hejira.

10,000 Dinar Note
FACE
Abu Ali Hasan Ibn al-Haitham born Basrah in 965 A.D. His most important work is held to be a seven volume series on optics. He is said to have 'invented' the camera obscura.
Also, an eminent physicist and mathematician he developed analytical geometry by establishing linkage between algebra and geometry.
BACK
Hadba Minaret, at the Great Nurid Mosque, Mosul, built 1172 A.D by Nurridin Zangi, the then Turkish ruler. The 59m-high minaret leans 8 feet off the perpendicular. That is how it earned its Arabic name Al-Hadba ('the humped').

25,000 Dinar Note
FACE
Kurdish farmer holding sheaf of wheat. Tractor in background.
BACK
King Hammurabi. Credited with writing the first code of law in human history he founded the First Dynasty of Babylon in 1700 BC, leading Babylonia into a period of great prosperity.
While this is considered a new design, the Hammurabi vignette was used previously on the 1971, 5 dinar note.
The new notes can be viewed at:
http://www.cpa-iraq.org/pressreleases/20031014\_currency.pdf

I noticed that the new Iraqi notes shown on:
http://www.cpa-iraq.org/pressreleases/20031014\_currency.pdf
are all specimen notes with serial numbers: 0000000 (in Arabic they look like seven dots), but no other specimen markings that I can make out. Sure would be nice to get a hold of one of those sets. Do you know of any Gramsters who have contacts in country?

I received a newspaper from Krause Publications today. It has a nice color photo of the new $20s on the front page, not to mention a David Harper editorial on the same subject. I was fully absorbed by the issue when I noticed that there was a story on the front page about 50 cent pieces (coins). I was offended and started mentally composing a protest letter to David Harper. Only then did I realize that this was not my Bank Note Reporter, but a Numismatic News. David, you are forgiven.

I did find a least a little military numismatics in the issue. A story reports that a Victoria Cross (earned by Lance Corp F. W. Holmes on August 26, 1914) was sold at auction in London for $133,900. Based on that I went to google where I thought that I would find a story about the sale. I did not but I did find many sites about the VC and one about Holmes:
<http://www.spartacus.schoolnet.co.uk/FWWholmes.htm>.

=====

Dear Editor,

Last week I was able to obtain from a bank officer who is a SPMC member the following star note here in Dallas - EE00111351*. He went through several thousand notes and found only two star notes.

Frank Clark

Dear Frank,

Thanks for the report. I am sure that you know that I am jealous. I am equally sure that if your friend only found two stars, that he wanted to keep on. Drat.

Editor

Dear Gram,

The other day, I was able to get one of the new twenties from my bank. A customer had brought it in. The most disconcerting part about them, in my opinion, are the tiny yellow 20s on the back of the notes. When the teller took the note from the cash drawer (before I had a chance to examine it up close), I said to myself "How in the world did a new note in San Diego get TS (tropical stain) on it?" From a distance, this is exactly what the little yellow 20s look like. For those of you who have not spent any time in SE Asia, TS affects all types of paper and puts little brown or yellow spots on it; stamp collectors are quite familiar with TS. (When I moved back to the U.S. after 5 years in Asia, all my books had TS. Thankfully, I left my currency collection in the U.S.).

Anyway, I just thought I would add my 2 cents.

Ken

Dear Gram,

In response to the following item in the Gram about performance of Joe Boling the Play at the Fest << I might be able to come up with another venue and the local thespians probably should be invited too. >>

Oh, goody - a trip to the USO show during the fest!

Joe

Covering the entire World of Military Numismatics
Series 004 - Number 1032 Tuesday October 21, 2003

Exhibiting Opportunities

By Joe Boling

OK, boys and girls, here are the ANA exhibit rule changes for 2004.

The rule against mentioning the value of exhibited material is rescinded.

Set-up on Friday (Portland)/Wednesday (Pittsburgh) starts at 7:00am and installation of all exhibits must be completed by 10:00am. This will allow the public to enter the exhibit area as soon as the convention opens.

Placement of all competitive exhibits in one large group at the spring show (Portland this year) has been eliminated. Classes, such as are used at the anniversary (summer) conventions, will be used.

However, the class titles and scopes are radically different from summer conventions. They are:

Class 1 - History and politics. Exhibits dealing with historical or political events or persons of a country or region.

Class 2 - Economics. Exhibits dealing with monetary and financial systems or economic events (such as panics and inflations).

Class 3 - Geography. Exhibits that describe natural or cultural assets, the distribution of populations, or exploration.

Class 4 - Religion. Exhibits dealing with systems of religion or religious symbols and artifacts.

Class 5 - The arts. Exhibits that explore any aspect of fine or applied arts.

Class 6 - Science. Exhibits dealing with theoretical or applied science, including the technology of manufacturing numismatic items.

So, an MPC exhibit could be tailored to any of these except maybe class 4. An existing exhibit that was not oriented specifically on one of these would have to pick the one that is closest. In any event, if more than one class is suitable for an exhibit, the exhibitor gets to say which one it goes into.

Questions? Email me (joeboling@aol.com) or the gram (so that everyone can see the reply).

Exhibiting provides many opportunities for collectors—and numismatics. First and foremost, exhibiting at major conventions and small shows can be and usually is fun. It provides opportunities to show off what you have and possibly find some things that you would like to have. It also provides research opportunities. It might force you to do some research that you had put off. It might get you a critique from a judge (or public viewer) that helps with the research. A viewer might offer you something that fits into your exhibit. It can even help you sell things if you are so inclined (or even if you are not). Over the Fourth of July weekend in 1976, Ted Uhl bought my exhibit of Allied military currency intact at the Clearwater, Florida show where I was interviewing Robert Branagan about barter units for occupied Germany. I may have told that story in more depth in the past (the Uhl story AND the Brannigan stories), and I will probably tell them again!

This radical new scheme is, well, radical. It will also be interesting. Joe and I have spent lots of hours talking about this type of approach. I may come back to the subject, but I do not have the energy to discuss it now. We can be sure that Joe will keep us informed about it.

Joe is absolutely correct that an MPC (or other military numismatics) exhibit could be made to fit many and multiple categories. It would be a hoot to have MPC exhibits win five of the six awards at an event!

Dear Editor, (just for your info) [Paul, if that meant not for publication, well, sorry-ed]

Thanks for the nice words about my article. I enjoy writing about the hunt for notes. I think collector experiences are the most valuable learning tools for others. I have met you before in Memphis. I have your book and last year, I think I purchased some food coupons from your table. I have been a MPC collector for years, even before all of this "fest stuff."

We have many mutual friends, Leo May, Tony Pisciotta, Joel and Neil Shafer, Austin and Amanda Sheheen, Hugh Shull, and the list goes on. At Memphis, you can find me hanging out with Phil Phipps when I am not covering the floor in search of notes. He is a close friend and a guy who will make you laugh. If you know him, don't hold it against me that I consider him a friend. Squirrels gather around him because he is such a nut!!

My main collecting interests are in British Commonwealth notes, African, Caribbean and Islamic countries. I try to make it to the FUN show each year as well as Memphis. I will make it a point to say hello the next time I see you. Yes, you will never know the impact the gram has on collectors. I check everyone for new info. By the time the same info is printed in the newspapers, mags, it is old news. Keep up the good work!!!!

Paul Walters

Dear Gram,

I think it is a monumental mistake to do away with the dollar bill and use the stupid coins. They are too damn heavy, trip the alarms going through security, cause dirt rings in your pants, etc etc and are an attempt to shove the damn things down our throats. Paper is great!!!!

They won't stop making cents which makes sense!!!!

Nick

Covering the entire World of Military Numismatics
Series 004 - Number 1033 Wednesday October 22, 2003

National Museum of the U.S. Army (NMUSA)

by The Master Sergeant Daniel

The October 1, 2003 "The Washington Post" has an item; "Army Museum Effort Launched at Belvoir." The item describes a ceremony on Fort Belvoir to activate that post as the host for the future NMUSA. A Project Development Center, to include staff, was also announced and the museum should be ready for the public in 2009. The planned site is on the northern end of the post and along U.S. Route 1. This will allow easy access to the museum without the public having to enter the main post and they are expecting one million visitors per year. The Army said the museum would not only inform but entertain and they are consulting with Universal Studios and Walt Disney Company for ideas. The Army's Vice Chief of Staff, General John M. Keane said "We intend to set a new standard for museum design."

Starting over a year ago, I have written to the Army's Center for Military History and the Army History Foundation (of which I am a member) volunteering myself and several Gramsters to assist, but I have unbelievably been ignored except for a brief email from someone at the Army History Foundation that I would be contacted. This has not happened, but I am not giving up. I do not want to go into political channels, but if I have to, I will contacts my Senators Allen and Warner, and Representative Davis, who probably has more influence on Northern Virginia matters.

My proposal to the museum is that they have an area devoted to numismatics and it will include a complete set of MPC, military tokens, other military numismatic pieces, an old finance office with teller cages, medals and decorations, crests, etc. I want to also see an APO with many samples of military mail, to include military postal orders and other financial instruments, besides regular postal items.

If I ever can get us in the door of this project, is there anyone interested in working on it? And if you have any ideas on how to get us in on the project, please contact me about them. If so, my email is Howard@SEAsianTreasury.com.

=====

=====

We strongly support Howard's proposal. Beside our obvious bias, military numismatic items deserve recognition in military museums on their own merit. The strongest argument is that these items were there and used by virtually every participant in the campaign, operation, occupation, or exercise. The items served silently like so many who used them. Furthermore, these items were of great interest to the participants as demonstrated by the relatively large quantities that were brought home as souvenirs—often the only souvenirs. Finally, these items are relatively unrecognized in other museums. Howard, if you can get something started, the Gram supports you, and I am sure that Gramsters will jump on board.

=====

Dear Mr. Editor,

What a FANTASTIC move by the ANA to change the exhibiting categories!

Let's hope that the regional and state numismatic organizations catch on to this.

Marcus Turner

Dear Esteemed Editor,

Someone was asking for Iraqi contacts. There are several Iraqi members of IBNS and one or more of them has been sending me emails to buy the notes. I have just deleted them because they are of no interest to me, but an IBNS member can go to the web site at www.ibns.it and log in and see the membership list with email addresses.

My wife is leaving me alone in Viet Nam in about 1 hour. I will be starting numismatics in the morning, and planning to be in Hanoi next week. I will be seeing one dealer there and several collectors, plus a UN worker friend from Australia and a couple of other folks if I can squeeze them in.

The Master Sergeant Daniel

Dear Gram:

I received my first new $20s today, EA-A block, from an Engraver's and Printers Credit Union in DC. These were the only two they had-you would think if any place would have them it would be there, but in my week and a half of persistent inquires, this is it. The supposedly color-shifting ink, like Larry said, appears to be anything but. It looks copper colored to me as well, and does not shift.

Matthew J. Friday

Dear Gram,

I cannot make it to Fest V, but please put me down for Fest VI.

Danny Bingham

Dear Gram,

NOW are they war bonds?? I have acquired several bonds from the Junkers (JU88 +) and Henschel (some planes, Tiger Tank) Companies issued during the war. The Henschel bond was issued just as the Tiger was going into production. Do I hear a cracking sound in the "They Issued No War Bonds" Dike?

WW

Dear Gram,

2004 scholarship fund Donations of cash and numismatic material will be gladly accepted. Generally the numismatic material is auctioned at MPCFest, but might be sold via ebay or other places. Your scholarship donations help the hobby by sending qualified individuals to the ANA summer seminar military money class. Except for unavoidable charges like ebay fees,
100% of your donation goes to scholarships.

Some CU (Crumpled Up) MPC Discovered!

by The Master Sergeant Daniel

My wife departed last night (local time) on ANA [not American Numismatic Association] for Tokyo and Dulles airports. This morning, I started out with a trip to a travel agency to buy my tickets for a trip to Hanoi. I am flying on Vietnam Airlines and not taking the train because I have been forced to take a very beautiful 22 year old niece with me as a translator/guide. Life is hell! Her name is Thao and she is a junior at the University of Ho Chi Minh City majoring in English and Tourism. She wants to become a stewardess so we shall see if she still wants the job after her first flight.

We will be flying to Hanoi on Wednesday morning and returning to HCMC on Saturday at about noon. I have been told there is some MPC in Hanoi so it should be relatively unsearched. We shall see.

Today, I went to the Van Dung Shop and started some serious searching through his stock. I ran across an MPC $20 and asked him if he had more. He did not want to say anything. I asked his saleslady what was the problem and she asked him in Vietnamese. He said it was in such ratty condition, he was embarrassed to show it to me. I said "Bring it out"!!

There are several hundred pieces or more in his stash and 90% of them are in good to lower conditions. But there might be a filler for some of you, and I am typing up an MS-Excel list with a few pieces everyday until everything is in it, and so it can be placed in the database, if deemed useful. I have attached today's input to this email and it is going to the MPCGram, Jim Aitken, Harold Kroll and Doug Bell. If any of you want to be added to the list so you will see it before it is published in the MPCGram, please email me at Howard@SEAsianTreasury.com and I will add you to it.

All of the MPC in the spreadsheet is owned by Dung and you will see "VDS" for Van Dung Shop on each line for now. At a later date, you will see other letters there for anything I find at other dealers. If you are interested in any of them, please email me and I will ask the owner for a price. I will bring whatever you buy back to the USA with me in late November and mail them out after my return.

That is all for this report from across the Big Pond in Southeast Asia.

I received my copy of The Planchette Report #2 today. Doug Bell is doing a very nice job with this I must say. He is combining interesting and useful information from a variety of sources. When Doug wanted to start this publication, I tried to talk him out of it! I told him that no one in their right mind would want to get involved with a periodical. The deadlines would be murder (1034 deadlines broken here at Gram central). Nonetheless, he insisted on going ahead and I am happy that he did. Commencing with this issue you can receive an intaglio MPC souvenir card and I must also say that this item is nice. Kevin Neidy is responsible for this enhancement. Altogether a good job, guys. Thanks. You can find information about subscribing to the Report at www.papermoneyworld.net or writing to Doug at doug@papermoneyworld.net.

=====

Dear Gram,

Note to Marcus Turner and others: ANA is not changing exhibit categories. The twenty-five classes in use for the big summer conventions are still in place (those awards are all endowed - changing them would be difficult). What I published in my column Tuesday was the new exhibit categories for the SPRING conventions, which heretofore had only one huge open class, with only one winner and a pair of runners-up. Now there will be six class winners, and also the BoS. Aside from these, before and now, is the National Coin Week exhibit award, which uses entirely different judging criteria.

I expect to send the rules for the 2004 conventions to ANA on Thursday. They will print and mail them shortly.

Joe

Dear Joe,

Thanks, but please spare us—do not send the rules to the Gram!

Editor

Dear Editor,

I do not want to beat a dead horse - but - I have more questions to pose to my Editor and to all Gramsters concerning the new Iraqi currency.

On one web site I read: "the new currency is US military occupation money." Maybe it is - Iraq does not yet have a new constitution, and the new currency was produced and issued under the sole authority of Paul Bremer, acting for the US government.

If the new dinar is not occupation currency, what is it? Liberation currency?
Or what?

What do you think?

David Klinger

Dear David,

As you can imagine, I have an opinion, but I would rather wait to read some of your opinions to air mine. I will use those as my justification so please tell us what you think.

Financing War

by Warner Talso

Two weeks ago we discussed Great Britain and briefly alluded to the British Empire and Commonwealth. In 1939 the Empire was vast beyond comprehension by today's standards. It included nearly 25 % of the inhabitable land of the Earth and 25 % of the world's population. The cliché that "the sun never sets on the British Empire" was literally true (SB, page 183). Now the Empire is gone. Most former colonies, territories, and dominions remain members of the Commonwealth, and loyal to the monarch. But there is no more Empire.

Most of the Empire fought for Great Britain and contributed treasure to the war. The most notable exception being Eire (Ireland), who remained neutral. It is a measure of the Irish animosity toward Britain for 800 years of perceived mistreatment that they would remain neutral and risk Nazi occupation rather than fight for the British.

So looking at some of the members of the British Empire and Commonwealth. I choose to start with Australia. Australia is a nation with the rare privilege of having never fought a war on its own soil (either as a result of invasion or civil war), but it does have a long and proud military history.

Australia's primary source of income was import duties up to and during WWI (have you noticed how many countries financing strategies for WWII were a continuation of those begun for WWI?). Australia, as a Commonwealth member, did not have the power to impose an income tax and the government had to look for other sources of revenue. During WWII, the main efforts for financing seems to have been loans. There were 17 loans floated between September 1939 and December 1945. The going interest rate was 3.5%.

Other forces were at work. First, Australia realized they did not have the population to protect their territory and adequately finance a war effort. Immigration policies were relaxed (and continued so through the 1970s). This was particularly effective right after WWII with so many refugees in Europe. Next, the government's financial strategy had been to protect the interests of farmers and graziers. Now in order to maintain levels of production during the war, the government worked to build up the nation's industries. This also required a larger population to provide members of the workforce and created the need for more trade partners.

Australia changed significantly as a result of WWII. This included changes in exports, export destinations, technology, immigration and expansion of the welfare state.

Carlson Chambliss spent the day here at headquarters. He is a very interesting fellow, but the visit started off badly. He arrived safely, but failed to meet the Fest coin challenge. He was full of the normal excuses with one additional twist. He tried to use a medal for Kutztown University that he was carrying. (He was not only carrying it, but it has his name on it because he is the sponsor of the program that created it.) You know what kind of sympathy he got from me! I pointed out to him and to all of you that the only way to meet the challenge is to carry your coin (medal) all of the time. You think that you can remember when you are likely to see a Fester, but you can never be sure. On the other hand, just this moment I realized that I was had. We went out to lunch and I treated!! Carlson owes me one.

Carlson recently retired from teaching astronomy at Kutztown University where he also majored in numismatic research and enterprises. I do not know if we uncovered anything, but we had lots of fun discussing MPC, related issues, and even other paper money.

Dear Gram,

Although there is not a direct numismatic connection, the Associated Press has reported the death of Madame Chiang Kai-shek. This would mark the passing of what I believe is the last of the leaders of WWII. Madame Chiang was the most important advisor to her husband during the war. CNN has an obituary for her at the following web address:
<http://www.cnn.com/2003/WORLD/asiapcf/east/10/24/obit.madame.chiang.ap/index.html>

The extent of her influence over her husband and the China-Burma-India Theatre can be found in Barbara Tuchman's book Stilwell and the American Experience in China.

Dear Gram,

I spent most of the morning sorting down all of Dung's MPC. They are mostly really ratty but I did run across somethings that could be graded as high as Very Fine. I sorted down all of the Series 641 (the vast majority of his stash) by denomination, then block and serial. All of Dollar denominated pieces are entered in the spreadsheet now and attached to this email to the MPCGram and those asking for it to be emailed to them. I graded only those that had some writing or numbering on them and will get around to grading the rest as I can get to them. But I want to add the Series 641 Cent denominations and the other stuff before I start grading. Remember that my grading is very strict and most people add a grade, and even two, to what I think is the grade. That is all for now. This old man needs to take a nap during the hottest part of the day so he can rummage around in the late afternoon and evening.

Master Sergeant Daniel

Dear Gram,

All of the notes that Sarg reported from Vietnam are now in the MPC database.

Hello Gramsters!

Just saw at 9:00 P.M. P.S.T. on "ebay" item #2198588653 uniface "B.E.P. approved MPC proofs" (((B.S>!!!~!)))these are the "Carlson Chambliss "copies of copies!!!" I warned that this would happen!! I suggested the word copy on BOTH! SIDES of the notes during the heated debet over the release of these! I knew there was room for fraud! FRED please advise "ebay" as to how they were made and not issued by the B.E.P. EVIDENCE: I grabbed my copy set and looked at the #541 25 cent replacement! It is the same number SN!!! They are copies of copies "leaving out the side with copy printed (back) No bids yet!! But also note printed as a limited setS!!!!!! a farce! Guy Araby..... 9:00 P.M. P.S.T Thurasday!

Marriage Consumated

As reported in the Gram, Bill McNease and an unnamed collector identified notes in their respective collections with both having the same serial number. This match was made by using the MPC data base at papermoneyworld.net.

Bill McNease reports that he has been successful in rescuing the Series 471 $1 from the other collector to mate with his own Series 681 $1. The two notes now cohabitate in the McNease collection.

In an exclusive Gram interview McNease reports that he patiently, but persistently pursued the 471 $1 and finally obtained it by making the former custodian an offer that he could not refuse.

McNease stated that he is now thinking about what it will take to find a third note with the same serial number!

He further reported that he will provide scans of the happy pair to the Gram.

Fest V Bourse Announced

By David Seelye, bourse chairman

MPCFest V will feature an innovative new bourse. Most of Friday will be a bourse (in the past we had a two hour bourse for the entire weekend). This new, expanded bourse will be open to the public. This means that collectors can attend even if they do not plan to attend the entire Fest. Likewise, dealers may participate in the bourse even if they are not attending the Fest. Finally, collectors who visit the bourse will not only not be charged to attend, but will be PAID $5 (Fest or Federal Reserve) to attending!!

The public bourse will be from Noon until 7PM on Friday 5 March 2004 will be the "formal" time for "dealers" to display their wares the more the merrier! The bourse fee will defray some of the costs associated with the event. If you have an interest in setting up, please contact me. The bourse is not an exclusive event. All those with an interest in setting up, please contact me.

The official "Bourse" is not seen by me as a method of limiting the buying/selling/trading that occurs during the MPCFest between attendees. But as a way of increasing the participation by "mainstream" paper money dealers (with MPC and related materials in their stock ) in a familiar format. Most dealers have a hard time understanding just what takes place, much less the concept of a good time and camaraderie, with commercialism as an afterthought.

Your comments are welcome!

Bourse chairman David E. Seelye

I am at my branch office in Dallas (aka Kinko's). I have been here for a few days while you have been Gramless. Sorry. This was a short business trip. The business was completed successfully, but as you know, I try to make a collecting adventure out of everything and this aspect of the trip was also successful (if a little chaotic and crazy). On Friday a new collector friend and I visited a local militaria shop where I was able to spend some money and even obtain a Territory of Hawaii chit that will probably find its way into World War II Remembered. He had some other chits too, but they are in the car so I will have to describe them later.

My new friend now has a challenge coin. I met with Frank Clark (seminar II veteran) a few hours later. He had his challenge coin, but upon inspection I found that it is still a beautiful unc. He has not been carrying it. Unsatisfactory, Frank.

Friday evening I spent with Doug Bell. Doug had his challenge coin (he did not the last time that I visited him in Oklahoma. We had a great time looking at notes and chatting. He dragged me to a local Mexican restaurant where I overindulged.

Saturday I met with Fester Bill McNease. Of course we also had a great time looking at notes and swapping stories. It was my great pleasure to see his new matched serial number pair.

Besides the obvious interest in them, they point out the importance of entering your notes in the MPC database. Certainly pairs belong together, but it is also an opportunity to make a dreg note into an outstanding treasure!

On Saturday night Bill (and his daughter (or was that his wife?)) dragged me out to what kind of restaurant? Mexican of course. Just as the night before I was obliged to be polite and over indulge. The two Mexican restaurants in two states in two days were remarkably different in décor but the food and company in both cases was exceptional. Thank you to my several hosts.

Dear Esteemed Editor,
I just received an email from Khaled Abdul Aziz Ali at coinlandbanknote@yahoo.com. I cannot guarantee his reliability or anything about him, but someone was asking for sources of the new Iraqi "occupation" notes and he has them;

NEW 50 DIN.2003 UNC 100 PCS = 15.00$USA
NEW 250 DIN.2003 UNC 100 PCS = 30.00$USA
NEW 1000 DIN.2003 UNC 100 PCS = 70.00$USA
NEW 5000 DIN.2003 UNC 25 PCS = 125.00$USA
NEW 10000 DIN.2003 UNC 10 PCS = 100.00$USA
NEW 25000 DIN.2003 UNC 5 PCS = 125.00$USA

His mailing address is P.O. Box 212382, Amman - 11121 Jordan. His Fax is 009-626-461-7099, and he has two other email addresses of allworldnotes@yahoo.co.uk and allbanknotes@maktoob.com.

With his quantity pricing, maybe several Gramsters can get together and buy them, or one Gramster dealer can acquire them and start selling them.

Good luck!
The Master Sergeant Daniel

Dear Gram,
Great information on the two MPC notes having the same serial numbers.
Quite an achievement!! However, I noticed there was no mention that the block numbers ALSO MATCHED!!! To me...that would make the notes even more rarer and more desirable!!
PK6

Howdy, y'all!
Regarding the matching-serial-number MPC's, does the serial numbering process also mean they would have matching position numbers, too (as these do)?

This inquiring mind wants to know!!

Jay in Garrison, TX

Dear Guys,
Thanks for writing. Sorry that I did not publish your letters when the first report was published. However, they work out nicely today with the report of the marriage of the two notes.
You have to think about this numbering thing. Yes, it can make your head hurt. If notes with the same serial number are of the same denomination (or group of denominations) they will also have the same position number. A fractional note and a high denomination (>$1) will not have the same position number with one (possibly some) exceptions. Think about this. I hope that someone will write in to explain the predictable exception.

Adventures of a Dirty Old Man

By The Master Sergeant Daniel

I am up at my usual 5AM this morning and working on emails. The best time to work on emails here in Ho Chi Minh City (Saigon) is after midnight and before 9AM. At other times, the speed can be incredibly slow, slow, slow. It is amazing that someday I would write that I was flying to Hanoi for a few days, but that is what I am doing this morning. I will be leaving the house about 9AM for Tan Son Nhat International Airport so I can be processed through on time for a 11:40AM flight on Vietnam Airlines. One of my nieces, Thao, who is a university junior majoring in English and Tourism, will be traveling with me. She will be my translator at the insistence of my inlaws here. And we are flying instead of taking the train for me to see the country because she wants to be a stewardess and this will be her first flying experience. She is dead stop beautiful at 22 and the dirty old man looks I get when I am with her are almost life threatening. So at times, she will walk a little behind me so not to attract too much attention on me, but she will still get some head turning stares from Vietnamese males of all ages! I have not shopped anywhere else for MPC except Dung's and it appears I have found what he has in his stock. But I do have more paper boxes to look through and more could be stuck between other paper. Has anyone found a serial or position yet that they need?

That is it for today. I have to get packing for my trip to Hanoi!!

=====

=====

On Monday I mentioned visiting a militaria shop and buying a few things. Since they are now on my desk, I will discuss some of them before they get covered. First there is a 5 cent chit (Globe Ticket Company), serial number 378666. It is in ticket format meaning that it was printed in a long roll and separated at the ends rather than along the long edges in classic chit style. However, it was good for 5 cents in trade so it certainly is a chit in my mind. The most interesting part is the back. Usually backs are blank so it is unusual just having the printing. The text on the back is key.

"THE BREAKERS"
NAVY RECREATION CENTER
HONOLULU, T.H.

Of course the TH means territory of Hawaii. Unfortunately that only dates the chit to before 1960. The Breakers was a recreation center during WWII (it might still be) so that is also a clue.

With a google search I found the following wonderful site

http://libweb.hawaii.edu/hwrd/HWRD\_html/HWRD45.html

This is one of the photos on the site showing navy men at the Breakers on VE Day!

http://libweb.hawaii.edu/hwrd/HWRD\_html/hwrd\_gifs/740f.gif

The chit is interesting and nice enough in its own right, but how can I confirm that it was issued during the war? I tried some other searches and without much luck. Possibly you can help?

MAIL CALL

Dear Gram,

AOL 9.0 working fine except for a couple of minor glitches. It now has a spam folder for obvious spam and also it includes key words you manage that spammers and others from the sewers of life use. Overall, a good improvement but it takes a bit to get used to it.

NS

Dear Gram,

I tried AOL 9.0. It literally crashed my computer. I immediately went back to 8.0. AOL was totally unsympathetic. I would change providers if it weren't such a pain.

Warner (via AOL instant messenger)

Dear Gramsters,

[Re definition of currency] The editor said "It certainly should not be used to contrast something with coins." Which is EXACTLY why I did not mention either coins or paper money - I said "the circulating monies." That is comprehensive, and if the "tokens" are also issues of the competent (I said legitimate) authority, then they are part of the circulating monies and are also currency. The tokens that I had in mind as being used at the sufferance of the "authority" are club tokens, club chits, sutler tokens, merchant scrip, and so forth - items that are NOT included in the emissions of the "authority."

Joe

Dear Esteemed Editor,

I have decided to call Dung's MPC the "Rat Hole MPC Hoard" because it has a BUNCH of ugly looking pieces in it! I finished entering all of his MPC pieces so far. I write "so far" because I found seven more during a search of six more large boxes of paper financial instruments. I have about twenty more to go at his shop, still have the rest of my sources in the city, and Hanoi is coming up in a few days. I was very happy to read that the input I previously sent in has been added to the database. It all belongs to Van Dung Shop (coded VDS in the spreadsheet) and unless I have graded a piece, consider it Poor until I update the list. This will probably be the last update for a few days, so, for those of you looking at it, enjoy yourselves. Tomorrow, I am going to the Sunday morning meeting of the stamp "club" here in Ho Chi Minh City. There is almost anything made of paper offered for sale or trade there, so I am hoping for more MPC and, of course, my precious stuff. You will read about it in a couple of more Grams. And then Sunday night, I am going to a wedding of one of Dung's cousins. This will be a GOOD time and everyone there who knows me will be trying to get me drunk. I am going to hide in a corner and watch the action! I hope. That is it for a couple of days. Enjoy the "Rat Hole MPC Hoard."

The Master Sergeant Daniel

Dear Sarg and Gramsters,

This may be a rerun of this letter. I got a little confused and I figured that it is better to duplicate than omit.

Editor

Covering the entire World of Military Numismatics
Series 004 - Number 1039 Thursday October 30, 2003

Back to the Basics: Determining Position Numbers

By Mark "Sparky" Watson

So, you just bought a Military Payment Certificate (MPC) note that does not look quite right and are wondering if it is counterfeit. One quick check to soothe some fears is verify that the position number corresponds to the serial number. Don't know how to do this? Have no fear and read on.

To determine if the position number agrees with the serial number of a MPC note, you have to know the printing process of the notes. All notes are printed as part of a sheet of the same denomination. There are 84 notes per sheet for the fractional denominations, 70 notes per sheet for $1 notes, and 50 notes per sheet for $5, $10, and $20 notes (56 notes per sheet for these denominations in Series 691 and 701). Furthermore, notes are printed in blocks of 8,000 sheets, or 1 unit. So, by multiplying the number of notes per sheet by the number of sheets in a unit, you can determine how many serial numbers are in each unit. For example, serial numbers 00000001 to 00560000 are in the first unit of $1 notes (70 notes / sheet x 8000 sheets / unit = 560,000 notes / unit). By continuously adding 560,000 to the serial number range, you can then determine what serial numbers are in unit 2, unit 3, etc. for $1 notes.

With this understanding of the printing method, two steps are needed to get the position number from a serial number. Below, I will describe each step and then follow up with two examples, one using a Series 521 25 cent note, serial number E08175349E, the other a Series 681 $5 note, serial number C01283532C.

First, you need to determine what serial number your note would be if it had been in the first unit regardless of what unit it actually was printed in. To do this, you take the serial number and divide it by the number of notes per unit (672,000 for fractionals; 560,000 for $1 notes; 400,000 for $5, $10, and $20 notes [448,000 if Series 691 or 701]). Unless you have the last note in the unit, you will have a decimal number after you do the division. Take the whole number (the number to the left of the decimal), multiply it by the number of notes per unit, and then subtract that number from the serial number. By doing this, you have now identified the specific unit and the respective serial number of your note.

Example:

E08175349E = 8,175,349
 $8,175,349 / 672,000 = 12.165...$
 $12 \times 672,000 = 8,064,000$
 $8,175,349 - 8,064,000 = 111,349$  note in the 13th

unit

C01283532C = 1,283,532
 $1,283,532 / 400,000 = 3.208...$
 $3 \times 400,000 = 1,200,000$
 $1,283,532 - 1,200,000 = 83,532$  note in the 4th

unit

For the second step, you need to know how serial numbers are assigned to the notes. Serial numbers are incremented downwards through a unit, not across on a sheet. So, serial number 2 is below serial number 1 in a unit. This means that position number 1 notes in the first unit would have serial numbers from 000000001 to 00008000, position number 2 notes are 00008001 to 00016000, etc. So, for this step, take the number you calculated above and divide it by 8,000. Again, most likely you will have decimal number. Just round it up to the next whole number, and you will know the position number of the note in question. If you came out with a whole number originally, no rounding is needed.

Example:

E08175349E is the 111,349 note in its block
111,349 / 8,000 = 13.918
13.918 rounded up is 14, so this note has position number 14

C01283532C is the 83,532 note in its block
83,532 / 8,000 = 10.441
10.441 rounded up is 11, so this note has position number 11

Of course, there is at least one known anomaly in the position numbers where this method doesn't work as written. Doug Bell discovered that the Series 541 25 cent notes in the 17th unit, i.e., starting with serial number F10752001F, do not follow this scheme. After some investigative work by Russ Walsh, Russ discovered that the formula works if the number of sheets in a unit is cut in half to 4,000.

In the exclusive Gram news article about the notes with matching serial numbers, there were several questions about whether or not the position numbers should also match.

Fred explained that when the notes are from the same group of denominations (fractional or high values) the position numbers would match. He also pointed out that when they are not from the same group of denominations, they should not match with one exception.

The exception is any note in the first unit of printing with a position number less than or equal to 50 can all have the same serial number and position number regardless of denomination. That is because all notes were printed in blocks of 8000 (with a few minor exceptions like the 541 25 cent notes). However, the sheet size varied depending on the denomination with the fractionals being printed 84 per sheet, $1 notes at 70 per sheet, and larger denominations printed to 50 per sheet (excluding the 691 and 701 notes that were printed to 56 per sheet). So, any note up to position number 50 in the first unit would match.

=====

Probably the most significant item that I found at the militaria shop was also the smallest. It is a 25 cent POW chit from Fort Sam Houston, Texas. It is not listed in WWII Remembered or Campbell. I assume that it is not in Donn, but I have not verified that. Possibly Larry has found one in his research. The chit is pink-red (SN 17887E) with standard text. It has been cancelled with a single punch. Of particular interest is a blue overstamp giving an expiration date. Specifically it (the stamp) says VOID after May 2? 194?. I think that the date is May 25, 1944, but I am not certain.

A google search for Fort Sam Houston POW came up with the following good link.

PS: (another piece of trivia: notice the left serial number on the 25000 is printed vertically - I never saw that before - have you?)

Dear David,

Thanks for the info, but the most important question concerns your safety out there in the fires. We hope and trust that you and yours are safe and that the fires will be controlled soon.

Vertical serial numbers are not real rare, but admittedly a bit unusual. I believe that they have even appeared on Fest notes (if not, they probably will).

FOR SALE

Dear Editor,

While rummaging through some boxes I had packed away, I came across a pack of Series 641 $.05 notes, with original wrapper though a little dirty and torn on the crease, SN 08902101J thru 08902200J, position number 21. The notes are still crisp but not Gem and using your catalog as a guide, I am asking $400.00 for the pack. Any questions can be directed to me at Hunchkie66@yahoo.com. Thanks and keep up the good work on the Gram.

Financing War

By Warner Talso

After discussing Australia, it is logical to mention New Zealand, a close geographical neighbor with a similar society, culture and history. Also a member of the British Empire and Commonwealth, the Second World War resulted in New Zealanders participating in nearly every theater of the war suffering arguably the highest casualty rate per capita of any participant.

New Zealand is unique in that the country entered the twentieth century as one of the wealthiest countries in the world in terms of income per capita. On the eve of World War I, per capita income was higher than in the UK and within 3 percent of the United States. It maintained its ranking through the Depression years and WWII. Beginning the 1960s, the GNP began to decline. Today, New Zealand economy is very tightly regulated, protected, and centralized.

At the advent of WWII the country was still economically dependent on Britain. Exports were almost entirely farm products (e.g., wool), with the UK providing almost the whole market and at the same time supplying the great majority of manufactured goods and capital. There had been an enormous increase in the national debt as a result of World War I, with Britain as the main creditor. New Zealand emerged from World War II with an expanding and successful agriculture-based economy and worldwide trade markets.

At the beginning of World War II, in 1939, New Zealand sent an army division to help with Britain's defense. The Division remained in Europe and the Near East for the entire war. When the Pacific war with Japan broke out in 1941, New Zealand depended on the U.S. for security and was a forward base for the U.S. Navy Pacific fleet.

The period 1939 to 1945 was a period of austerity in New Zealand. People remember "the war years were times of identity cards, ration books, and gas masks. Everything was rationed from food to clothing, furniture and petrol." One Women's Voluntary Service (WVS) activity was to collect money to be invested in National Savings War Bonds in order to fund the war effort.

New Zealand apparently financed the war effort almost solely through loans in the form of bonds. Some were called Liberty Loan Bonds. Schwan, in his brilliant article in the Bond and Back Note News article of November/December 1987, also cites National Savings Bonds. The article I quote above call them National Savings War Bonds. Posters urged people to buy "Bomber Bonds." Whatever the exact title, they were issued by the postmaster under the provisions of the National Savings Act of 1940.

A related item cited in SB is the national savings coupon. These were intended to be used as gifts. They were attached to a gift card with an explanation that the coupon is worth 5 shillings in a national savings investment account.

It is interesting that New Zealand called these instruments "bonds," when Australia, Canada, and other Commonwealth Nations used the term; "War Savings Certificates."

"Practical men...are usually the slaves of some defunct economist." John Maynard Keynes.

Editorial/opinion

=====

At the militaria shop I purchased two partial chit booklets. The one that I cannot find it quite crude, in francs and appears to be from World War I era. The one here is interesting. The cover text is: U.S. Army Officers' Club A. B. A. 10/-.

Of course the text A.B.A. is significant. Figure out what that means and we will understand much more about the booklet. The denomination of the booklet is ten shillings and the chits inside 1, 2, and 3 pence respectively clearly indicate that the chits were used in the UK. The chits have only the denomination and the letters XYZ. I have no idea about the significance of these letters.

The back cover has a nice imprint: Wilding & sons Ltd./Army and R. A. F. Printing Specialists/Castle Street Shrewsbury.

I look forward to your ideas.

Dear Gram,

Many thanks to Sparky. While it sounds very complicated, Sparky has simplified how to determine position numbers in an extremely simple formula. I haven't tried it out yet but I will when I get through spending the tax payer's money this week. (FAA training course) To follow up briefly on the matching pair. I have discussed with Fred the other known pairs. I believe that I have the only pair of the same denomination thus the same position number. The MPC Database works and I would have never been able to put together this pair without it. Now when I get the next note to make a triplet we will have a big party. The scan of the pair will be available next week for Gramsters to view.

Bill McNease

Dear Editor,

I just finished printed Gram 1039. It is the first Gram that I have printed in a very long time. I printed it so that I could study the great article by Sparky. I look forward to many more.

Flight Surgeon

Dear Editor,

Dare I disagree with you?

Start with "money" an all-encompassing term for a medium of exchange. It can apply to the stone money of Yap, POW notes, metal or plastic tokens, $ bills, gold coins - you name it.

Within the money there is a class called "currency" which almost by definition is or has been legal tender in the form of coins or notes. However the definition is very blurred for example are Steffen emergency notes currency as they were approved by the Norge Bank. Bafvs and MPC I would suggest were not currency because they had very limited circulation and were specifically designed and regulated not to be currency.

Tom W

Dear Tom,

Dare you disagree? I love it when Gramsters disagree with anything in the Gram, but most of all when they disagree with me!

Certainly MPC (and presumably BAFSV) is not legal tender. There is ample testimony before congress to establish this fact and there was some concern about this before MPC was issued. Whether or not the various issues were currency at the place of issue it less clear to me. Certainly, they did not circulate throughout a country, but they did circulate exclusively with a large number of people. If it must circulate widely to be currency, the US $2 FRN might not be currency, but it certainly is legal tender.

I was struggling to find examples of things that were/are currency but are not legal tender. Before the Civil War in the US, all paper money was not legal tender, but you still might argue that neither were these issues currency since most did not circulate widely.

I consulted the Hessler Comprehensive Catalog of US

Paper Money and confirmed Various well-known US paper money issues were not legal tender: demand notes, interest bearing Treasury notes and others. I could not confirm if national bank notes were legal tender. I believe (but am not sure and could not verify in either direction) that one cent coins are legal tender only up to one dollar.

A very nice discussion in the Cadillac Modern Encyclopedia discusses the matter. It specifically states that currency in the United States includes coins, paper money and checks. Now how about that for a new wrinkle.

Is this enough to start some more discussion?

Estate Sale Lottery

Would you pay $5 for a $10 (face) MPC? Most of us would gladly make such a purchase without knowing anything else.

A beginning MPC collector went to an estate sale recently. When faced with the above decision, he met the challenge and purchased the note. He did well, he got a Series 541 $10 certificate for his collection.

When he got home and studied the note a little more, he discovered that he had found a replacement. The MPC book listed only 5 replacements! Five reported for five bucks. Sounds like a good deal.

More study revealed that the replacement was from the first printing. The book listed no first printing replacements. The lucky collector called around inquiring about value and other aspects.

It turns out that a first printing has been discovered since the publication of the book, but still for five bucks, not a bad deal.

The collector sold the note for a few multiples of $5 to a replacement collector. He plans on attending a Fest where he will tell the story himself.

See the note at this link.

The last item that I bought at the militaria shop is a folded American Red Cross Guide to Calcutta for Servicemen. It is an 11x17 inch sheet folded in sixteenths. It is in two color (red and black) letterpress. I have found similar items for Shanghai, London and a few other places that had lots of American servicepersons during World War II. They are always interesting.

The one that I found for Shanghai includes information on businesses (theaters, dance halls etc) for which emergency notes were issued. This is a great connection to make.

I purchased this item without too much study. I noticed that there was no obvious way to date it to the war period, but I was confident that that was the period and that there would be a way. Often these items have information about foreign exchange which can be a good clue. This did not have the foreign exchange information, but it did give taxi and rickshaw prices in annas.

I have studied the guide several times, but not seriously. Tonight I found the key information that I wanted. It was not at all hard since it is the very last line of the guide. It simply states: Pre-censored for mailing. So, just as I thought this is certainly from the war period.

I have to admit that I do not know much about Americans in India during the war, but I hope to learn some more.

You can expect to see an illustration of my new guide in the second edition of Remembered.

Dear Gram,

Just to add to the discussion, all US ration devices used during WWII whether they were coupons & stamps; tokens; certificates or checks, all were considered "currency" by the Office of Price Administration (OPA).

Within the OPA, there was an Enforcement Division which included the Currency Protection Branch. They were charged with making available to certain select persons, specimens and data relating to the production and distribution of all genuine issues of Ration Currency by the Office of Price Administration.

I have attached a copy of the 1st vebatium sheet of the Ration Currency Manual as well as a scan of an official OPA Bulletin mentioning "New Way to Handle Your Ration Currency."

Happy collecting!

Don Kolkman

PS: If the files come zipped and you cannot open them, let me know and I'll send them seperately.

Greetings Fred:

I don't get to read the Gram on a daily basis and have just gotten caught up on 3 weeks worth. I have previously hinted at this, and will now be more specific and to the point. It would seem that it would be to every Gramsters benefit if there were two (2) Grams.

The first version would be the complete version with all of the "boilerplate" items that one has to scroll through to see if one has missed anything ie: new donations, show schedule etc.....This version would run ONCE a week, or every forthnite or so. The frequency would be determined by the addition of "new mentions"

The second version would be the daily version WITHOUT all the "boilerplate" items and just contain the "new stuff" ie: articles, editorial, letters etc.

I believe that this type of change would be welcomed by most readers as a great time saver, and take a bit of pressure off.

I realize that I have perhaps oversimplified things with my suggestion as I am not aware of the mechanics in getting the Gram out. Please give this thought or even invite others to put in their two cents scrip note worth.

Mr. Doric

Dear Gram,

Just want to make you aware of a new book that has appeared in France. It covers the issues of the Vichy Government during the war years of 1939-1945.

The author is M. Kleiber 54930 St. Firmin France (street address isn't available, but perhaps it is a small town and mail addressed to him will reach him)

Title translated is: Seven years in the life of the French. "Sept annees de la vie des Francais" He covers all the "notes," good fors and documents issued during that trying time. It would appear that he goes into great detail in the listings as he does so in 200 pages!!

I don't have a copy but naturally would welcome the chance to acquire same.

Perhaps you can put one of your sleuths into tracking a couple of copies down. Please advise!!

Best,

Richard

Dear Richard,

Great news. Thanks for the tip. I sure would like a copy of this book. Can anyone help?

Editor

Dear Gram,

I gave our club president and coin show organizer a challenge coin. Well, Monday evening we had our monthly meeting. And as I walked in, he had the audacity to challenge me!!!! Of course I rose to the occasion. I was extremely pleased that the gestrue had been appreciated and he had bought in to the culture. Who knows where this might lead.

FOR SALE

Dear Editor,

While rummaging through some boxes I had packed away, I came across a pack of Series 641 $.05 notes, with original wrapper though a little dirty and torn on the crease, SN 08902101J thru 08902200J, position number 21. The notes are still crisp but not Gem and using your catalog as a guide, I am asking $400.00 for the pack. Any questions can be directed to me at Hunchkie66@yahoo.com. Thanks and keep up the good work on the Gram.

Series 004 - Number 1042 Sunday November 2, 2003

Me Too

By Anonymous

I loved the story in yesterday's Gram about the collector finding the Series 472 $5 in a local estate sale. In the last week I had a similar, wonderful, experience. At my local show I first bought a more or less routine MPC replacement not attributed as such. It was a Series 472 5 center (first printing). Then I looked around some more and found another dealer with some MPC for sale. He had a nice uncirculated pair of 5 and 10 cent 471s. You know, the red ones. Did I mention that the notes were real nice unc? Anyway, as you can imagine by now one of them (the 10 cent) was a replacement. I asked the price and paid what was asked. Replacements have gotten terribly cheap or the fellow did not know replacements.

The note now belongs to a dealer in New York. I suspect that it is on its way to a discerning collector.

I sure learned that it pays to go to local shows.

Analysis of the Vietnam Foreign Trade Bank Certificates

Trung T. Nguyen

I have this note for a while but had never thought of its meanings, significances, or uses. Its appearance is almost non-noticeable. The front is printed NgÃ¢n HÃ ng Ngoá»i ThÆ°Æng Viá»t Nam (NgÃ¢n HÃ ng = bank, Ngoá»i ThÆ°Æng = foreign commercial or foreign trading, Viá»t Nam = how the country name really is). The denomination is mÆ°á»i Ä'á»ng (10 Ä'á»ng). There is a letter â€Bâ€? with unknown significance right after the word â€Ä'á»ng.â€? The back appears blank at first glance, but close examination shows a building, probably a picture of the foreign trade bank, and its logo.

At the present currency exchange rate (15,570 Ä'á»ng = $US1 reference: official exchange rate posted by the NhÃ¢n DÃ¢n Daily Newspaper, the official publication of the Vietnamese Communist Party on October 25, 2003), the certificate is not worth 1/10 of a US penny. Why would any foreign trade banks accept the seemingly worthless pieces of paper? Was the certificates actually used in foreign trade? In addition, the serial number only has seven digits. The maximum number of certificates of this type is 9,999,999. That would make all ten millions certificates (minus one) collectively worth US$6422.60 at the current exchange rate.

The amount above sure can buy a nice set of MPCs, but for foreign trading it is totally insignificant. Perhaps this was a hoax or a mistake of the government. It is interesting to know that the amount of US dollars paid for my certificate is worth 62,280 actual certificates. Well, we all paid hundreds of dollars for a 5 cent piece before.

Any thoughts from any one?

I am feeling more than a little guilty for not extending editorial concerns to Gramsters in California who may be battling the fires. We have heard from David Klinger that he is fine and not in jeopardy. I believe that with confidence I can offer the best hopes for any Gramsters caught in this terrible situation.

I do not want to diminish the main concern which is the life and well-being of Gramsters (and everyone else for that matter), but the fires also bring to mind the medium on which most of our attention is directed—paper. Our paper friends are certainly the most fragile thing possible (well not quite) when thinking about fire. Many notes and collections have been lost to fires large and small. Therefore it is not a bad idea to consider the fire situation regarding you collection.

I just thought of one brief story that I may have told before. The branch bank where I have my safe deposit boxes burned to the ground about three years ago. To the ground in about 12 minutes. It was amazing. Pictures of the blaze are in the lobby. You can go see them if you arrive early for the Fest (it is a two minute walk from Fest HQ). The vault, and therefore boxes, were 100% safe.

Dear Gram, [paraphrased]

I received three orders for the one pack of MPC that I had for sale. Thank you.

Paul

Dear Paul,

You are welcome, but more importantly, thank you for sending items for sale to the Gram. We have not been exploiting this feature sufficiently. Your response is proof not only that the Gram sells, but that people look every day in spite of the infrequency with which new items are posted. Readers, please help your Gram by sending items for sale. Remember, sales items cost the same as subscriptions.

UK WWII Chits and Other Things

By David Klinger

Regarding the club chit booklet with the cover text reading: US Army Officer's Club A.B.A. 10/- . It is logical to expect that the chits were used somewhere in the UK. I did an Internet search, and found many sites related to US forces stationed in the UK during WW II. One thing struck me was that the Brits really believed in the concept of dispersing their facilities. One site states that there were over 900 locations/bases used by the US in the UK. On one site related to the US 8th Army Air Force, was a bulletin board on which I asked what the A.B.A stood for. The answer came back that the base was an RAF installation at Abbots Bromley Airfield (A.B.A.) . During WW II The US 8th Army Air Corps was co-located there with the RAF, as was the case at many bases throughout the UK.

The small town of Abbots Bromley is located near Stafford (about 35 miles North of Birmingham). The airstrip was a small grass strip, often referred to by the Brits as a farmstrip. Nothing remains of the RAF base today, although there is still a grass airstrip there.

About 30 miles West of Stafford, near the Welsh border, is the somewhat larger town of Shrewsbury where the chits were printed by Wilding & Sons Ltd. In the course of this research, I found a list of the primary printers which were used by the British military during the WW II period. The abbreviations may be of some use to others, because often the printers name is only shown in abbreviated form on these club chits and other printed material.

The primary [WW II] British military printers:

|                |                                 |
|----------------|---------------------------------|
| A.P. & S. Ltd. | Alabaster, Pasmore & Sons Ltd.  |
| G.C. Ltd.      | Greycaine Ltd.                  |
| H.M.S.O.       | His Majesty's Stationery Office |
| H & S Ltd.     | Harrison & Sons Ltd.            |
| K.H.K.         | Keliner, Hudson & Kearns        |
| P.L.H. & Co.   | Percy Lund, Humphries & Co.     |
| W.C. & S Ltd.  | William Clowes & Sons Ltd.      |
| W.O.P.         | War Office Press                |
| W. & S. Ltd.   | Wilding & Sons Ltd.             |

The web page I found most useful is cited below. Included is an extensive list of the UK bases used by the US 8th and 9th Air Forces. It also includes links to history, pictures, videos, and even music of the WW II era - a very good web site.

Maybe Major Glenn Miller performed at A.B.A. and used the club chits you found? And, maybe it was in one of the five pubs in the small hamlet of Abbots Bromley where a local man came up with the saying about what's wrong with the Americans:

"they are overpaid, oversexed, and over here."

Editorial/opinion

=====

Sorry about the late and missing Grams. Judy and I made a short vacation trip about which I will tell you more tomorrow and probably the days to follow. I had expected to be able to publish the Gram while on the road, but internet access was more difficult than I had anticipated. Between Monday morning and Thursday morning, I was not able to reasonably get on line.

Thursday morning I got a little time at the Pigeon Forge, TN library (nice place but no MPC books). I had over 150 spams filling my boxes which contributed to the problem of publishing a Gram. I am sure that many of you sent messages that were bounced for lack of space. Please send them again!

Just today we visited the Tennessee aviation museum in (I think) Severeville, TN. It is a nice museum with more numismatic material than usually found in such places. One item about which I am skeptical is a Medal of Honor purported to be Jimmy Doolittle's. I was particularly interested to see the award certificate. I like the certificates (a lot). They are much more rare than the medals. I am hesitant to pass judgement without being able to examine the piece closely, but through the glass the certificate looks to be a copy at best or a fantasy at worst. I could not believe that neither the signature of the secretary of war or president were manuscript signatures. Instead they were both written in the same style as the balance of the certificate (meaning the part that is not printed). I know that I am sticking my neck out here. I do this in the hope that someone more knowledgeable than I on such things will comment (Colin, are you there?)

Dear Editor,

As I suggested a LONG time ago, if you want more people to use the for sale & wanted sections of the gram, you have to move them closer to the beginning of the gram. I (& I'm sure others) never bother reading past the column, editorial & letters.

Financing War

By Warner Talso

I seem to be stuck in the British Empire. While reading Fred's articles in the Bond and Banknote News, I ran across one on Newfoundland War Savings Certificates. Newfoundland??? Well, why not. A small entity with an important role in WWII. For the geographically challenged, Newfoundland is an island off the east coast of Quebec, Canada. It is about 42,000 square miles in size (similar size as the state of Tennessee) and in 1941 had a population of about 298,000 people. The primary occupations prior to the war were fishing and agriculture. At the time Newfoundland was British colony. She had chosen in 1867, like Prince Edward Island, not to join the other colonies and become a province of Canada. It was not a wealthy colony and enjoyed unprecedented prosperity during the war. It might be the only belligerent to make money off the war. Let me explain.

Protection of territory in the Western Hemisphere from European attack was of paramount concern to the U.S.A. The North Atlantic route was the shortest distance to North America. It was also the preferred route to ship troops and supplies to Europe. A precursor to the Lend Lease program, which we have discussed, was the "destroyers-for-bases agreement". Recall the U.S. gave Great Britain 40 obsolete destroyers for Atlantic bases on 2 September 1940. This was a lease, "freely and without consideration," of base sites in Newfoundland and Bermuda. A military Board selected the Argentia Peninsula and adjacent waters for aerial operations and to accommodate facilities for naval light forces. In addition, the Board recommended the neighboring community of Marquise as a site for basing and training some 16,000 Army troops (a total never reached). As a result the U.S. operated, some built from scratch, 7 Army Air Corps bases in Newfoundland, plus Naval facilities. These details are important because the jobs and money brought into the area were significant considering the population and effectively doubled the national income.

Wartime savings programs were similar to those of Canada - and even less is known about them. War Savings Certificates (WSC) were issued, similar to other British Commonwealth countries. WSCs were registered and could only be redeemed by the registered holder. They were issued through the Post Office and a limit of $600 worth could be purchased per year. (I am not sure I understand why this was so. Any ideas?). WSC were issued in amounts of $3, $6, $12, $30, and $60 and could be redeemed after six years. This provided an interest rate of about 3.1% when held to maturity, which was average for Allied savings programs. These may seem to be strange denominations, for example, Canada issued WSCs in amounts of 5, 10, 25, and 100 dollars. However, this is perfectly logical when one considers the system was based on the purchase price, not the redemption value. The purchase prices for the 3, 6, 12, 30, and 60 dollar WSCs was 5, 10, 25, and 50 dollars, respectively. The purchase price for a $3 WSC was less convenient - $2.50. This system required less time and effort at the point of sale.

The WSC system also included war savings stamps. There was one denomination, 10 cents. Stamps could be purchased and accumulated until the price of a WSC was reached and then exchanged. Stamps did not pay any interest.

War bonds may also have been issued, but there is no firm information on them.

Given the size of the colony, it's resources, and the wartime economy, it appears safe to say the primary purpose of this war savings program was to take money out of circulation and control inflation.

Editorial/opinion

Can Bears Read?

For many years (decades?), Judy has told me about the wonderful time that she had at the Great Smokey Mountains National Park with her family when she was a girl. So it was no surprise that she was excited when the opportunity arose for her (us) to visit the Smokies.

A friend of Judy's has a time-share. The friend offered Judy a short vacation in the Smokies if Judy (and of course I) would just sit in on a sales pitch from the time-share company. It was no contest Judy jumped.

We arrived at the official welcome center of the park late in the afternoon after a nice drive. It is a beautiful, climate-controlled place with park rangers and volunteers. Judy learned details on the many hiking trails in the park. I was inspired to purchase a book (As Far as the Eye Can See) by David Brill about his experience hiking the Appalachian Trail (AT). I previously read a great book about the trail (A Walk in the Woods by Bill Bryson).

I started reading Brill eagerly.

I have at least two nephews who want to do the AT and I have a newly reinforced fantasy of leading them for the 2100 miles. It would be great. Fantasies of the trail dominated my thoughts.

On morning one Judy had picked out a hiking trail that the guide in the beautiful, climate controlled welcome center had told her was both beautiful and easy. We had plenty of time before the four o'clock appointment with the time-share salesman to qualify for the free room and goodies.

After the free hotel continental breakfast, I suggested that Judy wait at the door while I get the car and deliver my water bottle to her for filling.

She refused on the (unstated) basis that she did not want me out of her sight for that long and beside it had been my idea so it could not have been good.

We found the trailhead without too much difficulty. There she announced that she needed to take her vitamins and swallowed the remaining liquids in the cups from the day before—water, coffee, cola—some of each.

The park map and trail sign stated 2.5 miles. I wondered—briefly—if that was line of sight or ground distance, one way or round trip. Then I decided that it did not make much difference since the guide in that climate-controlled center had said that it was an easy trail. The sign said moderate instead of easy, but I figured that it could not be too much for an old ranger (emphasis on ranger).

In the trunk of my car I have a backpack with shrink-wrapped copies of WWII Remembered and Comp Catalog of MPC (two copies, collectors editions). These are simply meant as weight to increase the workout. Of course the afore mentioned (and empty) water bottle is also attached to this back.

I considered whether or not I wanted to take the pack on this hike. I pondered only a few minutes before making my decision and we were off.

It was indeed an easy trail. Gentle and beautiful. The day was also gorgeous. The day before had been unseasonably hot—over 80 degrees. This day was predicted to be the same.

At the start I walked ahead of Judy, then walked back toward her until she was almost out of sight ahead of me, then I would set out to catch her. After all, I wanted to maximize the workout.

The trail did get more difficult, but I was not worried. Uphill and with bad footing. Finally, we got to the top of the mountain and crossed to the other side. Ah, that was the obvious deal. The falls would be on the other side of the ridge. A piece of cake.

In the saddle where we crossed over, a fellow coming the other way rather cheerfully said that we were half way. Cheerful, but he did not look good. Half way. Hm. Half way to the falls or half way finished for the day. Half way to the falls meant only a quarter finished.

From there we mostly went down hill. Way down. I gave up on extra legs for the work out.

The footing was terrible, but it was down hill. On and on we went. To my amazement, the fellow had been correct, it took as long to get to the falls from the saddle as it had to get to the saddle.

It is a nice waterfall. It would be well worth a five-minute walk from the car.

Now I was worried that we could not get back in time for our sales pitch. I did not want to buy a time-share, that is for sure, but neither did I want to pay for the hotel room and goodies that would be free for attending.

We turned for the return march. Can bears read? Would deer collect MPC if they had the reference books? Those books went into the bush. Unfortunately, it was only a fantasy. I tried to convince myself that I could lighten the load by dumping the books. The good and bad news is that I had made the correct decision and not taken them. If I had, they would have gone to the wildlife without one ecological regret. As it was I tried to pretend that I had just dumped them and was therefore that much lighter on my feet.

Remember that long down the mountain stretch from the saddle? Remember the empty water bottle? They did not go together well.

There was nothing to do but lean into the mountain and walk. In the first quarter of this journey I had wondered if I would get enough work out. In the third quarter I wondered what in the world I would do if some of the old fat guys on the trail had a heart attack. I looked around, there did not seem to be too many options if that happened. I hoped that if some unfortunate sole had that happen to him in my reach that he/she would have a water bottle. All this before getting to the final quarter.

On the return at the saddle, Judy pulled ahead. This was not a plan for more exercise. A couple and I sat in the saddle taking some joy in telling people crossing over on the way out that they were half way. The horrible truth to that statement meant that I still have half to go.

In that last quarter I watched carefully for those people who might have died along the way (in the hope of getting their water). Finally, I was spared some misery by fantasies of MPC replacements. $5 denominations were prominent in my mind. I had just found a Series 481 $5 replacement at a coin show and bought it for a big price, then I tried to trade it for a cup of water. No one would trade.

Remember the sign with the ambiguous information at the trailhead? The back of the sign said (I think) Thank You for Visiting Death Valley. I reflected on the old ranger and realized that at the outset I had put the emphasis on ranger instead of where it belonged on old.

I slumped in the car. The cups were exactly empty.

I raced out of the parking lot, but the one lane road (speed limit 10) was jammed with people going half the limit. The sign said 9 miles to the next population center. Impossible to pass. I was in agony.

I pulled three one-dollar bills from my pocket and gave them to Judy. I told her to keep them in her fist so that when we got to an appropriate place that she could jump from the car to get beverages in the least amount of time. I was aggravated when she stuffed the bills in her pocket, but did not say anything. I leaned forward against the wheel as if the few inches difference would get me there sooner. I did not care about the appointment. I did not care about the expense of the room. I did not care about the 481 $5.

Eventually we got to a sort of convince store in the jungle. I carefully assessed the situation and pulled up to the vending machines saving eight feet over pulling up in front of the doors. If beverages were 10 feet inside, I figured that I had saved 18 critical feet. I stopped the car, and instructed Judy to go get the drinks.

She felt in her pocket (instead of her fist) and said, I cannot find the money. Then she opened the car door and stood in the lot searching her pockets, looking on the floor of the car, even under the car.

I pulled out some more cash and pushed it into her hands and said Drinks. Get the drinks. She said, but I cannot find the money. I know that it is here. I yelled, woman, do you know what a Series 481 $5 replacement is worth?

She continued to dig. I opened my door and more or less fell into the lot and struggled to the machine. Amazingly, I did still have the appropriate currency (see gram definitions) and inserted that 481 $5.

I am sure that you have experienced the pause. After inserting cash and making a selection, there is a momentary pause when the cola gods will decide to vend or chat.

Clunk. I got my cola (diet). Slumped against the machine, I twisted the cap, and took a great gulp. I then promptly regurgitated it on myself.

The next gulp stayed down and within a minute I felt much better and wondered about that replacement.

When I got in the car, Judy said "Oh, why didn't you tell me that you were so thirsty?!"

Amazingly, we made it to the sales appointment. I could speak and think of things other than water, but was still not very excited about the prospects.

You probably will not believe the following twist which is the entire point and justification of this tale (true story).

The salesman chatted away. Eventually he asked something to which I replied that I had been in the army and he pulled out his challenge coin! I pulled out my (five) Fest coins to meet the challenge.

Hello Gramsters!

No "Gram" here since #1042!

Guy Araby!

Dear Gram,

I can barely remember MPC from when I was in the service, but never thought of collecting it, until I came across a reference of your catalog, while I was surfing the net.

I am basically a stamp collector, who collects WWI & WWII occupation stamps, war tax stamps etc. I also collect Notgeld.

And now I would also like to start collecting MPC, JIM, paper money, coins, and tokens dealing with the military.

But I am a 56 year old disabled veteran on a limited income, so I don't want to jump into an area were all the items are very expensive.

So would you mind giving me an idea which areas I might look-into?

Thanks much,
Lee "Little Lee" Smith

Dear Lee,

Welcome to the wonderful world of military numismatics. The Gram should fit right in on a limited budget.

Editor

Dear Editor,

The most logical definition of currency I could find in my library is by Richard G. Doty in his Encyclopedic Dictionary of Numismatics:

"CURRENCY - A general term embracing any and all money actually in curculation in a given time and place. It is linked to the word 'current,' referring to those monetary items still in use."

Military Notes in Lyn Knight Currency Auctions

Joel Shafer

We wanted to let all of the Gram recipients know that our new website is up and running. Lots can be viewed and bids made at www.lynnknight.com It is important to note that all past participants need to re-register to participate now. World bank notes and United States Military Payment Certificates will be sold on Thursday night, November 20. Auction time will soon be here!

We offer some outstanding MPC and other items of interest in this sale. MPC can be viewed by clicking under United States in Session One. Highlights include an appealing group of five notes from Series 461; gem Uncirculated fractional set of Series 651 with matching last two serial number digits for the 5; 25 Cents (#95) and 10; 50 Cents (#30); 20 Dollars Series 692 scarce second printing in Gem Uncirculated and attractive replacement of the same type; three high quality pieces from the Marvin Mericle collection; thirteen replacements encompassing twelve different types; pleasing miscellaneous lots found at the end of the listing; and more.

World War II highlights include a rare provisional 10 Lek from Albania, denoted as Rare in any grade in World War II Remembered; difficult Australian Camp Hay 6 Pence; two seldom seen Chinese safe conduct passes--Central Bank 5 Fen = 5 Cents and Farmers Bank 10 Cents; intact Fanning Island 1 Pound; French Equatorial Africa 1000 Francs with phoenix; a quality run from French Oceania; scarce British camp notes from Diyatalawa and Onchan; a strong group of India camp pieces; an array of underrated Italian circulating checks; complete set from occupied Jersey sold in several lots; rare emergency 1 Rupee from Mauritius; key beauties from New Caledonia; outstanding pieces from Palestine; a terrific lot from Tangier demonstrating the two different types, currently unlisted as such; and a deep selection of United States POW and civilian Internment Camp chits.

Japan must be mentioned separately as there are several outstanding items in separate lots. Highlights include a General Douglas MacArthur autograph on a 1942 50 Sen; rare Allied Military Currency Booklet of Specimen replacements from 10 Sen-100 Yen with "Top secret" stamped on face and back of booklet; more quality Allied Military Currency; one of the best groups of Foreign Trade Payment Certificates ever offered; and an extraordinary complete type set of four denominations from Wijktoko Tjeding, the internment camp located in Djakarta.

Please contact me at grbaypa@aol.com if you have any questions. We look forward to seeing you in Saint Louis.

Editorial/opinion

=====

When I wrote the story on my misadventures in the Smoky Mountains, I figured that I would get lots of letters about it. I figured that some might say that they rolled on the floor in laughter and that some others would complain that it was inappropriate material for the Gram. What I got was a huge yawn. Not a single response. I guess that means that no one found it funny, but no one wanted to criticize me.

=====

Dear Esteemed Editor,

I just returned from trip to Hanoi. I would like to quote my beautiful niece who accompanied me and it sums up both of our views of the downtown area. She said "Is not this city very boring?" We arrived late on Wednesday afternoon and my local dealer had to walk us to six hotels before we found one just acceptable to us. Then we ate at his place. His wife cooked us Tofu soup, spring rolls, french fries and beef patties. I ate everything except the beef and shared a beer with my friend. After dinner, we walked around Sword Lake (1.5 km!) and then retired to our hotel rooms.

On Thursday morning, we ate breakfast in the hotel restaurant and then went to my friend's store, Tuyet Lan Souvenir Shop (TLS in my Excel database of MPC) His is Mai Quang Thieu, and this is in family, middle and personal name order. I went through his entire stock and bought a lot for myself but also for some of you guys. I will get into that stuff and more about my Hanoi visit at another time.

That afternoon, I entered all of his MPC into the Excel database. I graded the pieces with some writing on them, but I can say that most of his MPC is around Very Fine, not counting the staple holes, which I will do when I update it in a couple of days, when he comes down to my house tomorrow and stays until Nov 10.

So, please tell me (at Howard@SEAsianTreasury.com) what you want from his list before he departs because he says he cannot mail from Hanoi and you will have to wait until his next trip down to here in HCMC (Saigon).

Good luck and good hunting!
The Master Sergeant Daniel

Hello Gramsters!

Well, the news is the "red unc. replacement" is now in my collection! And I answered my own question I asked the gram three (or 4) days ago, which hasn't been released yet...
Why and how are there 3 different #541 25 cent listings (printings) in the "Planchette Report".
ANSWER: An article by Russ Walsh, Gram #583 breaks down this anomaly. Well I also discovered more "frame variations" long and short lengths and widths, in the same printing. I showed an examples of 3rd printing #481 10 cents with about 2 full millimeters difference in length at the West Fest Long Beach Calif, last June!. Again only examined on gem CU unprocessed notes. Keven Neidy also has located some. Just use a millimeter gauge and measure a group of the same issues. Like #541 $1, #591 50 cents also are given to 2 types, there are more. There out there waiting to be discovered and listed eventually. I also will pay a premium for YOUR unc. examples, some are rare!! See HCL list if you have some!

Guy Araby!

With great sadness I must report that Stanley A. Furman, world paper money dealer, has passed away at his home in Belgium. I believe he was 67 years old. I just talked to his wife Khely and she said he died at home very peaceably. He was my friend for well over 30 years and I will cherish fond memories of the many trips we took together and all the time we spent together. He will be missed very much. If anyone would like to send their condolences the address is: Khely Furman, PB41, 8400 Oostende 2, Belgium. The funeral is set for next Wednesday in Belgium.

Mixed Commentary

By Joe Boling

In re Mr. Doric's suggestion that the expanded version of the gram be published only weekly or fortnightly - hear, hear! I have been saying this for years. I only retain the full version about once a month. I check the PX daily - if it has changed, it gets saved. If not, it gets chucked with everything else starting at the calendar of events.

Did everyone check the serial/position number congruence on the 541 $10 replacement reported in gram 1041? Note the confluence of 41s - it is a series 541, position 41, reported in gram 1041. And the position number is correct for the serial; the note is from the 6038th sheet in the unit of 8000 sheets (only one unit of replacements was prepared in the first printing of 400,000 replacements). I immediately checked the numbers because even though the SN font looks good, the note overall looks a bit flaky (probably due to scanner resolution and color cast).

Nobody has mentioned the superb article in the most recent IBNS Journal by Kazuya Fujita, titled "Japanese Military Currency (1937-1945): Quantities Printed and Issued." This 24-page (!) article is the most comprehensive study of the subject in any language. He has synthesized information from multiple Japanese- and English-language sources, and covers all emissions of military yen, JIM, the Southern Development Bank, and the puppet banks of the Southern Resources Area (banks in Burma and the Philippines).

One interesting proposition is that the letter S on the Netherlands East Indies notes stands for Sunda, as in the Sunda Islands. This "S" is conventionally seen as representing Sumatra, with some researchers holding out for Shonan, but Fujita's proposal makes the most sense.

He also explains why Burmese JIM started with denominations of 1/4 rupee, half rupee, etc, and no smaller fractions, while later in the period of use, small fractional notes of 1, 5, and 10 cents appeared. This coincided with the conversion of the Burmese currency into a decimal system (from the prior Indian pice/annas/rupees system, which is not decimal).

The article deserves careful attention from all collectors of these series. If you collect military monies beyond MPC, but do not belong to the IBNS, it is time that you joined (and ask for this issue - volume 42 #2 - as part of your welcome packet). Dues are $20 annually, and you get four 64-page journals and three less-massive newsletters, plus an annual auction that contains thousands of lots (over 5000 lots in this year's sale, which closed on 31 October). Write Milan Alusic, General Secretary, at PO Box 1642, Racine WI 53401, or email him at milana@wi.net. Dues may be paid by credit card (VISA/MC/AMEX - gram readers are the first to know that IBNS now can accept American Express cards).

Editorial/opinion

It is indeed sad to have to report the death of Stan Furman. It is appropriate to publish the announcement today since he was a veteran. I am not sure of the arm or even era of service, but he did mention his veteran status to me.

For years Stan and I have talked about getting together to play chess. We talked often about the game, but never played. I am particularly sad about some disagreements that Stan and I had. The good that can come of sad news like this is for those of us remaining to be inspired to improve our lives.

Veterans Day is always special for the Gram. Obviously, it honors veterans of all types and eras which we respect. Also obviously, the many issues that we study and collect were inextricably intertwined with military operations around the world. Because of the above, the Gram volume number (called series) advances on Veterans Day each year instead of on January first. Both the series designation and Veterans Day observations were suggestions of Brad Peacock.

Dear Gram,

What are the tolerances for the size of MPC notes? If you decide to put this in the gram, please put it in anonymously.

Scissors

Dear Scissors,

Tolerance for whom? Many wives do not have much tolerance for MPC at all. Tolerance compared to the production specifications would be of greatest importance at the production facility. For collectors small size deviations are generally not recognized as varieties for the very reason implied by your question. These deviations get even harder to evaluate in worn (circulated) notes. Then, even if a note is not within tolerance, it does not make much difference if all of the notes are that way. I expect lots of commentary on this so please stand by.

Editor

Dear Editor,

I greatly enjoyed (and laughed a bunch) your observations about hiking in the Smokies. I forwarded your story to others who might need to face Monday morning with a good laugh.

Michele

Dear Gram,

Enjoyed your survival tale along the AT as well as the drink machine that gobbled up your 481 $5 replacement.

Forty years ago, my old scoutmaster (think drill sgt) decided that we youngsters needed to hike the AT, his goal was all of it. We had the chance to visit parts of rural NY and NJ for a weekend jaunt. One summer, 1964, we drove down south all the way to Key West, FL.

We enjoyed the Smokies too, a modest amount of hiking and a lot of driving. His scoutmastership was convinced to challenge the highway somewhere around Cherokee, NC in his '61 Buick LeSabre wagon. We raced to 105 mph and then decided to come back to our senses. We did lose a tire on the trip but luckily not at 105. I do recall collecting some attractive conch shells in the shallow water in the Florida Keys. Seems that the inner conch critters don't like to leave their shell homes on a voluntary basis. But, if you remove the creatures from the sea and don't boil out the conch, the smell will soon become odiferous, especially in the back of the Buick wagon...throw in 100 degrees and 110 percent humidity.

Your survival tip is to "Beware of Jupiter, FL." We were obligated to RON at a campground there on the guise of considering a timeshare purchase. The next AM, I counted over 100 bites on my left arm alone. We were snookered into staying there for the evening, but were able to cancel reservations for the next night. Seems that the local residents had an affinity for 0+ and I was a designated donor. The campground really was disguised as a mosquito breeding ground.

The great part about southern Florida, as Ski, Leo and Mike will know, is that the trails are pretty level. You just have to take caution to avoid the coral chunks found in the woods south of Coral Gables...they can be the start of a nasty infection. But as the old drill sgt would say, "Great training opportunity!"

Anyone for Vermont? Regards,

webfootbob

Dear Michele and Web,

You guys (Gramsters) sure keep me off guard. Is it a coordinated plan or does it just happen? I write my travelogue and get nothing in response. As soon as I complain I get responses. Now I do not know if I really had a 481 $5 replacement.

Editor

Dear Esteemed Editor,

I had a couple of hours in my schedule today so I walked down Le Loi to number 80. The Ngoc Phuong Shop is there. Mrs Phuong is an old friend and one of the good guys here in HCMC. I found only a few items for myself but when I asked her for MPC, she pulled out some stuff that is almost as bad as the VDS bunch. Her batch is coded with NPS and her mailing address is 80 Le Loi, District 1, Ho Chi Minh, Viet Nam. Her email is TranThiKimPhuong@hcm.vnn.vn. She has limited English but I am sure she can find someone to read your email to her if you keep it simple. While I am here until the 17th (16th your time), I can pick the piece(s) up for you, but after I leave, you can email her and ask her to take it to Van Dung Shop at 15 Le Loi and Dung will pay her for it and set it aside for me or someone else coming through town to bring back to the USA for you.

A lot of mail is getting through from Viet Nam, but I would not yet trust it. I cannot remember if I wrote about four other MPCs listed just about VDS. They are owned by Tran The Gia and coded as TTG. His address is 59A Ly Chinh Thang, District 3, Ho Chi Minh, Viet Nam. He is not yet on my good guys list and thus no deal set up with him so you will have to contact me before I depart to buy one or more of his pieces. I am quite surprised to have found about 600 MPCs so far but the grades are all low, so this is the bad stuff coming out of the woodwork and the dealers buying it because they sold all of the good stuff. The list is attached to this email as MPCinVN.xls (an MS-Excel spreadsheet database) and Doug Bell will be putting the additional pieces into the database. Please do not hold off until the last minute for your selections. As my time gets short, I have fewer and fewer opportunities to go and fetch the pieces for you, if at all. That is it for now.

Dear Gram,

I would like to correct something Warner Talso stated in his most recent column. Newfoundland is both the name of the island and the province.

The province includes Newfoundland Island and Labrador which is part of mainland Canada, located northeast of Quebec, and is much bigger than the island.. If I am not mistaken, Newfoundland both today and prior to joining Canada always included both Newfoundland Island and Labrador.

So, during WW II, Newfoundland included both parts and not just the island as Warner stated.

Ken Berger

Dear Gram,

Not to be picky regarding Warner's excellent series on WW II financing, but, IIRC, the USA traded 50 'overage & obsolete' destroyers to the UK for bases not only in Newfoundland and Bermuda but other places in the Caribbean area.

Matched Pairs

By Doug Bell

Another matching serial number pair has been found via the MPC database. This matching pair is a 481 50 cent and a 681 $20 note SN # 02851966. There have been two such discoveries made in the past month. I suspect that several more will be forthcoming as more notes are input.

There are now 17871 notes in the database (radar number), as of 1300 central time 11/11/03. There have been more than 2000 notes input in the past week. It is very important to remember that when inputting your notes that the database will notify you of matches. This matchup can make a common note a very special one. Keep in mind that there will be more matches and some day even a triplicate. I think Bill McNease was the first one to point this out and he was the first to make a match from the database. Although there are several matches that were married before the database, one being Fred's discovery in the replacement database he maintains. Also there was/is a matching pair of a replacement and regular issue same denomination and series.

There is now a new emerging anomaly starting to appear with matches being made "What is the most desirable match?"

With the known matches:

1. 2 replacements 661 20$ and 50 cents SNs 00768992 illustrated on page 55 of the MPC book.
2. 1 replacement and 1 regular issue same notes (Down South collection)
<http://www.papermoneyworld.net/grams/images/matchds.jpg>
3. A 651 5$ and a 651 50 cent same series not together yet just identified the 50 cent notes whereabouts is AWOL A01426884A
4. 471 and 681 Bill McNease
<http://www.papermoneyworld.net/grams/images/mcneasepar>

I feel that these 4 are of the upper echelon of matches. 3 more to mention:

5. 541 10 cent and a 692 50 cent Harold Kroll
<http://www.papermoneyworld.net/grams/images/MATCH%20PAR.jpg>

6. 481 50 cent and 681 20 $

And last but not least:

7. An unreported triple match has been reported but not confirmed.

Bill McNease has volunteered to head up a committee to input notes into the database.

Envisioned are volunteers to input notes on a continuing basis in a coordinated effort. A person would input only his favorite series and possibly rotate this on a weekly or monthly cycle. Users would be given a separate account where their id can be kept separate from their personal id.

If there is any one who would like to volunteer for this assignment the rewards could be great--ie finding a matched note.

Your input is greatly appreciated.

Editorial/opinion

=====

I found an interesting little group of papers today. I am not sure when I purchased this group, but I believe that it was at a militaria show in the last year.

The papers are from a World War II veteran who served overseas, but I cannot determine where he served based upon these paeprs.

The first document (probably the one that attracted me to the group) is a 1942 Soldier’s Individual Pay Record, pay book. I always watch for these. This one is well worn and does not contain particularly interesting information. However, it did include a nice chit.

The chit is for one ice cream. The issuing authority is A. A. C., presumably Army Air Corps. Another chit was in the group, but not in the pay book. It is a locally fabricated chit. The text is: SPECAIL DINNER PASS / FOR FIRST MEAL ONLY OF ALL / PERSONNEL RETURNING FROM OVERSEAS. The meal was to be served in mess hall number 3 and he initials GAC authenticate the chit. Unfortunately, I cannot find any way to estimate the location where the chit was issued.

Of particular interest is a duplicate of Form 29-6 which is an authorization of class B allotment for purchase of war savings bonds. This is interesting enough in itself. However, this one is particularly nice because the buyer of the bond had signed up for Plan 12. The printed form allowed for plans 1 through 11. Plan 12 elections had to be typed on the form. Plan 12 called for a monthly bond purchase of $7.50—a $10 bond. Yes, this fellow had signed up for the $10, soldier, bond. Unfortunately, none of the bonds were included in the group. Almost certainly they were redeemed decades ago.

Two blank forms were included. You will recognize the form number of these two forms—1040. Yes, these are tax forms for 1943 and 1944. The interesting part is the name of the form/tax. The forms were for filing “individual and victory tax.”

Tomorrow I will tell you about the most significant item in the group.

Dear Gram,

In response to "Scissors," any note that shows even a hint of having been trimmed, when examined under the right magnification by an experienced observer, will be detected as a doctored note. Don't do it.

Joe

Dear Gram,

It is Time We As A Community, Pitch In To COMPLETE The ANA Museum Collection.

It Would Be, Fantastic, If We Could Put Together A "COMPLETE" Set For The ANA. I Would Ask That All Collectors

Take A Very Hard Look At The Notes That Are Absent From The ANA List That Runs Daily In The Gram.....!!!

Make A Donation.....Make It A VERY Nice Note....!!

There Has Only Been 9 Donators Since This Began...11 Months Ago...

Take A Look .....A Very Hard Look.....

Where Else Will Notes Be Treasured In Your Name.....???

Together We Can Assemble A Great Showing At The ANA.

Lets "Finish The Collection"

Contact, Chris Connell At The ANA.

I For One.....Think It Is A Bit

Embarrassing.....That It Is Not Completed

Yet.....!!!!.

Respect,

Ed Beaman

Dear Editor,

There is another MPC collection that has been completed. A Texas Lady just purchased her last note for the Basic 90 note set. The King Series 541 $5.00. In a conversation today, she said it is her Christmas present to herself for this year. (Last Year she "got" a Series 651 fractional set.

David

Dear David,

Is she a Gramster? She should come to the Fest! She would be the first woman to attend the Fest with a complete basic MPC set.

Editor

Friends,

Some who received my email last week thought that my night with Theatre Under the Influence was last Wednesday. I don't know what left that impression, but it is Friday the 14th running through into Saturday the 15th. My time up with "What is it Like to be Joe Boling?" is still 12:25am Saturday (a Friday late-night slot). I will also be doing Kipling in the Saturday 5:00am hour, and maybe even talking about counterfeit foreign paper money in the 6:00am hour. Come once and stay until breakfast! See the press release below for the names of other exciting performers who will be participating.

Italian AMC error

By David Seelye

At the Dallas 2003 Lyn Knight auction of segment of R.A. Medina's extensive MPC-AMC and related collection, I outbid a prominent Ohioan collector sitting in my row for a lot of two Series 1943A 10 Lira notes in UNC.

The most interesting note was what I would call an eye bender. The black printing was prominently doubled, lending an eye-catching appeal to me. Errors have always called my name when the opportunity to acquire the notes has occurred. And this was no exception. While I buy and sell MPC and AMC, I do collect/hoard notes of interest. I collect MFC especially serial #1's, errors, and replacements, specimen traveler's checks, UNESCO coupons, Series 641 $10.00 replacement by position number. This note fell into the realm of, "I do not want to keep it, but I wanted to have it pass through my hands." You know, I don't have it now, but I did at one time syndrome.

The serial number A43553450A has no great significance other than to say in the middle of the run an error slipped past the inspectors. Now AMC errors are in general quite scarce. How many sheets of this error made it past is open to interpretation. I have been "doing" MPC/AMC and related for about 4 years. I look at a lot of notes here and in Europe. Fred Schwan, Richard Medina, Leo May just to name some of the more prominent dealer/collectors have been looking for this type of error for many, many years. With just one note showing up, the conclusion is that just one sheet slipped past. I felt very comfortable in knowing I had a unique note. One note from a sheet that has survived.

That in and of itself is interesting, but for me to take time to write a MPCGram article you know there must be more. And there is. Yesterday I received in the mail from Great Britain a Italy AMC series 1943A 10 Lira A51540612A in EF. The note looks like an UNC from the face, but you can see two folds where it was saved for a while in someone's wallet. It is another similar black print shift error! By comparison the RAM piece has the light image shifted to the left. The new piece has the light image shifted to the right. It is an interesting pair for sure!

Editorial/opinion

To my surprise a small piece of paper in the group under discussion turned out to be very significant. It is about one fifth of a standard sheet of typing paper. The text was duplicated onto the sheet as many times as it would fit. Then the sheet was cut making 5-6 messages. Here is the complete text of the sheet.

FINANCE OFFICE, U. S. ARMY
FORT BENJAMIN HARRISON, INDIANA

This is to acknowledge receipt of your claim for unused leave, and to advise you that payment should be forthcoming within the next 60 days; however, it is anticipated that the initial supply of bonds will not be received by this office until 1 October 1946.

It is requested that no further communication regarding your claim be sent to this office, except to correct your claim or to report a change of address.

Your discharge papers are returned herewith, as they have served the needs of this office. Your check and/or bond will be mailed under separate cover at a later date.

Finance officer, U.S. Army

Wow, what a cool item. This notice was sent to our veteran in response to his claim for payment for unused leave. It points out that bonds (Armed Forces Leave Bonds) were be issued for this purpose. AFLBs were first reported in WWII Remembered. They have been discussed in the Gram from time to time since then, but this is the first document from the period about the bonds that I have heard of except for the bonds themselves.

Dear Editor,

The recently found Series 471 10 Cent is now residing in it's new home in the collection of a prominent West Coast MPC collector ( who should take the time to drive to the MPCFest V next year). After several express mail shipping's, many email messages and telephone calls, a trade was agreed to. A key part of the trade was the inclusion of several LOGIX notes as well as MFC from the recent WestFest.

David

Dear David,

I am sorry that I delayed your letter. The proud new owner of the note has already reported the acquisition. Congratulations on obtaining some MFC!

Series 005 - Number 1050 Tuesday November 18, 2003

More new reports from Beijing and (of course)
Commentary

By Joe Boling

In response to the call in a recent gram to complete the ANA MPC collection, with a recommendation that potential donors contact Chris Connell, Chris is no longer with ANA. Neither is Larry Lee (recent media reports say that he will be there through the opening of the Mexican exhibit this week, but he departed some ten days ago). At the moment, there is no collections manager. Tiffanie Bueschel has been moved out of the museum to a supervisory position over museum, library, education (and I believe conventions). Before simply shipping notes, make sure someone at ANA is prepared to receive them. At the moment I have no clue who that would be.

More new reports from Beijing. A release 16 exists for the Manshu Chochiku saiken series. This will be SB166. Among the government guaranteed bonds, the North China Development bond has now been observed in 1944 releases denominated in FRB currency. This circumstance, together with the fact that the vignette is a Peking building, lead me to the conclusion that this issue should have been listed in the FRB pages. There is presently no space in the numbering system for such a move; Fred and I will have to discuss how this will be handled. The FRB-denominated issue has been given SB numbers 771-800. So far releases #1 and #3 have been seen, in 100 yuan denominations; the release #1 piece says that four denominations were produced (100, 500, 1000, 10000 yuan). That omits the 5000 step of the earlier (yen-denominated) bonds.

Another new find is a 1945-dated Inner Mongolian note with a conversion clause specifying Central Bank of Manchou notes. This is reported to have been issued explicitly to redeem the CBM notes and remove them from circulation. If so, it is a strange way to make a currency reform. In light of the fact that CBM notes are referenced, I suppose this will also have to find its way into the next edition of SB. This will entail a new country entry: Inner Mongolia in the Allied section.

Sorry about missing last weekend. I was out of town. I had every intention of getting the Gram out, but just could not solve all of the electronic problems. I have to get wireless. I have my eyes on a solution. Will of course let you know.

On a different electronic problem. This morning I blocked as spam an email address based primarily on the subject of the email. When I realized that I should not have blocked it, I went into the manager for blocked addresses. There I found that I had blocked (so far) 60 addresses. I was surprised to find that there is a limit (on Yahoo) of 100 addresses but I was more surprised to find that I had blocked several regular and important correspondents. Joe Boling and others had been blocked! Of course I was surprised and promptly fixed my earlier mistakes. Possibly some missing Grams have been caused by a similar problem. You might want to check your blocked list.

MAIL CALL

Dear Editor,

Is there any formal club or society for collectors of MPC, etc.?

Thanks again, Little Lee

Dear Lee,

Club? Yes. Formal? No. The fraternity of MPC (and similar items) collectors has been one of the strongest for many years. We have M2C2 (Military Money Collectors Club), the Gram, the Fest and the Summer Seminar, not to mention mini Fests, an auction and other events. However, I hesitate to say that we have an organization (implying that we are organized) or that we have a club implying officers, dues and the like. We are different collectors so we go at it differently (like the Apple Corporation slogan). No dues, no rules.

Editor

Dear Esteemed Editor,

I just finished packing my suitcases but I still have to pack my carry-on bags with my numismatic purchases. One of the suitcases is going to be overweight and I will have to pay a charge again to get it on the plane. I will do that in the morning because it is midnight, I am the only one up in my house, and I am tired.

The trip was pretty good concerning MPC. I think about 600 pieces were added to the database and about a dozen were purchased by Gramsters. My "military" purchases were limited and mostly in the RVN and NVA areas. But I did pick up two parts of a worn plate to print the Banque de l'Indochine 20 piastres note of WWII!!!!!! I will send the pieces to Joe Boling for evaluation once I am back in the USA. They were a surprise offer to me this morning at the stamp "club" meeting at the old Coffee Museum.

Tomorrow morning I am headed for Singapore. I have confirmed four of six appointments but I would like to get the last two confirmed too so the trip will be very productive. My next email will be from Singapore, if I find anything or anyone of interest. That is all for now.

The Master Sergeant Daniel
Howard A. Daniel III

Dear Gram,

Do you know how many of the 1986 ANA souvenir cards, with real MPC attached, were produced? or how many different types were made?

There's only a short paragraph on page 165 of the 4th ed

David

Financing War

By Warner Talso

I want to talk more about Newfoundland, both to get the facts straight and introduce some new, and hopefully interesting, information. First, Ken's comments about Newfoundland Island and Labrador making up the province of Newfoundland is correct. If I had paid more attention to the bases the U.S. Army Air Corps was establishing I would have realized that at least one of the, Goose Bay, was in Labrador. It is interesting that my research material apparently assumed I knew this and never made specific reference to the mainland portion of the province. (I could also mention that I was misled by SB, page 241, but I won't go into that.) To further complicate the discussion the Labrador Peninsula is divided between Quebec and Newfoundland provinces. So one must be careful with terms. Recall I mention the size of Newfoundland as being about 42,000 square miles. That turns out to be the island. The Labrador portion of the province has an area of about 110,000 square miles. Much larger. The province is almost twice the size of Great Britain.

Regarding Jay's comment correcting the number of obsolete destroyers given to Great Britain in the destroyers for bases agreement, 50 is correct and I would have known this if I read my own column last month. This fine newsletter has very high standards and strives for total accuracy and completeness. Our Esteemed Editor has advised me that these errors have cost me my Christmas bonus and a 10% reduction in pay for 6 months. I dare not tell you how much money that represents because you would all be clamoring for jobs on the editorial staff.

Recall Newfoundland issued War Savings Certificates (WSC). A limit of $600 worth could be purchased per year. I asked the question of why a limit - and am now prepared to offer two suggestions. First, taxes. WSC profits were not taxable. This made them attractive, but also diminished the tax base. There needed to be a balance between taking money out of circulation and reducing the tax base. The second factor is the anticipated redemption schedule. If too many enthusiastically patriotic people all bought large numbers of bonds at the same time, the government would be faced with an unacceptable redemption amount in six years. This was a means of spreading the investment process over time.

Few know about the three internment camps in Newfoundland. Between 1939 and 1945 Newfoundland was involved in several different types of internment operations. The original plan was to ship 1,000 civilian internees, mostly German aliens determined to be security risks, from the U.K. to camps to be built in Newfoundland. Some civilians were eventually shipped elsewhere (Australia, I believe) and at least one camp was modified for POW use. When the U.S. entered the war, it appears that these camps were demolished, as the U.S. considered them to be too much of a security risk. This whole episode is murky and hard to reference. There is no indication that Camp chits were designed and used.

The Talso column above was submitted last week for use on Friday. I had best intentions of getting the Gram out from the road, but just did not get it done (as mentioned and discussed (at little) yesterday). Anyway, it is included today in a shameless attempt to get Warner to produce another column for Friday!

There has been very little mention of the Lyn Knight auction at St. Louis on Thursday. There is plenty in there to comment on. Will someone please step up to the plate and do that?

Dear Editor,

Could you give me more info on the Fest? What the fee covers, where it is held (motel, hotel, campus, etc.)? And being a complete newbie would attending be jumping in, over my head, or could I really benefit from attending?

Are there dealers at the fest, or is it basically trading? If there are dealers, do they do like most coin dealer who come to the larger show and only bring the big ticket items and forget about us people with limited funds? Sorry for bending your ears, Little Lee

Dear Lee,

Yes, yes, no. Beyond that I hope that some Festers will respond. Your questions are so wonderful that some Gramsters will not believe that I did not make it up. I will answer briefly, but do hope that some Gramsters will comment.

First, you should read the reports in the MPC book on the Fest. That will give you an idea of the, well, er, mayhem.

The fee includes room (double occupancy with single occupancy option available, roommates will be assigned/negotiated), meals from Friday evening through Sunday noon, and participation in all events.
The most amazing part is that you will get paid to attend. Yes, you will get paid in military Fest certificates for attending. The MFC is negotiable inside and outside the Fest. Fest organizers do not divulge such things in the past, but since Fest II, every participant has received sterling and bronze Fest coins and other goodies. Many Festers also bring souvenirs for the other Festers. Many Festers believe that they make money by attending! It is an amazing thing.

Yes dealers attend. There is also an auction and plenty of swapping. You should be able to exceed your budget without problem (most of us do).

We sure hope to see you at Fest V and X too!

Editor

Dear Editor,

I have received several reports that indicate the changing the subject line for Gram delivery is helping get Grams through the either. Bravo.

We will continue to fight the problem from a technical point of view if you will continue to do it from an editorial perspective.

POW Chits Break Out

The Lyn Knight auction of world paper money on Thursday night featured MPC and a wide variety of military items. Most of the items sold nicely. The highlight was the large group of POW chits issued in the United States during World War II.

These chits have been popular with a small, but serious group of collectors for a long time. The group is expanding and rapidly. Every lot sold and many of them after spirited bidding.

From Reuters News:

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20 – The director of Iraq's currency exchange program said on Thursday he expected the new dinar to appreciate in value as oil exports increase.

Retired U.S. Army Brig. Gen. Hugh Tant also said that the five-week-old currency exchange program was already 67 percent complete.

Iraqis have from Oct. 15 to Jan. 15 to turn in four trillion dinars worth of Saddam-era bills and older notes popularly known as Swiss dinars in exchange for six new denominations ranging from 50-dinar notes to 25,000-dinar bills.

'We have completed almost five weeks and 67 percent of the expected amount to be converted has already been accomplished,' Tant wrote on 'Ask the White House,' an online forum.

Tant said the Central Bank of Iraq was conducting a 'foreign exchange auction process' about three times per week to help ensure the new currency is stable. 'At the moment, due to Iraqi exchange controls, the currency is not exchanged outside Iraq. This is likely to change in the future as Iraq continues to be welcomed back into the international financial community,' Tant said.

But he added: 'As oil exports increase and more funds are invested in Iraqi goods and services from outside the country, it is expected that the new Iraqi dinar will appreciate in value over the long-term.' Currently, the Iraqi dinar is worth about 1,955 to the U.S. dollar.

St. Louis—My trip to the Pcds St Louis show has been marked by mistakes. The first was not allowing enough time to study the lots. Actually, the first mistake was not studying the catalog at home instead relying on the chance to see the notes themselves. There was so much of interest to us that the ten hours that I spent just were not enough.

Areas that required special study were Italian circulating checks. The Knight listings were the largest (and best cataloged) that I have ever seen. The catalog is worth having just for that section. World War II local emergency notes for Belgium, Germany, France, Norway and probably some others demanded attention. On some of those lots I decided that the best way to save time and energy was to commit to buying them which I did.

Not bringing my laptop with the WWII and MPC book manuscripts was also a serious mistake. On the assumption that I was staying for only a short time, I decided not to bring it. There were many times during lot viewing that I wanted to check alterations that I have made to the manuscripts.

On the other hand the Hyatt where the show is has a wonderful internet café available 24 hours so I have not overflowed my inboxes and have been able to get the Grams out.

Only a moment ago, Gram contributor Jim Downey stopped by this table to chat and wants to show me some things so I am going to stop now. Expect more Pcda reports tomorrow.

Editor,

It seems our esteemed editor has gotten very forgetful in particular to where matters of the heart are concerned. On Thursday night during the middle on the first session of the LKCA banknote sale I was rudely interrupted on the podium by a call on my cellphone and being the mercenary fellow that I am I actually answered because we cannot miss a bid. This call was not a bid (to my dismay) but instead a call from Judy S. Inquiring if anyone had seen her husband who was MIA since early WED and she was fearful of his whereabouts. the auction was stopped in it is tracks and a call from the dias of course located Fred S. cowering in back of David Seelye. We all had a good laugh and once Judy was satisfied with his safety the auction resumed. I thought Fred had a cell phone of his own!

Respectfully reported.

Editor,

I never got an answer to this question (re: Gram 1028). Is the answer obvious to others, but not to me? Why is the new US $20 note "series 2004" when it was issued in 2003 ?

David Klinger

I believe Fred and I were there when the three step rule was accepted as official Fest lore. It did and does exists.....Gary (Who has Fours) Hicks

Dear Steamed (and Pressed) Editor:

I feel compelled to respond to Little Lee's letter in Gram 1051. His comment about "being a complete newbie would attending be jumping in, over my head, or could I really benefit from attending" went right to my heart. That was me three years ago. The FEST is not centered on "dealers," "big ticket items," or "big money." It is centered on having fun and learning. This is not a show like you have seen before.

Of course there are dealers, but they are collectors also. And many individuals buying, selling and trading to meet their collecting goals. But most of all, the FEST is people interacting, sharing, networking, learning, and having fun. I have never met anyone at FEST who was not willing to spend time with me explaining some facet of collecting. There will be people interested in collecting all kinds of military numismatia - MPC, course, but also war bonds, POW camp chits, foreign emissions, etc. I could go on. You will have an opportunity to discuss these interests and help decide what direction you want to go.

Our illustrious GRAM Editor and FEST organizer (First Sergeant) will distribute a training schedule before the event. This will also give you an idea of what to expect. You may participate as much or as little as you like. Some people are active and gregarious and some are quiet and introspective. Ages range from teenagers to collectors in their 70s. The mix works and is exciting because we all have a common passion.

In short, this is the perfect place for a newbie to jump start an interest in the hobby.

I hope to see you there,

Warner

Series 005 - Number 1052 Thursday November 19, 2003

More Pairs Found

Doug Bell, webmster

At least six more MPC pairs with the same serial number have been identified on and with the aid of the MPC data base! Yes, SIX! We are also approaching 20,000 notes, yes TWENTY THOUSAND MPC recorded by serial number by the collecting community. This is a great achievement. The new pairs seem to be the direct result of one dealer entering a large number of notes. Many notes remain in many collections to be entered. Every entry is important and might lead to another match and ultimately to a triple pairing.

Some enhancements are being developed both in software and in procedures by project coordinators Bill McNease and Robert Drew. If you have ideas, please sent them to me or to the Gram, but in any event, enter your notes!

What three step rule?

Bill McNease

I had an opportunity to visit a noted (in his mind anyway) MPC collector recently. Upon entering his home/office I noted that he was wearing a T-shirt and gym shorts (with no pockets). I knew that I had scored on a free drink via the challenge coin. Or so I thought. He (the challengee) said, "I invoke the three step rule," took three steps and picked up his challenge coin. He did have a challenge coin on his key ring on his desk that was hidden under a stack of books and papers but he didn't know it. It appeared that he had his own "Black Hole of Port Clinton" or at least a close replica of it. I did not get my drink even though I did question the "Three Step Rule."

My question is this--who dreamed up this "Three Step Rule" anyway? Since the rules for the challenge coin are that there are no rules, this is notice to all readers of the Gram that if you do not physically have your coin on your person, you owe me a drink. If you are not a Gram reader then you owe me a drink for not being a Gram reader.

You will be challenged. Beware.

Editorial/opinion
=====

I just wrote a story for the IBNS journal where I talked about the success of the MPC database for research and fun. I believe that this is just the start of good things from computer and Internet technology. They will continue to change our hobby. It is certainly hard to predict the extent or even direction of the changes, but I believe that they will be for the good.

=====

Dear Editor,

This is an open letter to all Gramsters especially the "Young Ones," I have always favored and recommended that you should retire as early as you can. DO NOT wait for the BIG MONEY or that BIG PROMOTION. Once you get where you CAN retire DO IT. Every year you wait you are giving that year to SOMEONE else. We all have made lists of 'things I'll do after I retire'. For most of us who have lead a 'normal' life let me warn you that as you get older things like physical ability and health have a habit of going down hill at an alarming pace. Get out of the rat race NOW or as soon as you can unless your dream is sitting in your wheel chair and counting your Big Money or showing off your Big Promotion Titles

Best of luck & may your God go with you

Paymaster

Dear PM,

I assume that you mean young Gramsters like me! Oh well. I also assume that you mean take/make the time for your collecting passion. With that assumption your letter qualifies for the Gram! (not to mention that I agree with you).

Editor

Dear Editor,

Thanks for your Gram #1048. The first one since #1025. I hope they will keep coming, I have been missing them for a month. When I wrote to Doug he asked me to contact hotmail, because he thought it was a hotmail error, that I did not get any Grams. I did so, but Hotmail has never responded, so I do not know more than I did.

I have a question for you relating to the MPC database. Do you only want notes entered, that is owned by a known person, or do you also accept entry of notes seen at shows and/or in auction rooms? So far I have not entered any notes, but I have a list of MPCs, that I have seen at these places.

Flemming

Dear Flemming,

The timing on your question is perfect. You do not need to be the owner of a MPC to enter it in the database. If you have seen it, please enter it. Indeed, a few collectors who dislike (hate) computers have list of the data to friends who have entered it.

It is helpful to enter something in the remarks about the location. This is especially true if the note was seen in a public place like an auction or even a dealer's inventory.

I sure hope that your grams are getting through now. You might want to try yet another free service like Yahoo. We will send you multiple copies at no extra charge.

Twenty Thousand!

By Doug Bell, webmaster

The MPCdatabase has received its 20,000th report. Yes, we now have over 20,000 notes. The record note was a Series 641 $1 (serial number J01887938J, position 26). The note was entered by David Seelye.

The next threshold will be 25,000 notes, but every single note is important. Please enter your notes; your collection, your inventory, your duplicates. You can also enter notes that are not yours. If you see notes at a show, on line, or in another collection, YOU can (should) enter them in the database.

Editorial/opinion

I mentioned earlier that the Lyn Knight St. Louis catalog was a research bonanza. A highlight in this regard is the two 50 franco notes for Tanger (lot 1318). In WWII Remembered these are listed under neutral Spain.

The remarkable thing about the two notes in the auction is that while they appear nearly identical, they are different in the most fundamental way. The major legends are different, apparently indicating different issuing authorities. The two legends are Junta de Servicios Municipales and Servicios Municipales.

In Remembered we listed three dates of the Junta... issue in three denominations. The Knight catalog quite rightly pointed out the two different legends. The opportunity to study these two notes was one of my biggest motivations for going to the auction. The Servicios... Issue in the auction was dated August 1941. That is one of the dates that we listed in Remembered for the other issue. Now I am afraid that I might have seen these notes in the past (or even owned them), but did not notice the different legend! Furthermore, I now notice that Pick lists these about the same way that we did in Remembered (incorrectly by ignoring the Servicios... issue), but adds a 2 franco denomination.

We need to unscramble this issue. What to do? The only thing that I can do is ask you to report any and all of these notes that you might have. Please pay special attention to the legend and the date but also the series and serial numbers. Ultimately, we probably would like to see copies of all available pieces. If you have one/some, please contact me at fred@papermoneyworld.net.

=====

Dear Gram,

Came across a small hoard of Indian postal savings certificates. Most were 1970 and on issues, but did have a couple of WWII Remembered items.

I'm sure you probably have gotten some of these updates, but if not... p. 224, 3rd paragraph: Have a 1000 rupees certificate with an issue date of 14 Feb 47, 5 months later than the date you have listed.

p. 225 SB 1643 Has a serial number of 251714; 60,000 greater than the number listed.

SB 1644 Has a serial number of 560655; 35,000 greater than the number listed.

SB 1646c Has a serial number of 529665; 140,000 greater than the number listed. Also, has the six-line note on back.

All have the block in the form of letter over number. Also, as a slight difference, the fourth line on the front of the 50 rupees piece says "with the terms of the Notification number" while the other two pieces have "Notifications numbers" (both terms plural).

p. 226
SB 1682 Can confirm this piece, block B0
SB 1684 Can confirm this piece, block D0

Cheers,
Mark C. Watson

Dear Mark,
Thanks for the updates for Remembered. We would like to see a big influx of these (updates). Joe is coming here in December to work on this book, so we can use every possible morsel! You can be sure that I will report on the work while he is here, but you can also participate by sending in those changes.

Dear Editor,

Series 005 - Number 1055 Monday November 24, 2003

BNR MPC Special Issue

The leading paper money publication—Bank Note Reporter (BNR)—is honoring the military money hobby with a special edition again in 2004. The February issue of the paper will have editorial material and advertising featuring MPC and military money.

This is the third year that the paper has honored military money collectors in this way. The string started with an underground special issue in 2002. Without fanfare, but with cooperation from deep editor in Iola, Gramsters kidnapped an issue and made it into a special MPC issue.

In 2003 the status was elevated to an official special issue, but coordination was minimal. This year all parties plan to make it a very special issue indeed.

You can help. If you are a dealer, run an advertisement for MPC and military money (advertising deadline 6 February, see Gram calendar). If you are a collector, you can help in several ways. You can write an article (see below) or letter to the editor. At a minimum, you can buy something from one of the advertisements. There is nothing like reinforcing an appropriate behavior!

To coordinate your efforts for the special issue contact David Kranz (dkranz@krause.com) for editorial matters and Mary Roloff (mroloff@krause.com) for advertising matters.

St. Louis Report

By David Seelye

While the time I spent at the PCDA show was short, about 3 1/5 hours, it was an excellent investment of time. I was able to sell a rare replacement to a collector (report to follow in a few days). I traded another to a longtime collector. And I attended the Lyn Knight auction with some success there too.

I did acquire for my MFC collection a set of MFC from Baltimore. Prior to this I had only seen scans of the notes. I also acquired a set of WestFest specimen notes. In addition, I also acquired a type set of MFC from MPCFest IV, Memphis, ANA Summer Seminar, and Dallas. These will be prime trading material for the Wonderful notes I expect at MPCFest V.

At the Lyn Knight auction I found another piece for my UNESCO collection. While I have many Specimen notes I only had three issued pieces. I acquired a $3.00 from 1970 issued in Ghana. A prize for sure. While the MPC section was not as strong as the CPMX or Dallas offerings, I did manage to spend some money. Arguably the "best" piece was an elusive Series 692 $20.00 Second printing in GEM UNC.

But the main reason I wanted to attend the auction was for the collection of POW chits. While I tried to buy them all, I was not successful due to persistent bidding of Neil Shafer, who was representing a collector. Neil won several lots at record, or close to it for POW chits.

But I will try and identify him in the February issue of Bank Note Reporter. I will be running a 3 page ad in the MPC issue (It deadlines on January 9, 2004, so plan for any ads or articles accordingly) that will feature the largest listing at fixed prices in recent time, of POW chits. The completing of Larry Ski's new book should spur even more interest in this field.

=====

We are excited about the announcement of the BNR special MPC issue. We have entered the advertising deadline in the Gram calendar and are planning on writing a special article for that issue. We are considering other ways of supporting the issue, but we need your ideas too. If you have ideas you can write the Krause folks or to us here at the Gram. In any case, we should work together on this.

Dear Gramsters,

Received the I.S.Wright (in Australia) Postal Bid Sale #153 catalog the other day and it has 6 Australian War Savings Certificates up for bid. There are 3 one pound and 3 fifty pound certificates. Lots 8165 thru 8169. The sale closes 17 Dec 2003. For specifics email ausnumis@netconnect.com.au. These are SB-535 or 541 and SB-538 or 544.

Steve Jinks

Dear Editor,

Was "Gram 1052 St. Louis report" actually supposed to be #1053??

Just wondering...

Jay in Garrison, TX

Dear Gramsters,

In a rare occurrence, the MPCGram gave out a bonus issue to subscribers on Friday by sending out a second Gram 1052. The first Gram 1052 dealt with new matches in the MPC database while the second one gave a report on the Lyn Knight auction. When asked by reporters about this generosity, the Editor was speechless.

Sparky Watson

Dear Jay and Sparky,

You guys are just too sharp. I just cannot get anything past you. Would you believe that it was just a test to see if you were paying attention. No, ok, so I got confused when publishing the Gram from our St Louis office.

Editor

Dear Editor,

The St Louis report was my first gram in months....thanks bunches!

Cheers,
Colin

Dear Colin,

I guess that only duplicate numbers get through to you. Seriously, I cannot explain it, but please complain if your Grams stop again.

Series 005 - Number 1056 Tuesday November 25, 2003

Research and Finds

By Joe Boling

Regarding Mark Watson's report of new serial numbers for Indian war savings certificates (gram 1054), four of the five data points he reported are new information. Do not assume that just because it has been nine or ten years since we wrote some page of SB (such as the Indian pages), that we have seen lots of new material for that page and that your holdings will be stale news. In many cases the listings in SB were based on very limited observations (you will find only one SN listed for a catalog entry, or a range consisting of two SN close together). Yes, we have seen lots of new material, and we have many new data points for the next edition, but think of how many collectable items are covered by the book, and remember that, despite our reputations, we do not really own everything that is listed. We NEED your assistance, and, as Fred said, I am going to Ohio in three weeks to do some serious work on the next edition (as serious as THE BOSS's Christmas plans will allow). Let us have your observations before we get together, please.

Not much new to report this week. I bought five notes in the St Louis sale - two genuine Brazilian notes to go with fakes I already have, two new fakes (one Czech, one German), and one note for my Seattle nationals collection.

I am trying to get one of each charter number and title for Seattle, nineteen items - this one puts me nicely over the 50% mark, at eleven pieces. I actually have thirteen, but that is because I have large- and small-sized notes for two banks. I was tantalized by the idea of building a short type set (at least one of each national design series, without regard to denomination). That is not technically feasible, because Seattle had no banks that issued original charter notes (the brown backs are the earliest - eight banks issued them). But every series since then is represented by at least two banks. Unfortunately, many of these are impossible to find - they issued only $50 and $100 notes after the brown backs, or had outstanding circulations like $630 in 1916 or $530 in 1910. One wonders about the utility of having only high-denomination notes in the period 1890-1925. Several of these banks are "unreported" in the major national catalogs (including the bank I just bought, though Lyn hints that another has been seen, but not by him). I am going to be interested in the grade, since I have not seen the back (Lyn's new web site does not show backs yet), and the grade is described as VG-fine, with "several internal tears and an edge split" (which looks to be about a one-inch tear into the portrait, in the catalog illustration). Even though I will no doubt fuss about the grade, this is one of those cases where grade is not a consideration - it may be a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity.

On the other hand, why is it important that I have one of each charter and title for Seattle? Why do collectors collect?

Corrections to BNR special edition story

The story about the special MPC/military money issue of the Bank Note Reporter had several mistakes. The deadline for the issue is January 6 (not February).

To coordinate your efforts for the special issue contact David Kranz (kranzd@krause.com) for editorial matters and Mary Roloff (roloffm@krause.com) for advertising matters.

=====

There were plenty of good challenge opportunities in St. Louis, but I am not aware of any drinks delivered. Neil Shafer demonstrated the best challenge coin technique. When challenged he promptly and smoothly pulled out his change holder that he carries all of the time and withdrew his coin. Joel did not do as well. He had to fumble in at least twenty pockets, bags, boxes and assorted container, but ultimately did produce it. Now I wonder if there should be a time limit on producing the coin.

David Seelye and Lyn Knight met the challenge although Lyn is hiding a secret embarrassment.

Mel Steinberg seemed a little ill at ease while challenges were going on in his presence. I did not know that he is the possessor of a challenge coin so I did not challenge him and felt that his body language was from being left out. Actually, that pleased me a little because I would like to see him come to the Fest and earn a challenge coin.

Later in the hotel restaurant where, much to my chagrin, he trounced me in a game of chess he told a different story. He does have a challenge coin.

Furthermore, he was confident that he had it because he had deposited it in the bag that he carries to shows.

He then proceeded to demonstrate, but he had to really dig in the bag complete with mutterings that he was sure that it was there. Finally, he produced it which I took as a challenge and produced mine.

On Friday I awarded Jim Downey a challenge coin for all of his good work on the Gram and as a way of suggesting (pressuring) that he should come to the Fest.

You can never tell when you will see a Fester/challenge coin holder. The only solution is to carry yours all of the time. If you do not have one yet, well, come to the Fest!

Dear Editor,

Is this strictly an MPC issue or does it include other aspects of military numismatics?

Marcus

Dear Marcus,

Well, there are no rules. To me it is like MPCGram and MPCFest, we really mean all military money.

Editor

Dear Editor:

Please make your readers aware of a note that I have for sale on eBay. It is a Seamen's Overseas Service $1. Series 3, item #2205757520 with a closing date of 12/03. Thank you.

Mr. Doric

Dear Mr. Doric,

I do not think that I can allow such crass commercialism sneak into the hi-brow letters section. Sorry.

Editor

Dear Editor,

The ad deadline for the February issue of the Bank Note Reporter cannot be 6 February. THIMK.

Joe

Dear Editor,

There is a good reason to enter your serial numbers into the MPC data base located at www.papermoneyworld.net. I just received the automatic email notification from the database indicating that I had both notes!

Series 461 5 Cents Serial number A05576472A
Position 26 Choice UNC and a Series 471 10 Cents
B05576472B Position 26 in Fine.

You can see them at:
<http://www.papermoneyworld.net/grams/images/matched.jpg>

David

Dear David,

Way cool. Now I suggest that you put them up for sale in the Gram! Alternatively, you can put a price on the pair in the database itself. That is one of the big features of this system.

Italian AMC error

By David Seelye

At the Dallas 2003 Lyn Knight auction of segment of R.A. Medina's extensive MPC-AMC and related collection, I outbid a prominent Ohioan collector sitting in my row for a lot of two Series 1943A 10 Lira notes in UNC. The most interesting note was what I would call an eye bender. The black printing was prominently doubled, lending an eye catching appeal to me.

Errors have always called my name when the opportunity to acquire the notes has occurred. And this was no exception. While I buy and sell MPC and AMC, I do collect/hoard notes of interest. I collect MFC especially serial #1's, errors, and replacements, specimen traveler's checks, UNESCO coupons, Series 641 $10.00 replacement by position number. This note fell into the realm of, "I do not want to keep it, but I wanted to have it pass through my hands." You know, I don't have it now, but I did at one time syndrome.

The serial number A43553450A has no great significance other than to say in the middle of the run an error slipped past the inspectors. Now AMC errors are in general quite scarce. How many sheets of this error made it past is open to interpretation. I have been "doing" MPC/AMC and related for about 4 years. I look at a lot of notes here and in Europe. Fred Schwan, Richard Medina, Leo May just to name some of the more prominent dealer/collectors have been looking for this type of error for many, many years. With just one note showing up, the conclusion is that just one sheet slipped past. I felt very comfortable in knowing I had a unique note. One note from a sheet that has survived.

That in and of itself is interesting, but for me to take time to write a MPCGram article you know there must be more. And there is. Yesterday I received in the mail from Great Britain an Italy AMC series 1943A 10 Lira A51540612A in EF. The note looks like an UNC from the front, but you can see two folds where it was saved for a while in someone's wallet. It's another similar black print shift error! By comparison the RAM piece has the light image shifted to the left. The new piece has the light image shifted to the right.

It is an interesting pair for sure!

Editorial/opinion

=====

First let me use my exalted position here at the Gram to wish all of you, your families and friends and very happy Thanksgiving. It is a wonderful holiday that can be enjoyed by all.

I do have a few more comments on the St Louis auction. These things should have been said promptly, but then look who you have as editor.

Most of you know from reading Lyn's comment in the auction catalog that Eric Knight has joined the firm full time. The first thing that he did was to go to auctioneer school. He called his first auction at St Louis and the very first item that he sold was a lot of MPC (Series 461 to be exact). If I had had half a brain, I would have bought that lot. Eric could have autographed one or more of the notes or at least the holders. I do not know who bought it other than it was bidder 611 (I think). If you bought that lot (#1 of course) will you sell me the 5 center? The entire lot? At least the serial numbers are recorded so the notes might be found again!

I should mention that Eric did a good job too. He tried to bail out after 100 or so lots, but Lyn made him do a full hour and 100 lots. Congratulations to the Knight family.

MAIL CALL

Dear Editor,

Happy Thanksgiving!!!!!!.....

Gary Lee

Dear Editor and Mr. Doric,

While I do not have plans on which note will be number 30,000 in the data base (yet), by the number of notes currently listed (22,096) it should not be long until it is revealed. Like you, I am working on listing my current inventory on the database. While I had planned on issuing a massive fixed price list #25 with everything in my inventory listed just after the PCDA Show, I decided to input my data. The new listing will go to my mailing list before the FUN show, then to the Bank Note Reporter as a 3 page ad in the MPC/Military Money issue.

So far I have 3266 notes listed. I would like to finish up listing this weekend, but that may be a bit optimistic. Now I must admit I was interested in the number of serial number matches found in relationship to notes in the database. And I did find a few matches. But at what point will the 3 serial number match be found is an interesting question. It seemed like when the count went from 18k to 22k there were 4 new matches So anybody care to guess at what number of notes entered in the MPC data base will the triple match be found?

David

Dear Steamed Fredictor,

Nice Gram- Joel's auction coverage was just dandy (am I prejudiced?) and glad to see you mentioned Lyn Knight's "girls." In fact, they are the reason I am writing, because they not only help show lots before auction sessions, they stay up after the end of each auction session way past any of us reconciling, gathering for pickup and everything else needed for the next morning's activities, at times to 3 a.m. It's a fine idea to give them challenge coins and include them in the fun, but we should realize that they do work hard and well to facilitate all we do there, so let's not forget it. Kudos to them all!!

Neil S.

More Newfoundland

By Warner Talso

The following is from Larry Smulczenski. It adds some details to the Newfoundland discussion. The personal touch is always exciting. Says Larry: this reminded me of a long forgotten item I picked up in a little show in Florida almost 10 years ago. It was a check issued to two gentlemen for what I am pretty sure was work building an air base in Newfoundland. I have attached two scans showing the face and back of this check.

<http://www.papermoneyworld.net/grams/images/Newfoundland%20Check%20Back.jpg>

<http://www.papermoneyworld.net/grams/images/Newfoundland%20Check%20Front.jpg>

Notice the heading that says Department of Public Works, Army Base Sub-Account and it is dated Aug 15, 1942. (St. Johns is the capital of Newfoundland.) The real clue here is the light stamp on the back which is dated Sep 28 1942 which is earlier than the darker stamp which is dated Oct 2 1942 or the green stamp dated Oct 3 1942 (notice upside-down 3). To me that means that the check was cashed on Sep 28 1942 at Stephenville, Newfoundland. Stephenville is the location of a very famous U.S. base that construction was started on in April 1941 and turned over to the Air Transport Command on Sep 1, 1943. So the dates fit. This base was originally called Stephenville Air Base, but on June 23, 1948, was renamed Ernest Harmon Air Force Base after Captain Ernest Emery Harmon, a U.S. Army Air Corps ace who was killed in an air crash in 1933.

Many of us old SAC pilots that flew across the pond in the 60s remember that our tankers came out of Harmon and of course Harmon was our divert base if we missed a refueling. I remember spending a couple of days there in 1961(?) when our tanker lost an engine and we had to land and refuel our B-47 before heading for England. Unfortunately the weather closed in on us and we had to spend almost two full days there. Thanks, Larry!

I did not get much numismatic done on turkey day and the prospects for the rest of the weekend are not great. I do have some research books in a briefcase that I am going to take with me when I take Judy shopping. I hope that I get an opportunity between toting packages to study them (the books). I have been spending a lot of time recently studying Das Papiergeld im besetzten Deutschland 1945 bis 1949 (the Paper Money of the German Occupation 1945-1949) by Michael H. Schöne. There is a tremendous amount of information in this book. You should expect to see some reports generated by this book.

Dear Editor:

I am a member of a military reunion organization called the POVA which means Psychological Operations Veterans Association. We are primarily a reunion organization. We have reunion every two years (the next will be at Ft. Brag, NC). Anyone who in any way was connected to PSYOPS Psychological Operations is welcome including wives, widows, former and current active duty and Reserve or Guard members. By the way we have many good displays of PSYOPS propaganda and the like at the reunion. I plan to display some MPC next reunion.

Now to the point. We have under consideration merging our organization and two other organizations into a "regimental" organization. If any of our MPC members have had this experience, and would like to share it, their experience would be helpful to me.

Thank You,
John Cheney

Dear Editor,

Conversion office for German foreign debts, 3% dollar bonds, due date January 1, 1946. Orange border with cancellation puncture marks. 3x $15.00 coupons attached.

Does anyone have any information with regards to the market value of these items. Is there a market for this type of bond?

Any information would be greatly appreciated,

Attic Finds

Bill McNease

While going through an old suitcase in the attic I came up with some interesting finds related to MPC. <http://www.papermoneyworld.net/grams/images/Orders.jpg> This is the link to the first one and it names me as Pay Officer for Officers and Enlisted men A-L. To help on the Army lingo-FNO means Following Named Officer. <http://www.papermoneyworld.net/grams/images/conversion%20officer.jpg> This link is the one assigning me as MPC conversion officer.

And last, something I found on the internet that was news to me. <http://www.papermoneyworld.net/grams/images/conversion%20date.jpg> It is the regulation that states that all issues of MPC could be converted no later than 30 Sep 1980 if found in a soldier's effects. The soldier had to have been listed as KIA or MIA prior to the date of conversion of the series that he would have been issued.

I hate shopping for shoes. I could probably dig into my closet and find some that are thirty years old although that would be an exception. Usually, I wear a pair of shoes until they are unsightly, uncomfortable, and possibly even dangerous. Then I wear them for another six months or year. Then I keep them in my closet for another ten years or so, but never wearing them.

My shoe exploits made it into the pages of the Bank Note Reporter on at least two occasions. Once (election day 2000, I think) I had to search for shoe stores along the interstate that I was driving enroute to a JSB Boggs opening. There was a huge rainstorm and the holes in both shoes made me miserable and restricted me to my car. The other time was when I was at an event in Europe with attractive, but otherwise terrible shoes. Again, I had to do emergency shopping. A few weeks ago, Judy decided that she wanted to begin a fitness exercise program. She wanted the health benefits and she wanted spousal togetherness. I can hear you snickering now, but there is a well-known Gramster with a similar tale. Mrs. Gramster bought camouflaged clothing and other accessories so that she could accompany her husband turkey hunting. That is, wild birds with guns, not supermarket shopping for Thanksgiving. She went at least once.

Of course before Judy could begin her fitness program, she had to buy new shoes ($100). Three weeks (and four workouts) later (Friday), she decided that the new shoes were not correct for her program.

That is how I came to spend Friday afternoon in the shoe store. In spite of saying that I hate to shop for shoes, Ron's Shoe Store (actually named Arthur's Shoe Tree) in Sandusky, Ohio (15 miles from Fest central) is a joy to visit. The proprietor, Ron, is a wonder to watch. Think of me talking to a group about MPC, and you can imagine Ron selling shoes in his store. While he worked a family, he metered some shoes to Judy and tolerated my attempts at humor. Usually I have a book if we are going to visit Arthur's, but not today. Eventually, the family was finished and Ron ran the cash register. The machine sounded like the band at Radio City Music Hall. If it was not a state record for shoe purchases, I am surprised. Somehow the matriarch of the family mentioned silver dollars while presenting multiple credit cards to cover the shoe selections. Possibly she had a silver dollar in her purse. She went on how her grandfather had given her silver dollars when she was a girl. We have all heard—or told—those stories. The surprise was the response by Ron. He began a conversation about coins as easily as he did about shoes.

I listened as he quoted prices for proof sets. Ultimately, the family was able to get all of the shoes out of the store and Ron focused his aim, er, attention, on us. How many shoes can one woman try on? It is one of the great questions.

While Ron hauled boxes, pinched toes, and gave the history of New Balance, I played with my Fest coin, turning it over between my fingers (you never know when you will need your Fest coin). He asked what it was. I handed it to him and inserted a few coin comments. He described the many different things that he likes. Silver dollars, half dollars, bla, bla, bla, paper money. Paper money!? Yes, he said, he actually likes paper money the best. I could/can hardly believe it.

We talked more about paper. He showed me the liar's poker note that he carries in his pocket! He does not have any MPC, but he does know what it is. By now Judy has made her choice ($150, but they look fast) and she is waiting for ME. I went to the car and took a copy of the MPC book from the trunk. (A collector's edition of course since, Judy went for the best shoes). I told Ron that I would lend it to him until the Fest. At that time he could return it or pay for it. He promised to take very good care of it, but I explained to him that I did not want him to take good care of it. I wanted him to read, study and wear it out.

From the Fest coin conversation, he knew about the Fest and promised to attend. I explained about the Friday bourse that I knew would interest him and promised to talk to him more about the remainder of the event later. I also took his email. This is the first copy of the Gram that he has received.

Howdy, Fr-editor!

I note that the Italian AMC 10-lire which are the subject of David's article were both printed by the Forbes company. Did they do the black-overprinting?

If you recall the 100-lire error I originally had, and which you illustrate in WW II Remembered, had a severely shifted black overprint while the serial numbers were properly placed...

Where was the black overprinted? At Forbes? At BEP?

Just a 'wonderin'...

Jay in Garrison, TX

Dear Editor,

I have a question for you relating to the MPC database. Do you only want notes entered, that is owned by a known person, or do you also accept entry of notes seen at shows and/or in auction rooms? So far I have not entered any notes, but I have a list of MPCs, that I have seen at these places.

Very best

Flemming

Maybe you would have gotten more comments about the Smokies trip if Gram 1044 would have gotten here. I have talked to another person who also never saw it. Grams 1043 and 1045 are here but no 1044.

--Ski

Dear Ski,

I guess that it is fitting that I procrastinated a few weeks in publishing this particular complaint/problem. Non delivery is a never ending problem. We continue to suggest that Gramsters create alternate addresses to receive back up copies of the Gram. As you know there is no charge for the extra copies. In the meantime, I am extending you subscription by two issues.

Covering the entire World of Military Numismatics
Series 005 - Number 1061 Monday December 1, 2003

Jim Miller, Gone

From David Ganz and John Wilson

James L. Miller, founding editorial director of COINage Magazine and a fixture in the American numismatic publication scene for nearly 40 years, died Saturday, November 29, after a year-long battle with throat cancer. He is survived by his wife Jill, three daughters, and many grandchildren. Funeral arrangements are for Wed., December 3 at San Buena Vista Mission in Ventura, CA.

Replacement Discovery

By David Seelye

As AMC replacements go the Japan B series replacements are the most common, with the 10 sen readily available in UNC at the $150 to $200 price level. Even the somewhat scarce 20 yen and 100 yen B replacements surface from time to time. The Japan Series 100 A replacements are another story. The 50 sen and 1 yen are the most common. If you define common as a $500 to $750 note in VF or so. They appear on the market once or twice in a good year. The 10 sen is considerably more elusive. The high values are in a class by themselves.

I was fortunate to have bought and sold a Series 100 A 10 yen at the 2002 Memphis Paper Money show. I sold it to a well known collector of MPC and AMC replacement notes for a mid 4 figure price. It was the first example reported in collections. Joe Boling told me that in the 30 years that he had been collecting, he had never seen one. The buyer had had the same experience. The replacement is illustrated in the Comprehensive Catalog of Military Payment Certificates.

A Series 100 A 20 yen replacement note has appeared on the market. The note is VF or so, not a particularly high grade, but still pleasant to look at. This note represents probably the only know note. It is certainly the first reported. This note now resides with it's 10 yen brother.

It goes to prove, once again, that there heretofore unknown rarities still can be located now!

RATION TOKENS

From The E-Sylum v6#51, November 30, 2003 Wayne Homren, Editor (with permission)

Sixty-one years ago this week, (November 26, 1942), U.S. President Franklin D. Roosevelt ordered nationwide gasoline rationing as part of the war effort. The new rules would take effect December 1. The wartime Office of Price Administration (OPA) issued books of ration coupons and corresponding tokens. Gasoline, sugar, meat, silk, nylon and other items were rationed. Below are as couple web pages discussing rationing and the tokens. Can anyone locate a more detailed discussion of the OPA tokens on the web?

Editorial/opinion

Jim Miller was a gentleman and friend of military money collecting. He took no active part in the hobby (military numismatics hobby), but he did little things for us. In 1995 we sent a review copy of WWII Remembered to Coinage. He liked the book and recognized its many unique aspects. He called me and asked me to write a story about the creation of the book which of course I did. He and I served together on the publications committee of the American Numismatic Association for a few years. He was generous, insightful, and just a good guy. Jim, you are missed.

=====

Dear Editor,

Was Wondering if you got my two emails, the one sent in error and the correct one?

How do I contact so one to become a member of M2C2?

Do you gentlemen still have any chats?

Have you had any spare time to develop some ideas on collecting areas for my limited income?

I saw in the Gram that the Bowanna (wife) <gg> was making you a porter, my wife always wants me to, but this year I have had bronchitis, so didn't have to visit each store in town, starting a five in the morning.

Thanks, Lee "Little Lee" Smith

PS: If you ever find I'm asking to many questions and taking up to much of your free time, please let me know.

Dear Lee,

Free time? What is that? I suspect that some Gramsters will answer some of your questions. I especially look forward to reading about ways to collect on a limited budget. Creativity abounds among Gramsters.

2004 scholarship fund Donations of cash and numismatic material will be gladly accepted. Generally the numismatic material is auctioned at MPCFest, but might be sold via ebay or other places. Your scholarship donations help the hobby by sending qualified individuals to the ANA summer seminar military money
class. Except for unavoidable charges like ebay fees,
100% of your donation goes to scholarships.

What Is it Worth

By David Seelye

One of the classic questions in numismatics is; What's it Worth? Well We are about to find out the answer to that question, when used in the context of matching serial numbers. While listing my notes into the MPC data base at papermoneyworld.net I found myself with a set of 5 cent notes in GEM UNC. A series 521 and 681 5 cents to be specific. Now I have listed a fair number of notes on the data base in the recent past. Over 5,000. Yes, that right 5000. So those of you who are complaining it takes too much time to input my collection, cannot use that excuse any more! So get to it!!! Now as I carefully climb down from the pulpit, and back to the original question, WIIW. I have been fortunate to have several notes that matched. Several trades have been consummated with indeterminate pricing. This eBay listing is an invitation for all those interested to bid on the pair. If for some reason that you are not an eBay, I am sure we can find someone that will bid for you. But this should answer what is it worth. At least in the next week.

Details of Iraq convoy attack emerge (AFP)

Posted Mon, 01 Dec 2003 submitted by David Klinger

Attacks on US troops in Samarra were "coordinated" and targeted two convoys transporting new Iraqi currency as part of an exchange scheme to replace old notes carrying the face of Saddam Hussein, Colonel Fredrick Rudesheim of the 3rd Brigade Combat Team Commando said on Monday.

"It was a coordinated attack ... on a convoy that was delivering a significant amount of Iraqi currency," said Rudesheim.

"It was a concerted effort by the enemy to deal a significant blow to coalition forces," said Rudesheim, who spoke to reporters in front of US tanks at a military base outside town.

Asked about how much money was in the convoys, he declined to give a specific sum, saying only that it was a "significant" amount. The US colonel stressed that the money had already been successfully delivered when the insurgents opened fire on the convoys as they pulled away from the banks.

US commanders accuse their Iraq foes of using their financial reserves not only to buy arms but also to offer cash rewards for attacks on US troops or other targets.

Captain Andy Deponai said the assailants had targeted not just the two banks to which the money was delivered but also the "routes of ingress and egress."

A Fateful Meeting

By Joe Boling

Back to the autobiographical musings; the last episode was in gram 1004 (it seems like a few weeks since the kilogram, and we are over sixty grams past that now (of course, that is under two ounces if you want to look at it from that direction)).

When last we left our hero, he was in Seattle in the mid-70s. After graduating from the University of Washington with an MBA in 1973, I switched buildings and started teaching ROTC. I was supposed to go for a second tour in VN, but by that time the war was winding down and AG branch could not find a job for me there - what a disappointment (not).

One of my duties with the ROTC detachment was teaching marksmanship (I had been a competitive shooter since childhood). In 1974 and 1975 I took the 4th ROTC Region rifle and pistol teams to Camp Perry (Ohio) for the national matches (we trained at Forts Lewis and Ord for a few weeks, then drove and/or flew east to Ohio). The pistol matches were first, followed by the smallbore matches, then the high-power rifle matches. During the smallbore matches (for which we had no team), I killed time with a fellow I had met through the mail a few years before - C F Schwan. He has teaching ROTC at Bowling Green University, just an hour's drive from Camp Perry (and the community that hosts the Fest!).

During one of those two years (1975, I believe), Fred was building his AMC exhibit (the one he ended up selling to Ted Uhl, but not before he showed it at the Atlanta 1977 ANA convention and lost to my Meiji paper money exhibit because of an anomaly in the exhibit rules that has now been fixed). He and I discussed ways to make an exhibit portable if you had to go by air, and lit on the use of ribbons for titles and edge decorations - a technique that I still use (see gram 246). The 1975 ANA convention was in Los Angeles, and he must have been flying that year (I did not go - although many Seattle collectors chartered a bus and made a week-long party out of the trip, I was still of the frame of mind that I would rather spend my $$ on numismatic items, not hotel rooms).

By 1976 I had evidently changed my mind, because I went to the COIN (Congress of International Numismatics) convention in LA that year, rooming with Scott Semans, Milt Blackburn, and another fellow I cannot remember. That was the convention at which I bought my Japan P10, the one yen first series national bank note (printed by Continental BN Co) (F+, $800), from Bill Kiszely, and my first Federal Reserve Bank of China BEPP 100 yuan (SB1071), a piece that had been split apart and repaired with glassine tape ($90), from Mrs Ting.

The most interesting aspect of that convention was having the police come to the hotel room at 0700 looking for Mark Blackburn. They thought Milt was Mark, and they had a warrant for Mark (he was the son of Hal and Peggy Blackburn, dealers from Seattle, then Carmel). Mark had been in trouble off and on for a long time - I do not know what they wanted with him that day.

More next week (unless something more interesting happens this week).

Editorial/opinion

=====

I have some recollections from that first meeting with Joe Boling. Of course we looked at notes. He explained the Japanese puppet bank notes to me and showed me a group of duplicates that he had. I bought or traded for them. I not only still have them, but I still have them in the same group wrapped in the same paper in the back of a bank note box. They are waiting to be integrated into my collection. It is one of the things on my list of things to do (since 1973).

MAIL CALL

=====

Dear Editor,

Could you please run a short want list for me? I am in need of position # 21 notes from almost all series, seems that I have run out of other ways to collect MPC so I have had to resort to this.

Not in need of any Gem notes, but no dogs either.

Jack Hunter
aka ragpicker@galaxycable.net

Dear Jack,
Well, your request might not officially meet our editorial guidelines, but it helps answer the question yesterday from Lee about low budget collecting, so we are running it.

Good luck with your special collection.

Editor

Dear Editor,

Received 5 Grams today, all 1061. Thanks so much. Will give out the extras for Christmas!!

Steve Jinks

Dear Steve,

What a great idea. Grams for Christmas! Actually, a new delivery problem has developed. We are receiving a huge quantity of bounced Grams every day and they continue to come in 48 hours after the Gram has been sent. This seems to have started since we changed the scheme for subject lines, but that does not seem to make much sense. Any ideas?

A Comparison of Post-WW I German Currency to Post-War
(2003) Iraq

By Max Spiegel

World War One and the War in Iraq are two very different wars; however, one can find some unusual similarities and differences, both numismatically and economically. While the reasons for entering the war (for the U.S. at least) are arguably similar, an attack on civilians aboard the Lusitania and at the World Trade Center (and the Pentagon) the outcome of the wars is what is important for a comparison, not the war itself. While World War I took many years for a decisive victory, it took only a few months to wipe out the Iraqi army which was of much less quality than the German army was at the time. In fact, the German army may have been the most technologically advanced of its day. The wars were different, but the outcome was the same, a U.S. victory. (While some may argue that it is not so decisive in our current war, it was none-the-less a victory for the much more advanced U.S. led coalition). Also, both countries experienced a period of higher inflation and a devaluation and lack of confidence in their currency. When the U.S. (and its allies) took control of both Germany and Iraq there were some vast differences in the economic conditions of the two countries, however. Germany was still very advanced and had little unemployment. In contrast, Iraq had 60% unemployment and 70% inflation.

After World War One, the largely bitter (from all of the men lost) allies imposed very strict sanctions on Germany with the Treaty of Versailles. Part of the Treaty made Germany accept the blame for the war. In addition, France demanded reparations for the damage caused to her infrastructure. One payment later, Germany literally went bankrupt. Inflation skyrocketed and eventually caused many new denominations of currency to be printed. In order to fully grasp the drastic increase in inflation, one could compare the price of a one pound loaf of bread in 1914 to the same bread in 1923. During 1914, that loaf of bread would cost 13 pfennig (there are 100 pfennig in a mark). The price increased to 3.5 marks by June of 1922. After that, the period labeled hyperinflation began. In 1923 a loaf of bread cost 700 marks (January), 1200 marks (May), 100,000 marks (July), two million marks (September), 670 million marks (October), three billion marks (November 1st) and finally 80 billion marks on November 15th. At this time, the German government did a complete overhaul of its currency, introducing the Rentenmark on that same day. This new mark was worth one trillion of the old marks. The inflation in Germany would not stop however, until 1924, where the price of bread finally reached 35 pfennig or 350 billion old marks. While the inflation stabilized, the jobless rate began to increase to 10% (January 1932) which was approximately 6,000,000 people. This economic instability created many interesting issues, including iron and aluminum coins (different denominations of pfennig) and the famous one billion mark note printed on October 20, 1923. Even though this may be the most famous issue, the city of Freital printed a 100 billion mark note on November 3, 1923. By the end of 1923, the exchange rate between marks and dollars was $4.3 trillion marks to the dollar. The rest, as they say, is history.

Currently in Iraq, the economic conditions are completely different from those of post-war Germany. Perhaps it is because the economy was in such a bad condition when we got there, or because it has not been given enough time, but the exchange rate between dinar and dollars is not nearly as bad as it was in Germany. While the inflation is bad, a whopping 70% at the current moment, the black-market rates remain about the same post-war and pre-war. The reasons for this can often be difficult to explain.

I would like to thank an economist and friend, David Levine, for clearing it up for me. Since the Iraqi dinar is a developing currency, it is not trusted by most westerners. Therefore, it can often go many years before the exchange rate is adjusted; no one outside of Iraq wants it so it is really irrelevant. In addition, the Iraqi government was not even reporting inflation rates, it is all estimated. But still, what is so different between the dinar after a major war and the mark after a major war? One difference is that the mark was trusted so much before the war, in fact being one of the world's most important currencies. The dinar, on the other hand, had not been trusted for over half a century. Another reason is that the mark was fine for several years after the war until it eventually lost its value. The dinar has only been out of Saddam Hussein's control for a few months. There are also no reparations imposed on Iraq, while the Germans suffered not only reparations (which bankrupted their country) but the loss of the Rhineland which was their most important industrial area. Germany's losing the Rhineland is like Iraq losing its oil fields. Oil, one of the world's biggest commodities, will probably prevent a downward spiral of the Iraqi dinar.

As I am sure you all have seen, the Coalition Provisional Authority (CPA) introduced the Iraqi dinar in conjunction with the 250 banks in Iraq on October 15, 2003. The bills have been issued in denominations ranging from 50 to 25,000 dinar. Iraqis are able to exchange Saddam dinars in the rate of one to one and they can exchange the Swiss dinars (the currency in circulation prior to 1979) in the rate of one to 150 new dinars. The Saddam notes will no longer be legal tender after January 15, 2004.

While there is no market rate yet for the new Iraqi dinar, the Saddam notes are still trading at roughly 2000 to the dollar. Since 1982, however, the official rate put in place by Hussein's regime was .3109 dinar to the dollar. That rate obviously has not been used as the dinar rarely leaves the country, except for collectors of course. Even at the time it was set in 1982, it may have been a huge understatement of the value of the dinar. Since then the Iraqi dinar has slowly slipped, reaching a peak of 12 dinar to the dollar in December of 1991. Eventually, especially after sanctions were imposed; it slipped to 2000 to the dollar until the present war where it slipped to 4000 until jumping back to 2000 to the dollar. Will the new Iraqi dinar trade at the black-market rate or not?

Taking a look back to find similar instances of replacing a national currency, one doesn't have to look far. On January 1, 1999, the Euro was introduced on paper (it was essentially an electronic currency), and on January 1, 2002, it became the official national currency of twelve countries. When it was first launched as an electronic currency, there was a slight drop in its market valuation in a short period of time. Over time, however, it began to pick up, eventually becoming more valuable than the dollar due to a slowing US economy. It is very possible that the new Iraqi dinar could follow the same pattern, slowly losing value (the Euro lost around 30% against the dollar), until it eventually is legitimized and trusted. Should the new dinar prove to be a success and violence in the region lessens, the exchange rate could lower drastically, possibly to what it was during the first Gulf War, 12 to the dollar. With most of Iraq's money going into reconstruction, however, it could take years before their government gets a budget surplus. Oil, will definitely be a major factor in determining the exchange rate; if the Iraqis can sell enough of it, they could become as big a player as Saudi Arabia (although they too have a fixed rate) or Russia in oil. It will be very interesting to see if the new Iraqi dinar will follow the pattern of the Euro or show us an entirely different example of exchange rates for newly introduced currencies.

As many of you have read, there was an attack in Samarra on December 1, 2003 with the main target being the two convoys transporting the new Iraqi dinar. This attack was obviously a coordinated attack on not only the coalition but any remnants of a new Iraq. With the last day the Saddam dinar as legal set for January 15, 2004, there is less than one and a half months left for the currency conversion. Is this the beginning of attacks on the new dinar itself, the Iraqi Banking System, or just more attacks on coalition forces? We will soon see the perils of changing national currencies in the middle of a war. This may have a very dramatic effect on the valuation of the new dinar, that is if the attack(s) on the dinar itself continue.

I just called David Seelye to give him some feedback, but he was not home so an editorial was born. David is the bourse chairman for Fest V and doing a great job. You should recall (or learn) that for the first time we are going to have a bourse on Friday before the Fest. Dealers who are not attending the Fest are invited to take tables and the general public is invited to attend. We will have an innovative admission fee of minus $5 for all collectors who attend the bourse. Yes, we are paying collectors to come. All of this is old news, but important for you to remember.

Here is what I wanted to tell David. I was chatting with a dealer tonight about other things. He told me that he received the bourse application from David. He said that he has never bought or sold MPC, but the event sounded interesting. He plans on attending and is still thinking about taking a table! Even if you cannot come to the Fest, you should come to the bourse. I expect that there might be some other surprises too.

Howdy, 0 esteemed Fred-itor,

Twass' musing 'bout the BNR special issue re: MPC...

All I could come up with was:

Much

Conviviality!!

[How 'bout that! The spell-checker said I spelled that right!]

Jay in Garrison, TX

Dear Jay,

Yes, it is so. We would like to see your bright and shinny face at the Fest one of these years!

This might also start something. More Paper Collectors, My Paper Collection, More Pretty Currency [sic]. And there are some possible X and R rated versions possible too.

Editor

Dear Editor,

Anybody got any rare replacements for sale. Like notes with around 10 or less populations.

miker sacto

Dear Editor,

You asked me to keep you informed on how I am doing on my master MPC set. I have passed some milestones recently. I completed 481 1$ left on 12/2/2003 (70 pieces) and I completed 472 5 cent pack 12/2/2003 (84 pices).

I fewer than 1100 notes to go and 14 more until I have 4000.

Doug

Dear Doug,

Wow, only 1100 notes to go. Please do not miss any more appointments. I only have 90 pounds to go to get to my goal.

Editor

Thanks so much for listing my "want list" in the Gram. I sure look forward to hearing from fellow collectors in this pursuit.

I only have one question, will my "ad" be included in the WANTED section of the Gram or have I not followed S.O.P. to have it listed that way? ( sorry, two questions ).

Please include it in future issues, as I am not to sure of getting much response to one listing.

I guess I should have mentioned this also, I have lots of "trading" material that should be of some interest to other collectors. Maybe I have some numbers for someone else's set.

Thanks again,
Jack Hunter

Financing War

By Warner Talso

I thoroughly enjoyed Max Spiegel's article in Gram #1063 on December 3rd. Analytical comparisons such as he did are of great interest to me and, as you may recall, the type of thing I promised when I began this column. That said, I would like to make a few comments regarding Max's article.

Max clearly points out the inflationary spiral in the Weimar Republic after WWI caused by the onerous Reparationsforderungen of the winning powers. I also observe that the rest of the world, led by the U.S.A., was entering the Depression and this aggravated the problems of Germany. Further, although Germany was no longer at war, these were similar conditions that leaders of belligerents during WWII feared. Control of inflation is a significant reason for the economic mechanisms we have discussed previously: strict wage and price control (more strict in Russia and Germany, less so in Great Britain and others); war bonds to take money out of circulation (the best examples may be the U.S.A. and Japan); and rationing (practiced by all).

Max notes that "the German government did a complete overhaul of its currency, introducing the Rentenmark" (November 15, 1923). Why was this successful? After all the new currency was not redeemable in anything of value. Its backing by real estate was a fiction since there was no way this real property could be foreclosed or distributed. The answer was - confidence. First, the government announced that the new currency would be Wertbeständig - stable in value. The people desperately wanted to believe this. Second, and most important, the government strictly limited the amount of Rentenmarks which could be printed and issued. Finally, after April 1924, the government stopped the expansion of credit to businesses which had been stimulating inflation. I see threads of these conditions in Max's analysis of the Iraq situation.

As an aside, postwar Hungary suffered the worst documented hyperinflation in history. (Between August 1945 and July 1946 the general level of prices rose at the astounding rate of over 19,000 percent per month, or 19 percent per day.) By the end of WWII Hungary was a totally destroyed and indebted nation. The Allied Forces bombed Hungary when they were allied with Germany, and what was not destroyed by the Allies, was destroyed by the Germans after Hungary switched sides and the Germans were driven back by the Russians. The Hungarian gold reserves had been stolen by the Hungarian Nazis and taken to Germany. The consequences, if not the events themselves, sound very familiar, don't they? Further in the "Russification" of Hungary, the Russian Army sent specially trained, fanatic Marxists, who were particularly educated in national economics, as well as pacification of anyone they considered or identified as enemies of the Soviet system. Their first goal was to ruin the middle and upper classes, and they achieved this by constant printing of banknotes, so that money lost its value. Little by little the population had to sell all their possessions in order to have enough money to pay for the absolute basics for survival. This hyperinflation was ended by price controls and the introduction of a new currency - actually the introduction of income tax payment certificates called "Adópengő" to be used as currency. But, that is another story.

Do you remember my shoe story from Sunday? It is hard for me to forget because every day I am receiving about 50 messages that copies of this Gram have not been delivered. Typically, when a Gram goes out, we receive about 20 bounces. Changed addresses, overfull mail boxes, vacations. There are many reasons. This problem is all new. After five days getting 50 messages. What is going on. I have investigated a little. The notices all seem to relate to two addresses! Both are from a gte ISP, but beyond that I do not have a clue. Any ideas?

Dear Editor,

In An Attempt to Clear It Up, And In Response To Comments Made.

Lee "little Lee" Smith & Jack Hunter, Grams #1061, #1062 & #1063.

I Want To Know, How To Get A Want List Posted In The Gram.....???

Not Once, In The Letters To The Editor.....But As Stated, For One Month In The "WANTED SECTION"??

Many Of Us Have Tried In The Past.....But It Never Seems To Get In There.

Is There A Monetary Amount Involved...??

Is It Only For The Favored Few...??

Buy The Way....."Wanted #01," Has Run For Allot Longer Than 30 Grams....(yes, i counted 'em).

You Could Clear This Up For Us That, "Collect On A Budget".

If It Is Too Much Work....Just Say So....!!!

As A Community, We Could Satisfy A Bunch Of Want Lists.....!!

Don't Sugar Coat This.....Give Us The Requirements. Total Respect, Ed Beaman

Dear Ed,

Thank you very much (really) for your inquiries. They give me the opportunity to explain, comment on, defend, announce, and/or otherwise discuss several editorial policies. I expect that this response will overflow into editorials for the next few days!

The overriding consideration is that I view the Gram, papermoneyworld.net, and the Fest as interrelated enterprises (?) the goal of which is to promote the military numismatics hobby. Perhaps the military money seminar should also be included on the list.

Today I will deal with the specific inquiry about want lists.

From the beginning many of us (myself included) would like to run want lists in the Gram, but there are several problems with this. If we run free (or possibly even paid) want lists we could have four hundreds ads like this: Wanted replacements, key notes, super grades. Will pay the highest prices.

Such ads do not accomplish much. Sure we could require greater specificity but the end result would be the same. I will come back to the wanted ads in a few moments.

For sale ads on the other hand enhance the Gram because they make it (the Gram) more interesting to everyone because everyone is looking for things to buy. Also, for sale ads must be more specific because they must list specific items for sale.

Now back to want lists. If we allow want lists with identification of the buyer (email, phone, postal address), sellers can/will contact the buyer. What is in it for the Gram? In fact the Gram is hurt because potential sales items are diverted to direct sales.

Yes, we could charge for such ads. What would be an appropriate approach? Things change if we start to think of the Gram in financial terms. Approximately 1060 Grams have been issued. Income from the Gram has been exactly zero dollars. I estimate that the charge would be something like a dollar a day with a year minimum, $300 per year. Collectors would scream about my personal greed and would not participate. Possibly a dealer or two would take the generic buy ad at that price. This does not seem like a good approach.

Let us look at the exceptions that you mention. Yes, your overpaid editor makes judgment calls—frequently. Hence the big bucks.

The recent fellow who has started collecting position 21 did get a notice in the Gram. That seemed to me to be a newsworthy item on several counts. It is useful for people to know that someone is collecting 21 and there is a message there that people can start collecting by position number.

I am not even certain about the other one that you mention. I think that it was for Fest notes. Again, I felt (feel) that there was a newsworthy aspect to this notice.

The thirty-day limit was in anticipation of great participation. Because of the low participation, it has not been necessary to pay much attention to this.

It is certainly possible that we will eventually try to get some income from the Gram. I am considering doubling subscription prices starting the first of the year. Possibly, I should announce now that at your urging we will charge 200% starting Jan first.

In fact a few people have suggested that we charge for subscriptions. I cannot imagine that every happening, but Can imagine charging for advertising. The most likely prospect is banner advertising. Possibly every section could have a sponsor. We have thought about this many times. When we experimented having the Gram in html instead of straight text, we thought that such banners were a distinct possibility.

Thus far, on balance, we have decided against commercial attempts. An interesting twist on this is that the low subscription and other service charges provide a nice cover for criticism.

I sincerely welcome your additional thoughts and anticipate discussing more issues along this line in the editorial section in the next few days.

Intaglio Press for Fest

By Kevin Neidy

I was going through the ebay site and stumbled upon an auction for a MPC Charities souvenir card that we made for the Dallas show. I am humbled to say the least. It also has given me a great idea that I and other MPC supporters are going to do. First hand I would like to thank all of those that have donated in the past to the causes that we were making the cards available for and to Harold for all his hard work that he put in to sell and manage the distribution of them. And second of all I would like to announce that at this years Fest I will be attending with my American Bank Note proofing press in tow! With the help of other festers ( Doug Bell, David Seelye, Harold Kroll) we will be making a Fest souvenir card right on premise just like they do at the big shows. I will be bringing my little printing museum the one that I am developing for the MPC Kids program. We will be making a special Vignette card in honor of the Planchette Report that will be developed and assembled right at Fest headquarters during the Fest. Also David Seelye is doing a special offering of an intaglio printed Fest Card (on the ABNC press) that he will honor as a coupon at his bourse table to all festers during the event. It will be good for money off type discounts on MPC related merchandise at his table and available exclusively through him at this Fest event. I personally will not be making any cards for the event but will be assisting the others and Harold Kroll with his annual card that he does yearly with his specifications on the American Bank Note proofing press so it should make a great event even greater I hope to see all of you there and I am looking forward to seeing Harold with his hands full of ink? I am sure that if you wanted to give the press a try Harold would not mind after all he will be needing all the help he can get? I will be observing with a smile, I am sure you will too! It is a must attend event with all these offers from Planchette reports to money-off coupons and best of all Harold Kroll up to his neck in printers ink how could you not want to see that? Have a very happy holiday season to all! And were hoping to see you there.

I was supposed to comment some more on editorial/advertising policies, but after missing Saturday, I find myself writing on December 7th. This is one of those anniversaries that just must be recognized. At the same time it is impossible to adequately comment on that momentous and amazing day. We generally discuss HAWAII notes and a few other numismatics relics of the day (actually era), and that is fitting for our specialized journal. Still, it is inadequate. No words from someone who was not there or at least lived through the times can be adequate. I hope that you will take some time today to join me in a few moments of silent respect for those who were there and especially those who departed this earth at Pearl on December 7th. 1941.

=====

Dear Gram,

I can tell you that a new feature has been made at hotmail. a "safe list." If I put a sender there, all mail from that sender will come right through without going through a junk filter. So I of course put mpcgram@yahoo.com on that list. So we shall see whether hotmail can fulfill what they promise. Other gramsters who has a hotmail address, can do the same.

Very best

Flemming

Dear Fleming,

What a great tip. Thanks. Is there anyone out there who can at least maintain a list of possible fixes to Gram delivery problems. We can run the list from time to time and send it to people with specific problems.

Along that line, the mass of bounce messages from the shoe Gram has stopped just as completely and mysteriously as it started.

Editor

Dear Editor,

Thank You, For The Great Explanation...Concerning The "Wanted Section."

It Is Often Easy To Sit Out Here, & Throw Darts At You...Criticize.

I Just Want You To Know, I "TRULY" Appreciate All You Do.

Second Note.....

Please, Sign Me Up For Fest Five. I Will Get The Money To You ASAP.

I Wouldn't Miss It.....!!

Ed

Dear Ed,

I look forward to chatting with you at the Fest about Gram advertising. Do you remember when I was trying to recruit you for Fest I? You said that you were having trouble getting the OK from your boss. I volunteered to ask Judy to talk to your wife and you replied that, no, you really did mean your employer!

Editor

Mr. Editor,

Had I known that asking to run my want list for pos. # 21 notes was going to cause such a fuss, I would have submitted it months ago.

If it were posted that a fee was required, then I would most certainly pay the stated fee. But it specifically says that they "will be run for free" and "will run for a period of one ( 1 ) month.

So I took that at face value and submitted my wants, as a humble collector.

All I can offer at this point, is my Sincere and heartfelt Thanks to you Sir for your complete and selfless efforts that you put in to the Best Damned News letter extant.

And I also thank the three gentlemen who have responded to my ad, even if no deals have been struck as yet.

By the way Fred, it is, without any doubt, a three headed monster that you have created and I, for one applaud your decision to do it at your discretion. THREE CHEERS!!!

Jack MPC Hunter

Dear Jack,

Thanks. It looks to me like it is time that you step forward and come to the Fest. You can help defend me there where I am a favorite target.

Editor

Dear Editor,

I tried to comprehend your editorial concerning answering Mr. Beamans questions. Are you going into politics or what. It seems like most politicians, do speak English, but you still need a translator in order to understand what they say. Your answer to his question is similar to the Winston Churchill famous WWII quote..."never has one person said so much that answered so little....."

PK6

Dear P,

Thank you for your letter. It is a great balance to the two before it. Without letters like yours, I might start to believe some of the clippings.

Series 005 - Number 1066 Monday December 8, 2003

What a Pair!

The pair of matched serial number MPC sold on eBay about about 9pm today. It sold for approximately $417 with a surprising 31 bids. Of course the bidding did not really start until less than a minute to go. Three bids were placed in the last 20 seconds. The eBay ID of the buyer was the-papetrader. Analysis of other items bought by the person indicated that he (she?) buys Rolls-Royce and Bently auto parts.
See the notes and the auction at this link.

Data Base Enhancements

By Doug Bell, webmaster

Several enhancements have been implemented on the MPC data base. Error checking has been enhanced. The serial number prefix entered is now checked against the series entered. Denominations are also checked to make sure that $20 certificates are not entered for series without this denomination. When an error is caught the person entering the data is notified and asked to fix it.

You can now look at the number of notes entered according to user ID. The list can then be sorted by user ID, and number of entries and those can be sorted in either direction.

Below is a list of the top five entering individuals. First is the user ID number, then the number of notes entered. On line the names are not given, but these five top data dogs agreed (explicitly or implicitly) to have their information released.

Editorial/opinion

=====

According to plan I was supposed to write more about editorial policies and the like. On the other hand, I do not have much to talk about. Well, maybe I do. The two news stories above are related. The pair that sold on eBay was identified by the MPC data base. All of this was fun! It is also the result of Doug Bell's work to create the data base and the efforts of many collectors to input notes. The best news of all is that you can still participate and find a pair for yourself. Go to www.papermoneyworld.net and enter some notes!

Dear Editor,
Fred I would like to be put on the list for Fest 05 please.

Kevin Neidy

Dear Kevin,
Hm, I had you down for Fest V. Did you mean Fest VI? Anyway, I look forward to seeing you in March.

Editor

Dear Editor,

Please put me down for the Fest. I plan on arriving on Thursday so that I can be there for the bourse on Friday.

Sam Feedback

Dear Kevin and Sam,

Wow, two reservations in one day. It must be getting to that time. For the rest of you who are procrastinating, send in your reservation please.

BARGAINS??? or ???

By Ron Waddell

The current website for Lyn Knight auctions has some improvements that make auction bidding via the internet much easier and more informative. The listing with your bids and current bids (along with final bids) and an on-line invoice are just a couple of the improvements I like. Others may have these features but I don't keep up with all of them. One thing that bothers me about Knights auctions, considering only the foreign and military related notes, is the estimates and the 60% of low estimate minimum. In the St. Louis auction, and several past auctions, I listed lots that I was interested in along with catalog prices for the item. In some instances, if I bid the minimum allowed - 60% of low estimate - I would be paying full catalog or more, especially after the auction fees were added. In some cases this is valid but I thought I would check the results of the 1533 lots of MPC and foreign notes to see what the bidding showed (how good are the estimates and the catalog values). Overall, 26.4% of the lots did not sell; and of the lots sold, 63.3% had a hammer price below the low estimate. I've listed the results below and will let the readers draw their own conclusions. This data is based on the hammer price as listed on Knights web-site. The data is broken down by MPC (the first 37 lots) and those lots that were readily identifiable (by me) as listed in WWII Remembered and WWII military related (365 lots). The remainder are in one category.

| % of Low Estimate | MPC | WWII Related | Foreign |
|-------------------|-----|--------------|---------|
| No Sale           | 2   | 60           | 343     |
| 60-69.9%          | 8   | 69           | 239     |
| 70-79.9%          | 2   | 60           | 144     |
| 80-89.9%          | 4   | 37           | 92      |
| 90-99.9%          | 1   | 16           | 42      |
| 100%              | 3   | 17           | 50      |
| 100.1-109.9%      | 1   | 21           | 57      |
| 110-119.9%        | 7   | 18           | 40      |
| 120-149.9%        | 4   | 30           | 55      |
| 150-199.9%        | 4   | 12           | 43      |
| 200-550%          | 1   | 25           | 26      |
| Totals            | 37  | 365          | 1131    |

Sixty-six lots (4.3%) exceeded the high estimate, two in the MPC category and twenty-eight in the WWII category. One statistic that would probably be of interest to gramsters is that 21 of the 28 bids (WWII category) that exceeded high estimates were for POW chits. I think the above will answer the question on the estimates; comparing catalog values will require each person comparing notes in his/her area of interest.

Editorial/opinion

=====

A first page news story by David Ganz in the December 16 Numismatic News is about Congress voting to award Pope John Paul II the Presidential Medal of Freedom. Among other things in the article, Ganz points out that Harry Truman created the award in 1945 for recognition of World War II service by notable civilians.

I said to myself, wow, that should be in World War II Remembered. When I got home from reading the newspaper at the coffee shop, I looked in Remembered and to my delight and slight surprise, I found that we had indeed listed the medal. We had everything correct too-as far as I can tell. I suggest that you have a look.

Financing War - WWII Walt Disney Certificates

Warner Talso

David Klinger has called our attention to a contribution to the war bond effort by the Walt Disney Company. I want to digress and discuss this in more detail. Recall the discussion of defining war bonds and my observation that characteristics include volunteerism and patriotism. I submit this falls into that category (except of course that they fail to meet the most basic requirement of being a financial instrument). Walt Disney prepared a certificate of appreciation for purchasers of U.S. war bonds. An example can be seen in SB on page 395 and at:
<http://www.scripophily.net/discharwarbo.html>

At the time, Walt Disney was arguably the biggest name in the entertainment industry. These certificates featured 22 different Disney characters as a border, including Mickey Mouse, Donald Duck, Pinocchio, Pluto, Sleeping Beauty, Porky Pig, etc. The Walt Disney copyright symbol is in the lower left-hand corner. (There is a second version of a certificate of appreciation that illustrates other cartoon characters.)

The Disney certificates were prepared under the auspices of the United States Treasury War Finance Committee and printed in 1944. They were distributed by banks and state war finance committees. There were three different printers: US Government Printing Office; Homer H. Boelter; and for the Minnesota Committee, by Colwell Press (4/24/44 imprint date, 5500 printed). There were different types - one in multi-color; one in black and white, where dots and line patterns were used in place of colors; and the Colwell Press version printed with black ink on blue green paper.

There are many replicas and facsimiles for sale on Ebay. If you are interested in an authentic original, look for an Eagle and Shield watermark. R. M. Smythe Company auctions frequently offers the Disney certificates (genuine of course) and even sometimes has varieties. They are available in the collectors' market in both issued and unissued form.

There are some interesting collecting options. The Disney certificates were distributed by state and prepared for the signatures of the State Chairs of the War Finance Committees. For collectors this creates the goal of collecting signed certificates representing all issuing authorities. A basic set of 48 representing the United States and perhaps an expanded set of 54 representing the States plus territories. Who will be the first?

We did not have the snow that hit the Northeast, but it has been cold for several days. This makes me think about Orlando and the FUN convention. Many Gramsters and Festers will be there. Of course we will probably talk much more about that in the next two weeks, but just in case you are on the fence about this, you have some time to make arrangements.

I received an interesting letter from Ray Bows today. He has written another book! This one is about his personal experiences in Vietnam. I do not know if it even mentions MPC or money, but I expect that it does. I also expect that Ray will be at FUN because he usually is. Hopefully, we can all order copies of his book and have a nice chat with him at FUN.

Dear Editor,

OK, so Toledo is the closest airport to FEST HQ and $ 21 or $ 42 for the extra night at the motel. So $ 148 + $ 21 = $ 169, right? And that covers room and board or just the room? I checked on flights out of Omaha and was quite surprised that I will not even have to go through Chicago (bonus).

Also, when is payment due to you? Assuming that the math is correct. Please let me know ASAP.

Thanks Fred.

Jack H.

Jack,

Looks like you have the math correct. Payment is due by the end of January.

Editor

Dear Gram,

Just to make sure that I understand the new/revised policy on want lists, am I correct in saying that I can no longer advertise in the Gram that I have started collecting MPC that contain my birth year (1947) in the serial number?

Moe Letlow

Dear Moe,

I do not know of a new advertising policy. Yes, you may make such an advertisement, but it will not include your contact information. From the Gram's point of view, we want to encourage people to advertise things for sale.

HOT CONTACT LIST - DEALER & RESOURCE LIST

Below is the BNR Press Hot Contact List. This list serves several functions. Obviously it is an outreach by the dealers listed for your business. Most of them buy and sell MPC. Others organize shows or publish periodicals, or furnish information dedicated to this field. They have supported the new Comprehensive Catalog of Military Payment Certificates with their advertising.
They deserve your support and patronage!
